Army SPECIALIZED TRAINING Program

More than eight thousand soldiers have been assigned to the Army Specialized Training Program at Ohio State since last April. The STAR Unit, which tests, classifies, and assigns men to the AST Program, processed 5,146 soldiers up to January 31, 1944.

On the campus taking courses in more than a dozen ASTP curricula were 1,553 ASTP trainees in the summer, 2,800 in the fall, and 2,586 during the winter. Enrolled in the spring term were 2,315.

These soldiers have taken physics, mathematics, chemistry, history, English, and geography in the Basic Phase chemical, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering; personnel psychology; foreign area and language studies; dentistry; medicine, and veterinary medicine.

At the inception of the program Colonel O. L. Brunzell was the Commandant; he retired on September 30 and Lt. Col. James H. Leusley took over the command. Colonel George R. Middleton was named Commandant on December 17.

Co-ordinator for the Program was Dr. Norval Neil Luxon, journalism professor on leave. Assisting him was Lawrence D. Jones, professor of engineering drawing and secretary of the College of Engineering.

Some trainees have been at Ohio State continuously since the Program started last spring. Others have stayed for a few days in the STAR or for one term in the Training Unit. Peak load was in the fall when the daily strength report of the two Units often ran above 3,000.

In the Army Specialized Training Units, all courses, including refresher courses, have been taught by members of the Ohio State teaching staff. Approximately 700 students, enrolled in the College of Veterinary Medicine, Medicine, and Dentistry, were sworn into active duty in the Army and the Navy.

Anchors Aweigh!

Naval Training School (Recognition) is official designation for the activity which was commissioned on September 1, 1942, and has been active on the Ohio State campus ever since. The primary purpose of this Naval school is to train Naval personnel, principally officers, in the rapid and accurate identification of aircraft and surface craft used by the United Nations and the enemy, and also to train students in the proper techniques of instructing others in this field. Another important phase of the program is that connected with lookout procedure. This involves the spotting of objects at sea during both day and night, and the proper reporting of information obtained by ship's telephone.

Since upon graduation from NTS (Recognition) the major portion of these officers go directly to sea, the students find the program most interesting and valuable. When one of the lookouts reports to the captain on the bridge that an unidentified object has been sighted at a great distance and the captain in turn says to the Recognition Officer, "What is it?" the promptness and accuracy of that officer's reply may determine the safety of his ship, its personnel, and possibly the safety and security of other ships in the squadron or convoy.

The Naval Recognition School and Ohio State University are playing a very important part in the successful waging of this war.

First man of Ohio, Governor John W. Bricker takes time out from his political duties to enjoy a day of fishing, hunting, or attending county fairs and horse shows with his thirteen-year-old son, John. The Governor has remained an ardent baseball fan since the days when he excelled as catcher on the Ohio State University Varsity team which won the Big Ten Championship.

Born in Pleasant Township, Ohio, the third-term governor received his A.B. degree from the University in 1916 and his LL.B. degree in 1920. He was admitted to the Ohio Bar in 1917 and elected governor of Ohio in 1939. While still attending the Ohio State University, he was president of his class, captain of the debate team, a member of Delta Chi fraternity, and a member of the senior Honor Society. In 1919, Governor Bricker was married to Harriet Day, also a graduate of the Ohio State University.

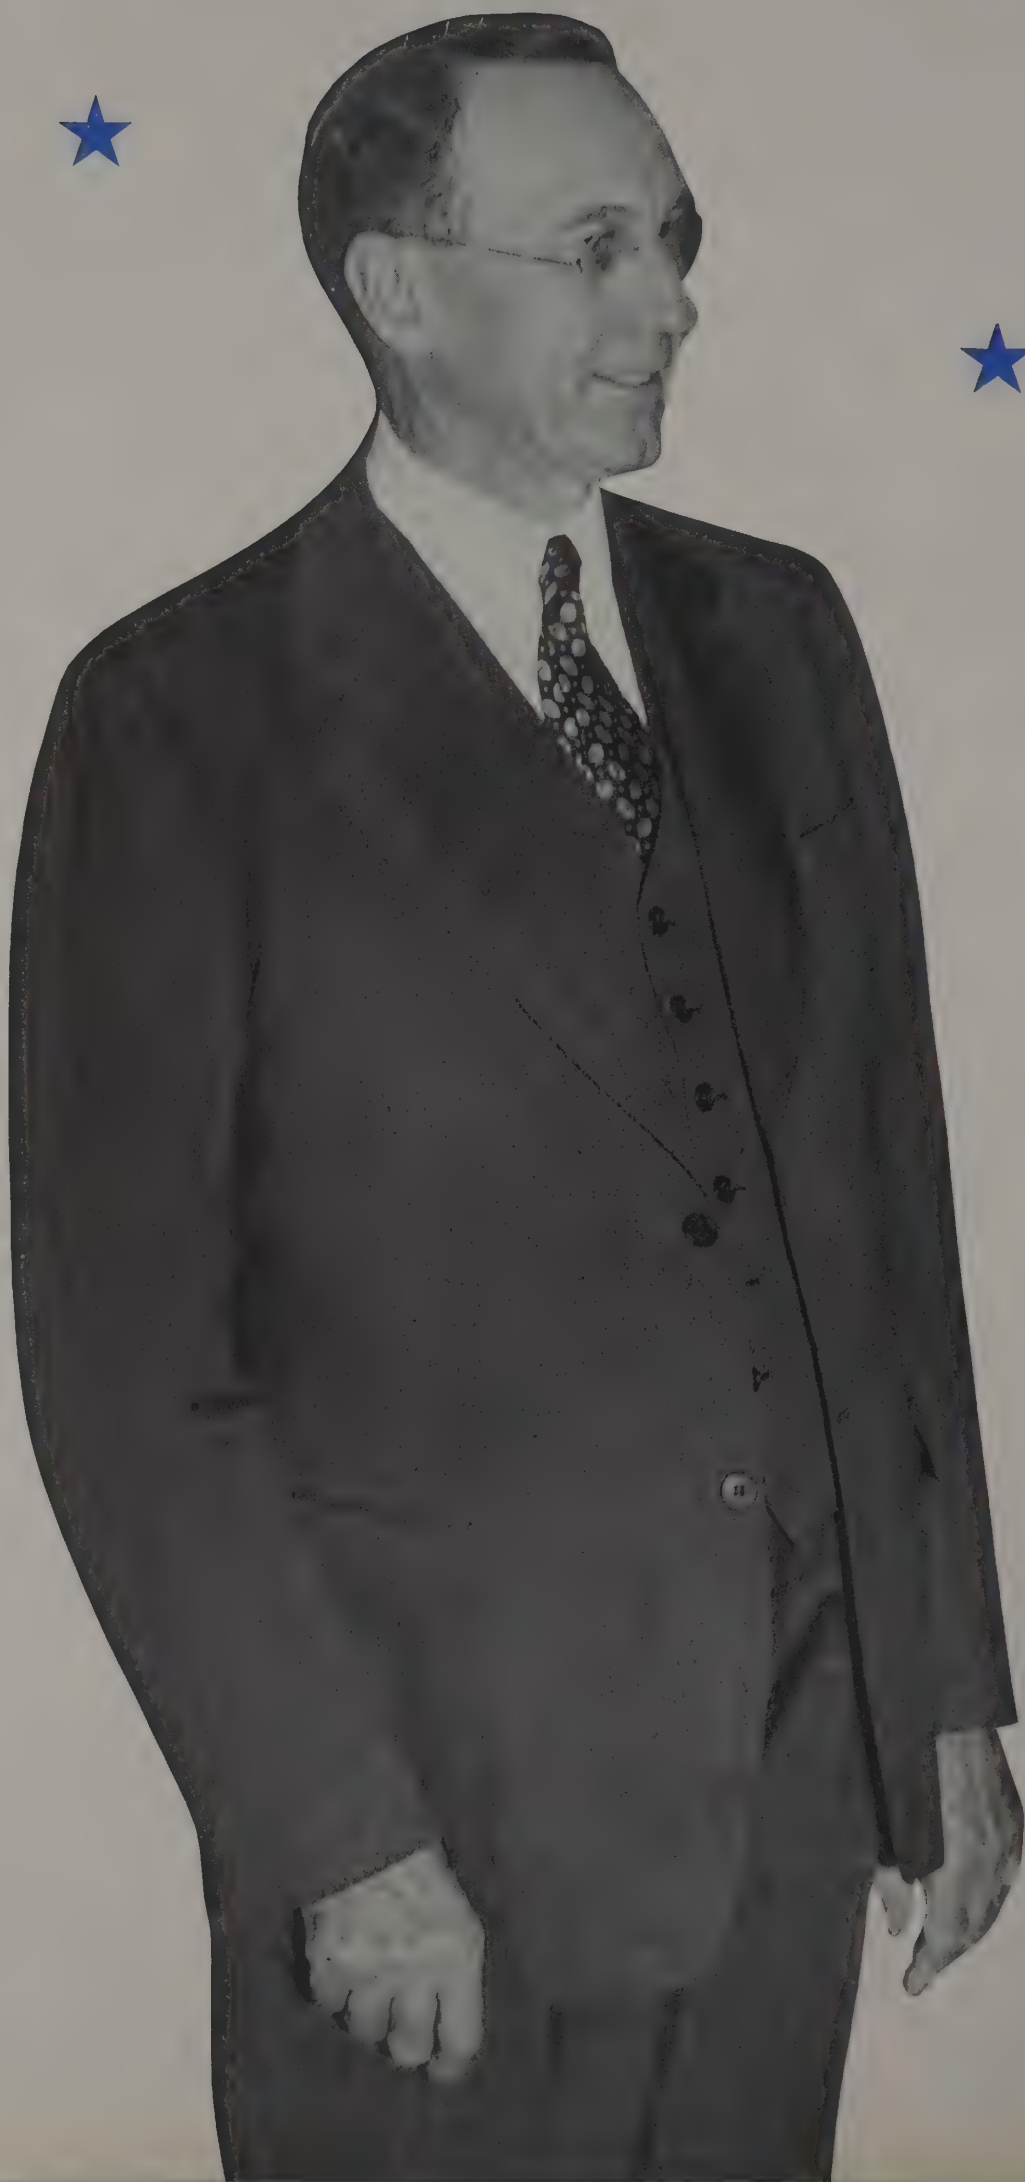

*The Honorable John W. Bricker
Charter Member of the American Legion
Franklin County, Post No. 1*

A quiet evening at home with Mrs. Bricker and son, Jack.

An aspiring candidate for the office of President of the United States, Gov. John W. Bricker is at present engaged in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. On a recent tour through the western states, Ohio's favorite son and third-term governor stated that he believes the issue in the forthcoming election will be the needless expansion of governmental costs and bureaucracy under the guise of wartime necessity rather than the foreign policy.

President Howard L. Bevis

University President Howard Landis Bevis lists among his hobbies reading, fishing, and hunting. Seventh President of the Ohio State University, he spent the first twenty years of his life in Hamilton County. Also, somewhat of a globe trotter before coming to the University in 1940, the President has traveled extensively in Europe, Asia, and Africa.

A native of Bevis, Ohio, the President attended the University of Cincinnati where he obtained his A.B. degree in 1908 and an LL.B. degree in 1910, and Harvard University in 1920 for an S.J.D. degree. He has received three LL.D. honorary degrees from the University of Cincinnati, Western Reserve University, and Kent State University.

Former Professor of government and law in the School of Business Administration at Harvard University, he returned to Ohio in 1940 to assume his duties as President of the Ohio State University.

Along with President Bevis, we'd like to introduce Mrs. Bevis, an ardent swimming fan and lover of plays, movies, and bridge. Having traveled extensively in the Latin-American countries, she is very much interested in those nations, their people, and their language. A native of Cincinnati, she is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and has done graduate work at Radcliffe and the University of Mexico.

Vice President Harvey H. Davis

An easy chair and a detective story, book of poetry, or one on geography provide entertainment for Vice President Harvey H. Davis. Vice President Davis also enjoys a game of golf, bridge, or bowling. His favorite ball teams are the Buckeyes and the Redbirds. Among his community activities, he is a member of the Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce, Columbus Town Meeting Board and War and Community Chest Boards.

Coming to the university in 1928 as assistant professor of school administration, he became an associate professor in 1933, a full professor in 1935 and chairman of the department of education in 1937. He has been vice president since 1942.

A native of Corydon, Iowa, Vice President Davis attended Drake University, Iowa State College, and State University of Iowa where he received his A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. degrees. During World War I, he served as color sergeant for the engineers in the United States Army.

Vice President Bland L. Stradley

Relaxation for Vice President Bland L. Stradley means intermingling with livestock—of both human and barnyard types. Be it a day spent on his farm tending cattle and sheep, or one in the company of his favorite pals, the Boy Scouts of central Ohio, he'll consider it a day well spent.

This ardent lover of mankind, in a reminiscent mood, tells of the time he won the Dean's milking contest, and of his son in the Army Air Forces. The former Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and Harvard University. He is a native of Frazeyburg, Ohio.

William L. (Billy) Graves

A top conversationalist, lover of books, plays, pictures, and travel, the late Professor William Graves was a favorite figure on the campus from 1893 until his death last September. Taking a lifelong interest in people and nature, he had among his personal friends the author, Hugh Walpole, and Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

During his vacations, he traveled extensively in England, Germany, France, and Italy visiting the homes of such poets as Lamb and Wordsworth, collecting pictures of cathedrals, and trying his hand at amateur photography. He contributed a weekly column to the Lantern and wrote poetry during leisure moments. Professor Graves was born in Davenport, Iowa, and became a professor of English in 1912. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He had become a tradition at the university even before his retirement and will long be remembered by Ohio Staters. Professor Graves served as professor to generations of the same family.

William (Bill) North

Remembering the campus of 35 years ago when there were only 12 buildings, when students rode bicycles in pre-automobile days, and when university men weren't "on the ball" unless they had a mustache, retired Patrolman Bill North sits back and relaxes at his home in Worthington. A well known figure on the campus, he went from coast to coast with the Bucks in pre-war years.

Progress to Patrolman North is best illustrated by the fact that when he began his role as university policeman, he was the only uniformed man on duty, while today there are four policemen and 11 watchmen regularly employed. On duty during World War I, he remembers when SATC and aviation students were stationed on campus. His favorite pastime activity is gardening and while he doesn't play, he loves ball games.

DEVELOPMENT FUND

Ohio State University's Development Fund, initiated by the Alumni Association only five years ago, broke all records in 1943 for similar funds in state-supported educational institutions. In fact, the Fund entered the select list among American colleges and universities. John B. Fullen, executive secretary of the Fund, reported 8,726 contributions totaling $146,222 for the past year. This made the total raised by the Fund during its five years of existence $509,243. In the nation, only four universities—Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale, and Wellesley—had more contributors in 1943. Ohio State spread-eagled the Conference field, far exceeding all other universities in number of contributors and raising more money than all others except the University of Chicago which reported $200,089.

The Fund has aided the University in many areas which the state does not and cannot meet. The Fund has helped to make the University outstanding in many fields, particularly in the field of electronics through the radiation laboratory. It also has quadrupled the Student Loan Fund, provided scholarships and fellowships, and inspired and aided research-minded professors.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

George M. Trautman
For. '14, President

Ohio State's Alumni Association, in spite of the challenge of wartime restrictions, forged ahead to substantial gains in the last year. At year-end, it had 9500 dues-paying members in the association, the largest number in its history, and one of the largest active alumni bodies in the nation. Scores of the Association's alumni clubs, scattered from coast to coast, remained active. The Association's Development Fund accomplishments for 1943 helped put the University in the front of all the other similar state-supported educational institutions in the nation. Oscar L. Thomas, '26, was promoted to Field Director of the Fund, and Olof J. Olson, B.A. '42, M.A. '43, became managing editor of THE MONTHLY, official alumni publication.

George M. (Red) Trautman, B.Sc. in For. '04, was elected Association President, and aided greatly in the Association's program.

Work in the Alumni Records Division was approximately tripled in the second year of the war. Address changes come in at the rate of 2200 a month and, by last spring, the Division had official records for approximately 7500 former University sons and daughters in the Armed Forces.

The Board of Visitors, after long years of work was named an official University committee as an advisory group to the President.

SINCE civilization began agriculture has clothed and fed mankind. Through the ages the farmer has pondered his environment of Climate, Soil and Water and adapted crops and animals to his needs. With keen perception he has selected the better types of grains and forage, fruits and animals, in order to produce more and better with the least possible labor. During the past century he has adapted the machine to his work of production to the end that his yields have been increased greatly and he has been afforded needed retrospection. Came Science to supply the basis for correct method and Agriculture assumes its place of efficiency in the synthesis of Light, Soil and Water, to feed and clothe a War-torn world.

Agriculture

College of Agriculture

The Ohio State University was established as the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College in 1870, and from the very beginning instruction has been given in agriculture. In 1896 four "colleges", with separate faculties were authorized. The College of Agriculture was one of these and so is therefore one of the oldest colleges on the campus. A Department of Domestic Science was organized in 1896 and made a part of the College of Agriculture. This Department is now our School of Home Economics.

For a number of years the enrollment has been very large and has been rated by authorities outside the University as the largest Agricultural College in the United States, as far as the enrollment is concerned. The enrollment has been cut greatly in the last year or two due to the war, for young people are in great demand by the armed forces, in war industries, and on the farm for food production. The enrollment for this year is only 563, showing a decrease of 67.7 per cent for the College as a whole and a decrease of 90 per cent in the number of men enrolled. Those students not in the armed forces and still on the campus are doing all they can to meet the increased demands upon them. Some have even accelerated their programs so as to be ready for further service in the shortest possible time.

An outstanding feature of the College of Agriculture is its Agricultural Extension Service with an office in every county of the State. Each office has from one to three regular staff members, such as the County Agricultural Agent, County Home Demonstration Agent, Assistant County Agricultural Agent, and the 4-H Club Agent. From the very first the College of Agriculture has insisted that the students be taught agriculture as an art and applied science. It has always recognized farming not only as a business but as a way of life. So the College of Agriculture can truly hold as its purpose, the teaching of those sciences and arts that have to do with the broad field of agriculture and rural life.

Dean Cunningham

One of the most famous agricultural journalists in the country can be noted attending all of the various agricultural social functions. That man is quiet, unassuming Dean John F. Cunningham, from the College of Agriculture. Dean Cunningham is a graduate of the Ohio State University, College of Agriculture where he received his B.Sc., M.Sc., and Ph.D. in Agriculture. He was very active on the campus in his college days, serving as editor of THE AGRICULTURAL STUDENT, co-founder of the Alpha Zeta fraternity, and one of the founders of the Townshend Literary Society.

The Dean's foremost interest is journalism in the field of agriculture. He has owned and edited many noteworthy publications. Some are the OHIO FARMER and the WISCONSIN AGRICULTURER. Dean Cunningham doesn't like everyone, however. He hates the auto horn tooter. So don't hurry, take it easy, and remain on the Dean's preferred list.

Junior Dean Hutchison

"Yes, women can play basketball as well as men," says Junior Dean Chester S. Hutchison, whose favorite pastime is coaching. Hutchison was born in Ashville, Ohio, and received his B.Sc. and M.A. degrees in Agriculture from the University. He became Junior Dean of the College of Agriculture in 1940.

Junior Dean Hutchison is very active in many agricultural organizations. Some of these are the Ohio Association of Future Farmers of America, Delta Theta Sigma, agricultural honorary; and Gamma Sigma Delta, another honorary. The Junior Dean is now the chairman of the Y.M.C.A. advisory committee and serves as the chairman of the Junior Dean Council.

Aside from his coaching, Junior Dean Hutchison enjoys gardening and photography, but don't ever offer him a lettuce sandwich as he has an extreme aversion to this "rabbit food."

Secretary Watson

The key job of serving as secretary of one of the largest and most progressive colleges of agriculture is efficiently administered by True Watson, the friend of every student in the College of Agriculture. Mr. Watson was born in Springfield, Illinois, and attended the University where he received his B.Sc. in Agriculture. He later did post-graduate work at the Iowa State College and received his M.Sc. at that institution. He became Secretary of the College of Agriculture in 1918 and has served in that capacity ever since. Mr. Watson first came to the University as an instructor of agricultural chemistry and has still attained his high ideals of teaching, those being to give all of his time to help the students progress. He is a member of the University Grange and Gamma Sigma Delta, agricultural honorary.

Fall quarter saw another barn warmer sponsored by the All-Agricultural Council. Billy Foster's orchestra gave the dance a "rip-roaring" atmosphere. Winter quarter a square dance was given at the Ohio Union in conjunction with the University Recreation Council.

The All-Agricultural Council is composed of representatives from all of the student organizations in the College of Agriculture. The main functions and purposes of the group are the co-ordination of the activities of these various organizations to prevent conflicts in the schedules, the furthering of interests of the students in the College of Agriculture, and the development of a closer relationship between students and faculty. Through all the combined efforts of the organization, these many aims and ideals have been achieved.

A farewell banquet was sponsored by the Council for the Seniors and new members as the final event for the All-Agricultural Council. This event was initiated two years ago and proved to be so successful that a precedent was established and since then the dinner has become an annual affair which is greatly anticipated throughout the year.

University 4-H CLUB

This year of war found the University 4-H Club functioning as effectively as ever. The first open house revealed almost ninety interested members. Although the annual week-end trip to a camp in central Ohio had to be called off because of transportation difficulties, it was replaced by another interesting program of recreation which included square dancing, folk games, schottische, relays, and group singing.

The business meetings were short and were followed by a recreation hour. In order to give a large number of members opportunity to develop skill in planning and leadership, the programs were put in charge of different committees each week.

The 4-H Club has always been a constructive group on the campus. It helps the college develop the interest of students in commercial and community welfare; it promotes the participation in 4-H work and in agricultural activities, especially those of the American Country Life Association; and it is an active social organization which provides a wide range of contacts for its members.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Forty members from the Home Economics club attended the Southern Regional Convention, where they exchanged ideas with representatives from the five other college groups of this region.

The first meeting of the club featured a speaker and demonstration on Winter Floral Arrangements, and information regarding the textile and food fields.

The Freshman club refinished furniture to be used in the War Board office, as its project. Winter and spring quarters, the Senior club were hostesses to freshmen at an informal tea and picnic.

For the purpose of giving students in the College of Agriculture an opportunity for training in the largest farm organization in the state, the University Grange was established in 1905. The Grange is a fraternal organization for those who are interested in farming enterprises. On the Ohio State campus, University Grange functions by being authorized to give the first four degrees. The higher degrees are given by the County, State, and National organizations. Here, the Grange is primarily a student organization for enriching the students' experiences.

University Grange seeks to teach its members the ideals and workings of the Grange and to train them for leadership, so that they can take their places as leaders in their respective communities.

There are two types of members who compose the Grange: the largest group is composed of faculty members who are residents on the University campus, and the other is a group of non-residing members which is made up largely of county agricultural agents and government employees who use the University Grange to hold their memberships so that they may be free to work in Granges which are situated elsewhere in the State.

*W*HEN the war is won the body of democracy will have been preserved. Who, then, shall see to the preservation of its spirit? Never in human history has a democracy endured without a well informed citizenry capable of making wise decisions at least most of the time. If the coming peace is to nourish the spirit of our freedom, then the liberal arts colleges will be one of the most practical and vital of democratic institutions. It can produce better citizens because it can produce better informed people. I

there are occasional failures, if there is a loss in efficiency because the opportunity is open to all, no one who believes in democracy can complain.

Arts and Sciences

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences has two main purposes. First is its function as a part of the University. As a College which includes many departments of basic human knowledge, it offers work fundamental to every form of university education, including service courses for students particularly interested in agriculture, social administration, business, engineering, journalism, pharmacy, or teaching. In this role it also offers preprofessional curricula in dentistry, law, medicine, optometry, and veterinary medicine.

Second, the College of Arts and Sciences provides a liberal education for those students who are primarily interested in becoming better citizens, wiser people. In this role it offers a great variety of courses designed to develop intellectual interests. As custodian of the liberal arts tradition it makes the student more aware of life's diverse problems, more aware of the solutions which others have found for those problems, and more aware of his own potentialities for useful, purposeful living.

War has affected the College in a variety of ways. Everyone expected a drastic cut in enrollment and, indeed, the figure (1650 students) for the Autumn Quarter of 1943 compares unfavorably with the all-time high (2842 students) in the Autumn Quarter of 1940. On the other hand, many faculty members have been called to government posts, to vital research projects, and to service in the armed forces; and a number of departments in the College have contributed teaching personnel to the AST program, one of the largest in the nation. Probably the worst effect of the war upon the College has been the inevitable minimizing of the liberal arts tradition, but this challenge has prompted the recent creation of curricula in International Studies, American Civilization, Medical Technology, and other timely subjects.

The College of Arts and Sciences (formerly the College of Liberal Arts) received its present title in 1929, when Bacteriology, Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics were added to its departments of instruction.

The College is proud to have played, thus far, a vital part in America's war effort, and it faces the future with confidence. In the making of a new peacetime society its unique resources will be ready.

Dean Hatcher

Tall, slim, white-haired Harlan H. Hatcher, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, is an Ohio Stater first, last and always. Now back on the campus after 18 months' service with the Navy as a pre-flight instructor, Dean Hatcher recently succeeded Dean Bland Stradley, who was named a vice-president of the University.

Dean Hatcher became a student of the University in 1919 and received all his degrees here, from a bachelor's degree to a Ph.D. He was appointed head of the department of English in 1922, a position which he held until 1942 when he received his Navy commission. While a student, Dean Hatcher worked on campus publications and was nominated to Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year. He edited many literary publications while attending State and also specialized in modern drama. His other interests consist of collecting contemporary fiction and indulging in a gruelling set of tennis.

Acting Junior Dean Guthrie

Affable, young, and very popular, William S. Guthrie is Acting Junior Dean of the Arts College. Before the war, he spent most of his time at his log cabin in the hills. Besides raising his three small boys, he dotes especially on his wife's chocolate cake.

An outstanding student when at Ohio State, Guthrie was a member of Sphinx, Student Senate, Chief Justice of Student Court. A member of Phi Eta Sigma, he was president and secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and president of Ohio Union board of overseers. He was also a member of Kappa Sigma. Prior to his appointment as Junior Dean, he was assistant Dean of Men and Director of Men's Employment. He was for two years director of the federal student aid program in Ohio. He supervised the placement of students in some 1300 NYA positions allotted to Ohio State. A graduate of North High School, Columbus, he has found work for many students.

Acting Secretary Parker

Professor William R. Parker, goodlooking, pleasant, and a keen humorist, is Acting Secretary of the College of Arts and Sciences. At the present time he is quite busy running between University Hall and Derby Hall, where he still teaches English.

A mean ping pong player and ardent collector of books, Professor Parker is the author of many articles and many reviews dealing principally with the works of John Milton. His spare time is occupied with the writing of a biography of John Milton. A former instructor at Northwestern University, Professor Parker became interested in John Milton when as a research student he attended Oxford University in England. From Oxford in 1934, he received the bachelor of letters degree which is equivalent to the doctorate in an American University. He received degrees from Roanoke College and Princeton University.

ARTS COLLEGE COUNCIL

The Arts College has undertaken numerous vital activities. The council has sold war stamps, and contributed blood to aid the war effort. The projects' committee planned a panel discussion on post-war problems, and sponsored the Towle Silver Display in order to add to the treasury.

CHI DELTA PHI

The original chapter of Chi Delta Phi was founded in 1901. The primary aim of the organization is to foster an interest in creative writing among its members. The society sponsored lectures by famous poets and authors, and in the past has presented talks by many of them.

ELIZ. BLACKWELL SOCIETY

Elizabeth Blackwell Society, honorary for women majoring in biological science, honors those students who have attained a scholastic average of 2.3 or over. The purpose of the organization is to bring together women students with a common interest in technical knowledge.

ETA SIGMA PHI

Eta Sigma Phi, women's latin honorary, participated in many varied activities. As a project this year, a play was translated into latin and enacted by members of the group. Work on the Eldon Library, for classical languages, was completed this year.

PHI LAMBDA UPSILON

ROW ONE: Schaeffen, Kuivila, Hall, May, Magerlein, Herndon, Carlson, Looker, Milligan, Hussey, Lee, McDowell.

Phi Lambda Upsilon is a chemical honorary fraternity, primarily for graduate students. The scholastic requirements are about 3.5 for graduates and slightly higher for undergraduates. Eta chapter holds monthly dinner meetings and an annual dinner-dance in honor of its new initiates.

PHILOMATHEAN

Try-out qualifications for women students interested in creative writing were made available during the autumn quarter and initiation into the Philomathean Literary Society was held during winter quarter. The members of the organization compiled a yearbook of original manuscripts.

TOP ROW: Eppley, Benson, Hauser, Smith.
ROW ONE: Foster, Adams, Dorsey.

SPANISH CLUB

The "good neighbor policy" has been the tradition of the Spanish Club. As a feature of each meeting, the group sang Spanish songs and listened to the latest South American records. At several meetings, representatives of the Latin Americas gave picturesque accounts.

STUDENT CHEMICAL SOCIETY

The Student Chemical Society is open to all students who have an interest in the science of Chemistry. The Society maintains a regular schedule of lectures on general scientific subjects, visits laboratories, and has many social meetings. An annual affair is the Exhibition of Chemistry.

THETA SIGMA PHI

Five girls were initiated into Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, during winter quarter. Dr. Foster Rhea Dulles of the history department was guest speaker. The major event was the annual Matrix Table sponsored by the Columbus Alumnae chapter. The entire campus chapter was invited en masse.

ZETA PHI ETA

Chi chapter of Zeta Phi Eta, National speech professional fraternity, was established in 1941. The outstanding activity this year was the production of "Nine Girls" in University Hall. The annual national convention, having been abolished this year, Zeta members purchased war stamps and bonds.

PRATT & WHITNEY

Scholarships

Ohio State University is one of ten universities which the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Corporation selected as training schools for Engineering Aides. Ohio State was chosen by the company because of the fine record the university's graduate engineers had already established.

Seniors and graduate students interested in the Engineering Fellowships were interviewed by a representative of the company during spring quarter of 1943. Under the auspices of the Arts College with Mr. Guthrie as coordinator, the four quarter curriculum began in June, 1943, and will be completed at the close of spring quarter, 1944. General courses in chemistry, mathematics, physics, drawing, metallography, mechanical engineering, and industrial engineering were arranged for the fellowship students. Upon the completion of the course, the girls will receive two months additional training.

DISTRIBUTION and business services will be important fields of work in the world of tomorrow. Manufacturers will increase production. Men trained in commerce will direct the movement of goods from points of production to points of consumption. Sales and advertising will be intensive. Airplane, railroad, and shipping companies will supply transportation services. Banks and investment companies will finance the gigantic industrial machine. Accountants will provide the records on which business policies are based. Graduates of the College of Commerce and Administration will be participants in business activities of tomorrow.

Commerce

THE POSTWAR AIR

College of Commerce

The College of Commerce and Administration was established by the Board of Trustees in 1915. In 1923 the College was organized on a four-year basis.

In comparison with other commerce colleges in the United States on the basis of 1943 enrollments, Ohio State ranks first. Second in position is the College of Commerce at the University of Indiana.

The purpose of the College of Commerce is to provide professional training in business fields. Curricula are available in the following fields: accounting, air transportation, finance and banking, foreign commerce, industrial management, marketing, retail merchandising, public administration, public utilities, secretarial service, and social administration. The College provides for a general business course with specialized sequences in many business fields.

The enrollment in the Autumn Quarter, 1943, was 757. This is a 54% decrease over the autumn of 1942. Statistics indicate that the College has suffered less than a national average would indicate.

War-time problems, particularly those associated with various economic controls such as price-fixing, rationing, wage stabilization, and the like, have resulted in numerous calls from organizations, business firms, and individuals, for guidance and assistance. These requests have been met as fully as possible by the resident staff, as an additional service to the public.

During the war period the College has been called upon to make a large contribution to the Army Specialized Training Program in the teaching of geography. This activity has absorbed a large proportion of the teaching staff during the past year.

Important though its various activities may be during these months and years of war, the college looks forward to the opportunity of being of perhaps greater service after conflict is ended. The problems arising then in accounting, business organization, economics, geography, social administration, and sociology will be most challenging to the various departments and members of their respective staffs.

Dean Weidler

Dean of the College of Commerce and Administration is Walter C. Weidler. An outstanding graduate of Ohio State University, he was the receiver of awards here and at Harvard University. Beside being instructor and professor in Business Organization at Ohio State, Dean Weidler has been professor of Merchandising at Tulane University and a visiting professor at Northwestern. He is the co-author of two books, The Principles of Marketing and Introduction to Business Management. Dean Weidler holds membership in Alpha Kappa Psi and Beta Gamma Sigma fraternities.

In his spare time, he enjoys reading, fishing and gardening. He is anxiously awaiting the time when he can go to Canada to fish. Dean Weidler likes the spirit of good fellowship to exist wherever he is and in whatever he does. Dean Weidler has one pet peeve. He dislikes people who take themselves too seriously.

Junior Dean Reeder

Junior Dean Reeder, a graduate of Ohio State, is a man with many activities. As army service representative on the campus, he has written 229 military memoranda. He had represented the Navy and the Coast Guard. A member of Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity and Phi Beta Kappa, he is the director of freshman week. During his vacations, he divides his time in working on the freshman week program and leisure activities. In his leisure time he works in his victory garden and listens to music on the radio. Golf and bridge are two activities which especially appeal to Junior Dean Reeder. Radio comedians and the singing commercials do not appeal to him. When he first came to the Ohio State campus, he was connected with the library. It was then he published articles in the library field. When connected with the College of Commerce, he published articles on business and educational research work.

Secretary Held

A most distinguished man can be seen sitting behind his desk in the College of Commerce. That man is vandyke bearded Felix Held, Secretary of the College of Commerce. Secretary Held first began serving in his field as Dean of the College of Emporia, Kansas. He then received his Ph.D. at the University of Illinois. Graduate work prior and subsequent to this time was spent by Held at the University of Chicago, Berkeley University, and the University of Paris. Secretary Held served as Executive Secretary for the Federal Food Administration of Ohio and later acted as Executive Secretary of the Council on National Defense of the State of Ohio during World War I. For eight years, he has been a member on the lecture staff for the National School of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The Secretary's hobbies are centered upon gardening, wild life, and poetry.

COMMERCE

COMMERCE COUNCIL

One of the principal aims of the Commerce Council is to promote a closer faculty-student relationship and to unite the students within the Commerce College. The constitution of the Council was revised, abolishing the necessity of petitions for prospective members.

ALPHA SIGMA LAMBDA

TOP ROW: Knobloch, Miller, Bristow, Erwin, Bacon.
ROW ONE: Hartley, Reinbolt, Rense, Artman.

In the spring of 1943, seven girls founded an accounting honorary, Alpha Sigma Lambda. The high spot of autumn quarter was the initiation of six new members. The program for the year included lectures, round table discussions, and informal meetings with Beta Alpha Psi.

PHI CHI THETA

Phi Chi Theta was organized to promote the cause of higher business education and training for all women, and to foster high ideals for women in business careers. Each spring, Phi Chi Theta awards a key to the girl with the highest scholarship record and adds her name to a plaque.

BETA ALPHA PSI

Membership to Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting fraternity, is restricted to juniors and seniors majoring in accounting. The high standards which this group upholds, coupled with its achievements, have made it one of the goals of those who plan to enter the field of accounting.

SIGMA ALPHA SIGMA

Sigma Alpha Sigma, the professional sorority of the School of Social Administration, sponsored many worthwhile projects, among which were the sale of Tuberculosis Seals, war bonds and stamps and participation in the War Chest Campaign.

Sociad, student organization of the School of Social Administration, began the year with a gala lawn party during Freshman Week. This event was so successful that it will become an annual affair. Meetings were held bi-monthly. The school paper, Sociad-Monthly, was published.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA

"The purpose of this association shall be to encourage and reward scholarship and accomplishments in the field of business studies among the students and graduates of collegiate schools of business; to promote the advancement and spread of education in the science of business and to foster principles of honesty and integrity in business practice." This is the prime aim of Beta Gamma Sigma, scholastic honorary and one of the highest honors to be achieved in the College of Commerce.

Formerly there were only male members in the organization, but in 1933, Gamma Epsilon Pi, women's commerce honorary, merged with Beta Gamma Sigma. Members are selected from the upper ten percent of the senior class and upper three percent of the junior class on a basis of scholastic achievement.

Beta Gamma Sigma is the only national commerce honorary in the United States and can only be established in schools belonging to the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

Every year during the spring quarter, Beta Gamma Sigma sponsors a scholastic achievement dinner for all freshmen in the College of Commerce who have a point-hour ratio of three points or better. At the end of spring quarter, the honorary places a plaque in the Commerce Building, bearing the name of the most outstanding scholar in each freshman class.

Because of the unusually low enrollment in the university, the number of students initiated this year was the lowest in over twenty years. The juniors who were initiated last year are now in the armed forces. However, Beta Gamma Sigma has continued to carry on and uphold the many traditions, high ideals and high scholarship which it has always exemplified on the Ohio State campus.

TODAY, the bombers thunder out across the channel, piloted by clean-cut youngsters who but yesterday were squaring X's and Y's in school and college classrooms. Far out across the rolling Pacific, on Tarawa and Guadalcanal and Kwajalein, the helmeted men in khaki are making history instead of studying it, and their grades are good—as Tojo's men will testify. On the home front the lighted windows of factories blaze throughout the night, and men and women apply their newly learned skills to the turning out of the endless stream of guns and ships. Back of all the fronts stands a nation's school system, dedicated to the task of training citizens for the hour of crisis.

Education

College of Education

The College of Education is the division of the University which is responsible for the education of teachers for elementary and secondary schools. It trains students for the positions of principal, supervisor, school nurse, and psychologist. The college also offers curricula leading to the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts, and Bachelor of Science or Occupational Therapy.

The purpose of the college is to assist the students in the acquisition of a knowledge of the branches which he wishes to teach, to develop skill in the use of efficient methods of teaching and supervision and to develop a professional attitude toward education. The College of Education is one of the most progressive colleges in the University. It not only offers the finest courses possible, but also maintains a general information bureau, a complete statistics bureau, and a complete placement service. The College of Education was established in 1907 pursuant to an act passed by the State Legislature the preceding year. Exceeded only by Teacher's College, Columbia University, the College of Education at Ohio State now has the second largest enrollment of any College of Education in the United States.

Besides theoretical work, the college offers the opportunity for students to observe teaching methods and supervising at University School. This school employs modern, psychological teaching methods. At University School all traditions and precedents are tested before they are put into practice. The standards are so high that any eastern school accepts its graduates without examination.

Like most colleges, except those which prepare for types of service needed by the armed forces, the College of Education has suffered recently a decrease in enrollment, but this reduction has been proportionately much less than in other colleges of education the country over. In the past four-year period, the enrollment of men students has fallen from 833 to 106 (in the Winter Quarter, 1943-1944), while the number of women students has decreased only one-fifth during the same four-year period, and only five per cent during the past two years. Perhaps the enrollment of women students has kept up, in part, because they regard teaching and other kinds of educational work as social service which are essential during the war and the post-war period, and rightly consider themselves as patriotically employed while preparing for this work.

Dean Klein

Dr. Arthur J. Klein, Dean of the College of Education since 1937, has had unusual opportunity to study the American scene in higher education.

His student experience, his teaching, and administrative activities have been in schools of varying types and size, private and public-supported.

He was born at Sturgis, Michigan and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Wabash College. From Wabash he went to Union Theological Seminary, where he received the Bachelor of Divinity degree. The same year he received the Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. He later obtained his Doctor of Philosophy from Columbia and served on the faculties of various universities. From 1915 until he came to Ohio State, Dr. Klein was associated with various governmental agencies in Washington in connection with their educational programs. Dr. Klein's hobby is especially centered upon stamp collecting.

Acting Junior Dean Mooney

Acting Junior Dean Mooney's educational career has been marked with extreme variety. He was born in Lebanon, Ohio and received his Bachelor of Science degree in education from Miami University. He then accepted a position as national traveling secretary of the Beta Kappa social fraternity. Later, Mooney attended Yale University and received his Ph.D. in Education. Immediately after his departure from Yale, Mooney accepted a position as Assistant Director of Ohio's N.Y.A. program serving in that capacity until 1937. He became associated with the University in 1938 and served in the Bureau of Educational Research.

Mooney's interests are centered around field work in the study of personalities as applied to education. His favorite hobby is photography and one of his most emphatic dislikes is too much watermelon or lemon meringue pie topped with whipped cream and crushed peanuts.

Secretary Bennett

Tall and sedate is Raymond D. Bennett, Secretary of the College of Education. The proud possessor of three degrees, he received the Bachelor of Arts from Otterbein, the Master of Arts from Teachers College, Columbia University, and the Ph.D. from the Ohio State University.

Before coming to Ohio State, he was principal of Westerville High School and also principal of Athena High School in Athens, Ohio. At Ohio State he was an instructor in Education and later became the supervisor of practice teaching. He is now the assistant professor of Principles and Practice of Education. Dr. Bennett is a member of Phi Delta Kappa fraternity.

While not busily engaged with his duties in the College of Education, Dr. Bennett can be found near the University Golf Course indulging in a game of golf. One of his pet peeves is the person who gets out of a car on the left hand side.

DELTA PHI DELTA

This year eighteen students qualified as new members to Delta Phi Delta, national fine arts honorary. Many outstanding alumni were present at both the initiation banquet and the pledging ceremony.

The group functioned successfully with Dixie Westbrook as president and Miss Hester Robinson, instructor of the Fine Arts department, as advisor. The bi-weekly meetings held throughout the year were alternately business and social. Informal meetings served to develop fellowship among the students and faculty.

Delta Phi Delta strove, as always, to encourage an appreciation of fine arts among the student body. The main project was a gala Christmas sale and exhibit of the art work of students and faculty. The proceeds of this sale were used for chapter expenses and for charitable purposes. Spring quarter another exhibit of the work from all the Ohio chapters of Delta Phi Delta was held.

The members found time aside from their regular projects to participate in war service activities. They were active in the Student War Board office and lent their talents to making posters for the U.S.O.

PI LAMBDA THETA

Pi Lambda Theta is the scholastic honorary for junior and senior women. The members are selected on the basis of scholarship and ability. The culminating events of the year were the joint meeting with Phi Delta Kappa, men's education honorary, and the annual picnic.

The 1943-44 season of Pi Omega Pi, national education honorary, was studded with many activities of professional interest. Among the most interesting programs presented were a movie and business machine demonstration and a discussion of teaching aids in Columbus high schools.

ROW ONE: Cohan, Jones, Schmuck, Derby, Corey.

A new organization on the campus, the Student Occupational Therapy Association, celebrated its first anniversary at the beginning of fall quarter. Consisting of all the students enrolled in the occupational therapy curriculum, the organization increased from a small club of six members to a flourishing group of sixty.

The purpose of the association is to foster a professional attitude among the students, and to further the development of Occupational Therapy. The bi-monthly meetings of the club are of an educational and social nature. Some of the interesting programs included a veteran of Pearl Harbor who spoke about the field of occupational therapy in the war today, and several other enlightening lecturers.

A constitution has been formulated and under the leadership of the president, Mildred Schwagmeyer, the club is looking forward to many more successful years.

DURING the past century scientists and engineers have made greater progress in the control of materials and the forces of nature than has been made in any equal period of time in the history of the world. The contribution of the student engineer has been outstanding. When hostilities cease the student engineer will contribute a large share to the reconstruction of a world impoverished by the ravages of war. He must be prepared by training and practice to understand the social implications of his work. In this way alone may we expect a better world to rise from the devastation which we witness today. The good will and cooperation of all men will be needed.

May we have such unity.

Engineering

College of Engineering

In the years preceding the Civil War there were, including the U. S. Military Academy, only a half dozen schools in all the United States offering engineering instruction in a formal manner. Today there are over 150 colleges or schools of engineering in the country.

In 1835 four young men received the first degree in civil engineering ever conferred in the United States. In 1941-42 around 14,000 engineering degrees were conferred by the various technical schools of the country.

In 1862 while the United States was in the midst of the Civil War, President Lincoln signed the Morrill Land Act, thereby authorizing the establishment of the Land-Grant Colleges and Universities. The Ohio State University is one of these land-grant colleges of which there are more than 70 in the United States. The Morrill Act provided for the "endowment, support and maintenance of at least one college, where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts." In 1870 under the provisions of this act the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Ohio was created by the State Legislature. The name of the new College was changed to The Ohio State University in 1878. In 1882, just four years later, the College of Engineering was established. Today the college ranks fifth in point of enrollment among the engineering colleges in the land grant universities.

The College offers the following types of engineering instruction: Aeronautical, Agricultural, Ceramic, Chemical, Welding, Petroleum, Civil, Electrical, Industrial, Mechanical, Metallurgical, and Mine. The curriculum includes Architecture and Landscape Architecture and Engineering Physics.

The function of a state-supported college of engineering may be thought of as being three-fold; it should provide for training of students for the practice of the profession, maintenance of modern equipment and a competent faculty, and contribution the progress of engineering through research.

The College, ever since its founding in 1882, has endeavored through these functions to be of the greatest possible service to the people of Ohio.

Dean MacQuigg

Dean Charles E. MacQuigg was born in Ironton, Ohio. He had a particular interest for engineering and received his E.M. degree from the Ohio State University. After graduation, MacQuigg accepted a position with the Anaconda Copper Mining Corporation as a construction engineer. During World War I, he was commissioned a Captain in the Ordnance Corps. In 1937, MacQuigg was named Dean of the College of Engineering of the University. The University Experiment Station is under his direct supervision and is engaged in chemical warfare research.

This jovial individualist is a lover of the outdoors and camping. His favorite hobby is photography. MacQuigg is a member of Sigma Xi and Tau Beta Pi, honorary fraternities. At present, he retains a commission of Lt. Colonel in the Ordnance Reserve Corps but was deferred from active duty to continue research, which will aid our war effort to final victory.

Junior Dean Turnbull

Junior Dean William D. Turnbull, who received a degree in civil engineering at the Ohio State University, enjoys illuminating manuscripts and reading about the origin and development of the alphabet. A professor in engineering drawing for eighteen years, Junior Dean Turnbull drew the base map of Ohio from which the official railroad, land subdivision, geologic, and highway maps were made. At some time in his life, Junior Dean Turnbull has held the positions of engineer of Catlettsburg, Kentucky, draftsman for the Ashland and Ironton Bridge Company, and of topographic engineer with the Ohio Cooperative Survey. At one time he was vice president of Ohio State's Faculty Club. He has been active in the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education and other engineering groups. In his spare time he works in his rose garden. In addition to his interest in roses, he enters milking contests.

Secretary Jones

Secretary Lawrence D. Jones is known to most of his friends and students as a keen humorist and loves to tease people. He was born in Noblesville, Indiana and attended Ohio State University where he received his C.E. degree. Secretary Jones not only engages in his secretarial duties in the College, but he also serves as professor of engineering drawing.

During the spring quarter, Jones was named the ASTP co-ordinator, succeeding Dr. Norval Luxon who was appointed Director of the Twilight School.

Although various activities take up most of his time, Secretary Jones likes to read history. He is especially interested in the Civil War battles and makes maps of the various engagements. Favorite sports are football and basketball, and favorite team is O.S.U., of course.

The ultimate goal of every engineer is the highly coveted honor of membership in Tau Beta Pi. To be eligible for consideration, a junior is required to be in the upper ten per cent of his class, and a senior must be in the upper twenty per cent of his class. Election to this national fraternity is dependent upon three qualifications, namely—scholarship, personality, and character.

"To mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates in engineering or by their attainments as alumni in the field of engineering, and to foster a spirit of liberal culture throughout the engineering colleges of the America" is the purpose and endeavor of Tau Beta Pi.

Meetings were held every other week and were highlighted by various well-known lecturers speaking on both technical and non-technical subjects. The organization cooperates with the College of Engineering in all of its activities.

A recognition smoker and the traditional Officers' Banquet were two of the many outstanding social activities of the group.

AM. INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

TOP ROW: Clark, Allen, Powell, Robinson, Lacy, Christian. ROW THREE: Coert, Sluizer, Bostwick, Aikele, Young, Marshall, Havely. ROW TWO: Gurkulis, Mitchell, Strahl, Kackenmester, Johnson, Montgomery, Smith, Daniels. ROW ONE: Miller, Koffolt, Bailey, Withrow, Herndon, Wilson, Lerner.

The Student Branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers seeks to bring together members of the Chemical Engineering class and the faculty to promote a feeling of comradeship. This is accomplished by many social activities and meetings.

SIGMA GAMMA EPSILON

Sigma Gamma Epsilon is an honorary fraternity for students of mining, metallurgy, ceramics, and geology. The social activities included many dinner meetings, stag parties, smokers, and were climaxed by the annual dance at which Eleanor Smith, sweetheart of the fraternity, was presented.

SOCIETY OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

The purpose of the student branch of the Society of Automotive Engineers is to keep the student abreast with the developments made in the aircraft and automotive industries. Many outstanding speakers, faculty members, and professional films were presented during meetings.

SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

Weekly meetings were held by the student branch of the A.S.M.E., at which speakers were presented and movies were shown. Lectures by leading industrialists throughout the country added to the well-rounded program. The social events were curtailed due to the war.

THE Medical Sciences (Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, and Veterinary Medicine) are expecting changes in the postwar world and are preparing to meet them. The Medical Sciences have never been stagnant but have continued to grow and develop throughout the years. The future promises advancements far greater than those which have occurred in the past. Isolationism is disappearing in all phases of human experience and human behavior. The Medical Sciences of tomorrow will be worldwide in scope because public health cannot be optimum in any one country when disease flourishes in other parts of the globe. Today and tomorrow, Medical Science will alleviate human suffering in war or in peace.

Professional

College of Dentistry

The present College of Dentistry was established in 1890 as the dental department of the Ohio Medical College. It continued as the dental department of Starling-Ohio Medical College when Ohio Medical College and Starling Medical College were merged in 1907. By act of the State Legislature in 1914, the dental department of Starling-Ohio Medical College became the Dental College of Ohio State University. Until 1925 it was housed in the north side of what is now White Cross Hospital. In that year it was moved to its present location in Hamilton Hall.

From the standpoint of enrollment the dental college is fifteenth among the 39 dental schools of the United States. It was one of the first to adopt the requirement of two years of predental training and one of the first to be accredited by the New York State Board of Regents.

The prime purpose of the college is to train dentists, but in addition it conducts post-graduate courses for dentists in practice and offers graduate work in cooperation with the Graduate School leading to the degree of Master of Science in Dentistry.

The college curriculum is based on the recommendations of the Curriculum Survey Committee of the American Association of Dental Schools. This is the guide and basis for all of the dental schools in the United States and Canada since this report was published in 1939.

The enrollment, previous to the war, averaged about 200 but has now increased to 259. Of this number all excepting six are members of the armed forces, the great majority in the army. Since 1942 the dental college has been on an accelerated program, graduating a regular class every 9 months with smaller classes intervening.

With only one other dental school in Ohio, at Western Reserve University, the Dental College of Ohio State University bears a large share of the job of supplying the dental profession with men to maintain the oral health of Ohio's citizens.

Dean Postle

Hailed as the University's youngest Dean, Dr. Wendell Postle has served as Dean of the College of Dentistry since 1938. Dr. Postle attended Ohio State and graduated from the College of Dentistry in 1923 at which time he was retained at the College to serve on the faculty. A member of the American Dental Association and American Dental Association of Colleges of Dentistry, Dean Postle has acquired nationwide fame. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi, Psi Omega, and Omicron Kappa Upsilon fraternities.

Aside from dental research, Dean Postle enjoys golf and fishing. His sons accompany him often, and he is contemplating their entering dental school very shortly.

Dean Postle now serves as a member of the University Post-War Committee and supervises the study of our future Army and Navy dentists enrolled in the ASTP program.

Secretary Kitchin

Dental research and dental surgery is almost synonymous with Dr. Paul C. Kitchin, Secretary of the College of Dentistry. Kitchin, who was born in Toledo, Ohio, received his B.Sc. degree from Michigan State University. He then attended the University, receiving his M.Sc. and D.D.S. degrees. In 1941, Dr. Kitchin was honored by an honorary degree of Doctor of Science from the Washington University of St. Louis, Mo.

Well-known in various dental circles, Dr. Kitchin is the past President of the International Association for Dental Research, secretary of the dentistry division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and an active member of the American Dental Association. His fraternities are Sigma Xi and Omicron Kappa Upsilon. Although dental research occupies the majority of Dr. Kitchin's time, he indulges in fishing and hunting trips which prove very enjoyable.

College of Law

Like other law schools throughout the country the College of Law has experienced a heavy decline in enrollment during the war period. There are comparatively few war activities which call for the special skills and talents of lawyers. Law is essentially a peacetime profession. Lawyers will play a significant part both in the reorganization of society for peace and in the administration of the institutions of that society. At present a basic program is being continued and plans are underway for additional improvements in the professional program in the post-war period.

The education offered by The Ohio State University College of Law is designed to arouse an appreciation of the opportunity which lawyers have for public service as well as give thorough discipline in the traditional information and skills of the profession. The Legal Aid Clinic affords an interesting illustration of the way in which this college has found it possible to combine social theory with practical professional training. This clinic is operated in conjunction with the local bar association and the Family and Children's Bureau, a family welfare agency of Franklin County. The purpose of the clinic is twofold, to provide more adequate legal aid for indigent clients and to supplement the regular law school training with clinical experience. The student acquires experience in interviewing clients and other persons connected with an actual case, in preparing the case for trial, and in assisting the attorney assigned to the case. He also acquires an understanding of the social aspects of the client's problems. The college anticipates an expansion of this type of realistic professional training in the post-war period.

Despite the severity of the decrease in enrollment, the College of Law at Ohio State has maintained its standards, in the face of the understandable demands for a lowering of the normal standards of legal education as a means of meeting the shortage of young lawyers. The law faculty is giving attention to this problem already. At the same time it is continuing its efforts to secure a more effective integration between its program and the pre-law school education, as well as between legal education and professional practice.

Dean Martin

Born in Turkey of missionary parents, Dean Martin came a long way to fill the position as Dean of the College of Law. An outstanding student, he was given the degree of juris doctor instead of the usual bachelor of law degree at Ohio State. He holds two other degrees.

Dean Martin is well known in the legal world. He is an active lecturer at bar and alumni meetings. He served as secretary-treasurer of the League of Ohio Law Schools and chairman of the Ohio Administrative Law Commission.

Recognized nationally, he served on part time basis as Compliance Commissioner for the War Production Board in Washington. During the days of NRA, he was supervisory attorney in the compliance division. He also served as public representative and chairman of some governmental committees to solve wage and hour problems in particular industries.

Secretary Hunter

The Secretary of the College of Law, Robert M. Hunter, is one of the busiest men on campus. Secretary Hunter divides his time between serving as Secretary of the College of Law and Special Assistant to the Assistant U. S. Attorney General. This job keeps the able Robert Hunter in our nation's capital for the majority of the week.

Secretary Hunter was born in North Lewisburg, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and his J.D. degree from the College of Law of the Ohio State University. He then attended Yale University and received a J.S.D. degree. Many of the textbooks used in the various colleges of law have come from his pen.

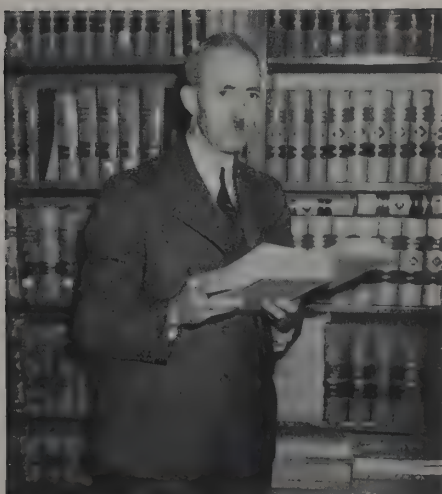

Secretary Hunter's hobbies consist of gardening and horticulture. His special dislike is centered upon onions, but then who likes onions.

College of Medicine

The College of Medicine through its predecessors ranks as the second oldest medical college in the State, incorporating all the previous medical college interests in central Ohio, standing upon a foundation of six medical schools with a continuity of college life covering more than one hundred years. Many changes have taken place during this period of time and since 1914 the present organization, The Ohio State University College of Medicine, has been in existence.

The College at all times has made an effort to serve the best interests of the State of Ohio and to graduate men well qualified in the field of Medicine.

To meet the War Emergency the College of Medicine is now on the accelerated program, completing in three calendar years the work formerly accomplished in four years. This means that a class is admitted every nine months and a class is graduated every nine months. Prior to entrance into the war 75 students were accepted in the Freshman Class. Because of the urgent need of physicians for the Armed Forces the American Medical Association requested medical schools to increase their first year enrollments by 10%. This has been done at Ohio State University. At the present time the total enrollment for the College of Medicine is 312. Of this number 228 are in the Army, 45 in the Navy and 38 are civilians.

It must not be construed that the acceleration implies curtailment of curriculum or laxity in requirements or scholastic performance. As a matter of fact the curriculum in the College of Medicine has been increased, including such subjects as Tropical Medicine, War Medicine and War Surgery.

Certain members of the Faculty of the College of Medicine have been responsible for a series of lectures on Gas Warfare and have played a very important part in the establishment of the Blood Bank Center. Over eighty of the Faculty are on military leave serving in the Armed Forces in all parts of the world, along with a very large number of our alumni.

The College of Medicine is supporting the war effort by continuing to graduate well-qualified young men every nine months and meeting the extra demands necessitated by war-time conditions.

Dean Baker

The Acting Dean of the College of Medicine and acting director of the University Hospital is Dr. Rollo C. Baker. Before assuming his new responsibilities, he was Secretary of the College and chairman of the department of anatomy. He was awarded degrees from Ohio State University and the University of Chicago. Dr. Baker has done a great deal of research and written very extensively in the field of his specialization— anatomy. He is a member of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society; the Ohio Academy of Science, the American Association of Anatomists; Phi Rho Sigma, medical fraternity and Alpha Omega Alpha, the honorary medical fraternity.

Dr. Baker enjoys going to the movies but finds little time to attend. When he has spare time, he indulges in walking. When a vacation comes his way he wants to go to Hawaii.

Secretary Palmer

Dr. Dwight M. Palmer, Secretary of the College of Medicine, is a familiar figure in Hamilton Hall. He has an intense enthusiasm for his teaching of Anatomy and is interested in anything from crackpots to cadavers. Dr. Palmer, a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, has been especially active in his research in the fields of psychiatry and maladjustment. He has served as a member of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Palmer was born in Scio, Ohio, and attended Ohio State University where he received his B.Sc., M.Sc., and M.D. degrees. In 1928, Dr. Palmer joined the faculty of the College of Medicine and was named Secretary of the College in 1943.

His aim in life is to train students so that they may enter the medical field for the betterment of mankind.

College of Pharmacy

Instruction in pharmacy was introduced in Ohio State University by the establishment of a School of Pharmacy in 1885, shortly after the passage of a State Law requiring examination and registration for the practice of this profession. Later, in 1895, when the growth of the University made it desirable to form separate colleges, the College of Pharmacy was established and has continued since that time as an integral part of the University organization.

At first the curriculum was based on a three year program of study. Later the course of study was divided into a two-year and a four-year curriculum. In 1925, when this curriculum proved inadequate, a minimum four-year curriculum was authorized, and this policy has continued since that time.

In 1940, a program of graduate study leading to the degree Master of Science in Pharmacy and requiring six quarters of study beyond the Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy degree was authorized. In 1942, a program of graduate study leading to the degree, Doctor of Philosophy, requiring a minimum of nine quarters of advanced study was inaugurated. Consequently, the College of Pharmacy is now operating complete programs of study meeting the highest requirements of the profession.

The curricula are designed to train men and women for the practice of retail pharmacy and to provide a broad scientific education which will qualify them to capably fill a large number of different types of positions in the field of pharmacy or related sciences. The curricula are arranged to permit some degree of specialization in order that students may prepare themselves more specifically for some particular branch of the profession such as hospital pharmacy, pharmaceutical chemistry, materia medica, or manufacturing pharmacy. The programs of graduate study are designed to train students for more technical and scientific work such as industrial and professional research and as members of college faculties.

The College of Pharmacy, Ohio State University, ranks among the first ten in the United States in point of enrollment. The average annual enrollment for the three years 1939-42 was 215, including an annual average of 37 women. Student morale and high standards of scholarship have been upheld.

Dean Christensen

The field of pharmaceutical research has produced some of the helpful boons to mankind. High on the list of those engaged in this revolutionary profession is Dean Bernard Christensen, noted pharmacognist and pharmacologist. Dean Christensen came to the University in 1939 and has served as Dean of the College of Pharmacy from that time hence. The Dean was awarded the Ebert Prize in 1939 for pharmaceutical research by the American Pharmaceutical Association for outstanding research.

Dean Christensen was born in Westfield, Wisconsin and attended the University of Wisconsin where he received his B.Sc. degree in 1917. He later received his M.S. and Ph.D. from Wisconsin and became the Director of the School of Pharmacy of Florida. During his leisure hours, Dean Christensen likes to engage in gardening.

Secretary Brown

Clarence M. Brown, Secretary of the College of Pharmacy, hails from Galion, Ohio. He received his B.Sc. and M.S. degrees from the University. In 1920, he became a member of the faculty and was named Secretary of the College of Pharmacy. Probably one of the favorite professors in the College, Secretary Brown divides his time with the College's secretarial duties and the teaching of classes. He does especially well with freshmen instruction and has the knack of putting a point over very well.

Phi Rho Alpha, pharmacy honorary, was founded by Brown here at the University, and he is also a member of Rho Chi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities. He has served as a representative at the United States Pharmacopeial Convention.

During his leisure time, Secretary Brown likes to engage in gardening. Although he is in direct contact with drugs daily, he has a distinct hatred for castor oil.

Established in 1926, Ohio State's Epsilon chapter of Kappa Epsilon is the largest of the ten national chapters of this women's pharmacy sorority. The purpose of the organization is to create a greater cooperation between faculty and students and to promote women in the field of pharmacy. In addition to their own social functions, the group sponsored many activities.

Rho Chi is a non-secret national honorary pharmaceutical society open to those students in the College of Pharmacy, who achieve a high scholastic rating at the end of their junior year and who possess outstanding personal qualities. Regular meetings were held throughout the year to promote good fellowship by bringing undergraduate students and faculty members together in fraternal and helpful comradeship.

There were several social functions on the year's program, including a group party held at the Pharmacy Building and numerous dinner and luncheon meetings.

Recognition came to the organization when Marie Cummins, one of the outstanding members, was awarded the annual Merck award for high scholarship in Pharmaceutical Chemistry.

The ranks of the organization were greatly reduced by the war, but the group carried on, making plans for the present as well as for the future.

College of Veterinary Medicine

The College of Veterinary Medicine was established in 1885. At that time the college had only a few students and its first class was graduated in 1887. Since that time the college has grown steadily and at the present time has the highest registration of the ten colleges of veterinary medicine in the United States. It has, as of January, 1944, 243 students. Two hundred and two of these students are in the Army of the United States studying under the ASTP program.

The curriculum consists of four years of college work, which under the accelerated program, may be completed in three calendar years. Before a student may be admitted to the College of Veterinary Medicine he must have at least one year of college work. The pre-veterinary work may be taken in the College of Arts and Sciences or at some other accredited institution. This work is required in order to broaden the students in cultural subjects as well as to prepare them for the professional work.

Because of war activities, enrollment in the Freshman Class has decreased approximately forty-five per cent; however, the decrease in total enrollment is only about seven percent.

Since the livestock industry in the United States, greatest of its kind in the world, plays an important part in winning the war, the college maintains a research program having to do with the protection of livestock from diseases that obviously have an important bearing on food production.

The government is urgently requesting an increase in the production of food-producing animals in order to properly feed the armed and civilian forces of this nation as well as to assist in feeding the civilians of allied countries.

Out of this and other war-time needs arise special problems which are receiving the full attention of members of the faculty of this college in the education and training of students for the profession of veterinary medicine.

The purpose of the college is to train young men in veterinary medicine so that at the end of the course they will be prepared to serve in many fields such as public health work, inspection of all kinds of foods, federal, state and municipal work; and to serve the civilian population as practitioners as well as the Army of the United States.

Dean Brumley

Hailed as the country's outstanding authority in the field of veterinary medicine, Dr. Oscar V. Brumley, Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine, has served in that capacity since 1929.

Dr. Brumley received his degrees in veterinary medicine and veterinary medicine surgery from the University and did post-graduate work at the Royal Veterinary College, University of Berlin.

Dr. Brumley's interests have extended beyond his own profession as shown by his membership on the Columbus Board of Health for several years. He has written several books, including one on small animal diseases, and he turns out articles regularly for scientific journals. He now retains a commission as major of the veterinary corps reserve.

Raising roses and seed flowers is the Dean's favorite form of relaxation and recreation.

Secretary Hobbs

To all those that know him, Secretary Walter R. Hobbs has always been known to be a most unassuming and talkative fellow. Appointed Secretary of the College of Veterinary Medicine in 1929, Professor Hobbs has always remained a favored member of the faculty, especially to the students.

Secretary Hobbs is well-known in his field as shown by his many contributions to the scientific journals. He is also a member and faculty advisor of Omega Tau Sigma and a member of Phi Zeta.

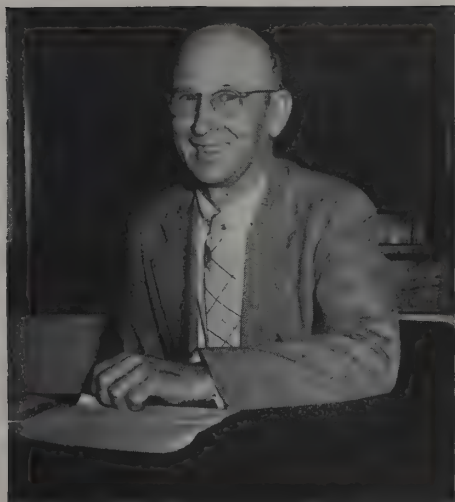

Aside from veterinary work, Hobbs enjoys working with antiques. He is an excellent furniture repairer and refinisher and derives much pleasure while engaging in this type of interior decorating.

He has the important position of guiding our future vet medics in the ASTP program.

Junior American VETERINARY MEDICAL Association

The Junior American Veterinary Medical Association, is composed of approximately two hundred and twenty students in the College of Veterinary Medicine. Pre-veterinary students are not eligible for membership, but are invited to attend meetings. The association is national in form and includes a chapter in each of the eleven veterinary colleges in the United States.

The graduating seniors are eligible for membership in the parent organization of the American Veterinary Medical Association, which is composed of graduate veterinarians.

The full social calendar for the year included a smoker, the annual Fun-Night, at which time the faculty and students joined in an evening of informality and frivolity. The year was successfully climaxed by the annual senior banquet. Dr. Farqueson was the guest speaker.

President of the Ohio State chapter for 1943 was Richard Rheinhard. His aides were Vice President, Paul Becker; Secretary, Dale Richardson; and Treasurer, James Wilson. Under able leadership, the Junior American Veterinary Medical Association completed a year, well worth the effort of its members.

The war directly affected Omega Tau Sigma this year when the boys were put into barracks. However, until Spring quarter, the fraternity experienced one of the most successful years in its history on this campus. Rushing in January of 1944 proved to be very enthusiastic, resulting in a splendid and very large pledge class.

For a professional fraternity, social functions were very plentiful during all quarters. Consisting of lively house dances after the football games during fall quarter, an eerie Halloween dance, the annual senior banquet at the Beechwold Restaurant, the lavish winter formal held at the Southern Hotel with Eddie Young providing the smooth and jump tunes, the year was climaxed by the gala formal dinner dance at the Chittenden Hotel with the dancers keeping time to the music of Chuck Selby.

In the intramural sports field, Omega Tau Sigma excelled. Participating in touch football fall quarter, the fraternity had two teams on the field, the number one team winning the flight championship.

Before induction into the armed forces, the boys directed their whole-hearted spirit to the war effort by donating blood and collecting scrap metal for the drive. At Christmas time a party was given at the house for needy and underprivileged children with the fellows playing Santa Claus, giving gifts, and presenting entertainment.

Omega Tau Sigma exemplified the spirit and initiative that is prevailing on the campus today.

The Graduate School

University graduates from each of the United States and from as many as nine foreign countries have crossed the Ohio State Oval to enter the university Graduate School in peace time. Started in 1911, the Graduate School has granted 8,700 Master's degrees and 1,700 Ph.D.'s.

Under the able direction of Dean William McPherson, the school began with less than 200 students the first year and at its peak has had 6,000 students enrolled in one summer. In 1938 George F. Arps became dean of the school to be succeeded by Alpheus Smith, the present dean.

Conducted by a Graduate Council made up of 32 members, the Graduate School cooperates with each of the

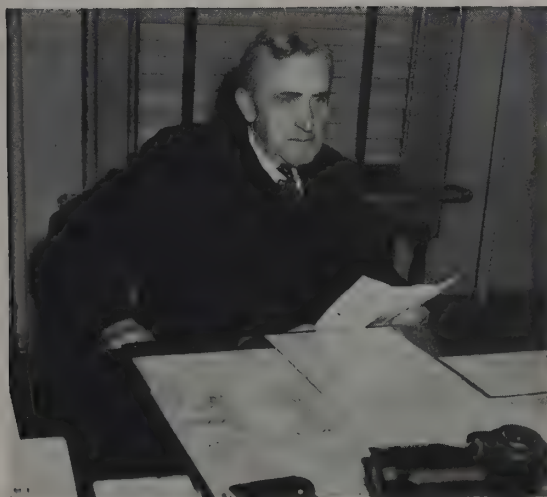

Alice A. Moran

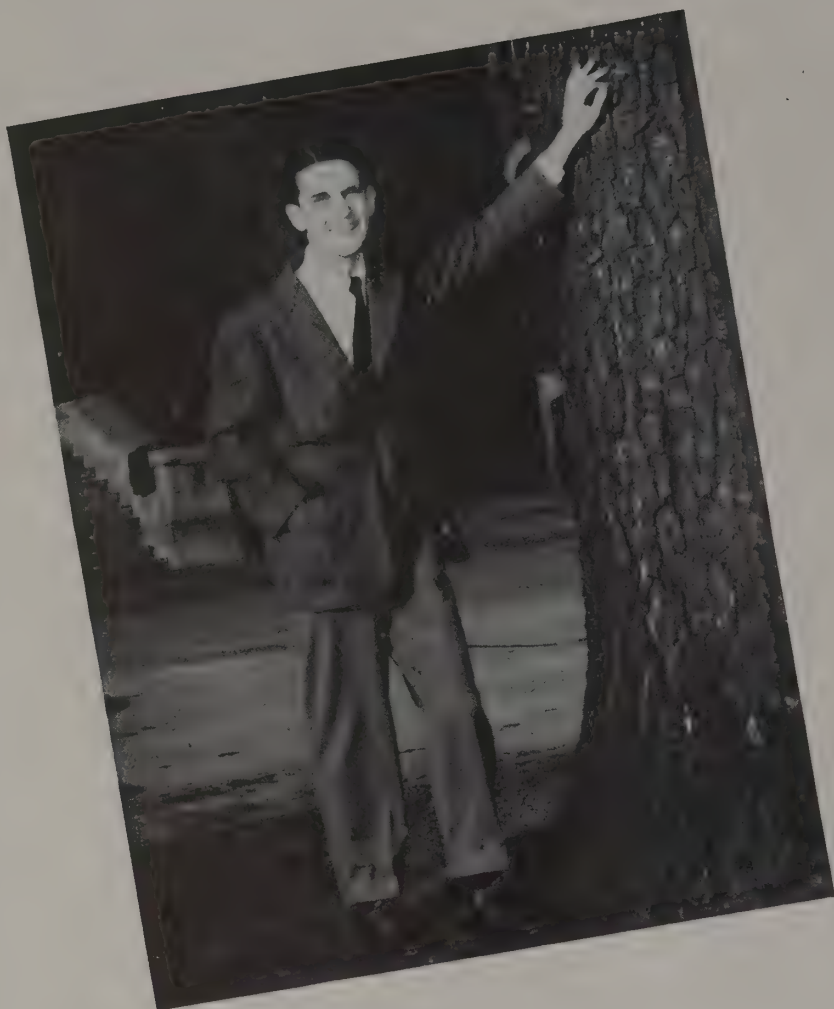

55 university departments in the granting of degrees. Graduation exercises are held four times a year along with those of the various colleges of the university.

Students representing six foreign countries are at present in attendance at the Graduate School, while the enrollment now is 500. Of the degrees already granted by the school, the field of education has led in the number of Master's degrees issued with a total of 2,323, while the majority of Ph.D.'s granted have been in the field of chemistry with a total of 382.

In the graduate student's work, emphasis is placed upon research work and the gathering of material for a thesis. The students may serve as instructors while working toward their degrees. Many of these instructors have held positions in some of the smaller colleges and have come back here for a Ph.D. degree.

Bud relaxes in a spare moment

Myron D. Miller, President

Senior Class prexy is one of the many activities occupying the time of Bud Miller. Besides being president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Bud was very active in Student Senate, Makio, Phi Eta Sigma, and Romophos. Although his immediate future is to take the color of Navy blue, he hopes to go into industrial management. Bud's spare time is devoted to baseball and the piano.

Bud manages to find some minutes for dating, although he claims his "girl" situation is a question even to himself.

Catherine M. Schroeder, Secretary

A royal queen, Kay has won a place in the hearts of many. Always full of fun, clever, and with a little joke for everyone—that is Kay in a nut shell. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Mortar Board, chairman of Women's Ohio, vice-president of the Student Senate and president of Delta Omicron, Secretary Schroeder keeps on the go. Yet she finds time to indulge in her one love—composing music. When it comes to sports, she's a golf fiend, and her game is always up to par.

SENIOR CLASS

The 1944 Senior Class—a wartime class. In their four years of college the students of the class of 1944 have experienced a four-year period characterized by many changes. The armed forces and vital war activities called many of their numbers to the far corners of the earth. Two-thirds of the class have not been permitted to receive their degrees, while only one-third have been fortunate enough to continue their college careers.

In spite of decreased numbers and morale the class has left behind a fine record of what conscientious young Americans can do even in times of stress. They have carried on with a memorial, the Victory Bell, to be hung in the south-east tower of the stadium and to be rung upon occasion of Ohio State University victories. This memorial will establish a beloved campus tradition after the war, when once again the crowds will cheer and the band will march in the OSU stadium.

The class also presented a graduation fee plan for future classes. The fee will include a general assessment to cover the many charges of graduation. The plan will eliminate much useless time and effort during the last weeks of school.

The diplomas presented in 1944 hold a very special meaning. They show not only academic work completed, but also new adjustment to a time of crisis. The seniors have studied and lived through a new problem.

Graduation in 1944 presents to a world at war a group of trained individuals with a determination to improve the universe and to bring a democratic way of life to all Americans. The diplomas represent accomplishments to be followed by new work dedicated to the future. The graduating students accept their challenge as a small contribution to the war effort.

Marjorie Boals, Treasurer

A "school marm" she wants to be! This year found her teaching at University School and upon graduation she plans to pursue this vocation. Efficient, effervescing and keen—characterize Marge. The gavel of the Student Senate rings under the capable and wielding hand of President Boals. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta, Mortar Board, on W.S.G.A. Board, and affiliate of Pi Lambda Theta are a few of Marge's activities. Athletics in any form interest her. Her hobbies are sleeping, and eating steak, shrimp, and watermelon.

MORTAR BOARD

It was to promote college loyalty, to advance spirit of service and fellowship among university women, to maintain a high standard of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college women that Mortar Board, Senior women's honorary was established. Silver signifying opportunity and gold signifying achievement are the colors of this organization.

The Old and the New

Happy Hearts

Early in spring, Mortar Board, Senior women's honorary, in the still hours of the morn beckon by candlelight serenade the most outstanding junior women on campus to become one of their midst. These women are chosen because of their accomplishments in scholarship, leadership, and service to the University.

The following day the active members walk individually across the oval and pick a neophyte who is dressed in white and wears the mortar board. Led up the long walk of the library by her predecessor, the newcomer is greeted by the president of the university.

A further ceremony takes place at Mirror Lake, where the new initiates receive symbolic robes of the government and the lamp of knowledge. Here they take the last pledge to carry on and uphold the worthy traditions of Mortar Board.

Founded at Ohio State in 1914, this honorary was nationalized in 1918. The name, ritual, and small black and gold pin of the Ohio State chapter was adopted by all other chapters.

This year Mortar Board and Sphinx cooperated to sponsor the Junior-Senior Prom. During winter quarter the annual recognition dinner for women on campus who have distinguished themselves was sponsored by Mortar Board. Such an organization serves as an inspiration to college women to give their University as much as they have to offer and in return receive equally from a rich and fruitful college career.

S P H I N X

To promote the general welfare of the University and cement the friendships of upperclass associations, and to foster a spirit of loyalty to the University are the purposes of Sphinx, Senior men's honorary which was founded in 1907. Its membership is limited to seniors who have been outstanding in campus activities and scholastic attainments. The selection of members takes place on Link Day early in May of each year while the secret initiation ceremonies take place at Mirror Lake.

On the traditional Link Day during May Week, a crowd of students gather on the steps of old University Hall. As the black-robed members of Sphinx come along the walk, the crowd suddenly becomes silent and motionless. Sphinx members amble slowly through the spectators and every few minutes a hearty cheer can be heard denoting that a new Sphinx member by a resounding slap on his back has been linked. This honor is awarded to the most prominent and academically active junior men on the University campus.

The outgoing members lead the neophytes to the steps of University Hall, where the President of the University greets each one individually. The secret initiation then takes place at Mirror Lake. Being designated as one of the members of Sphinx instills within young men the ambition to continue on the unpaved road to success in life among experienced business and political leaders.

Sphinx was founded on the Ohio State campus in 1907. It has increased in prominence and influence among campus organizations until today it ranks at the top of the list. To be linked for Sphinx is the highest award which can be accorded an undergraduate.

The Sphinx society has come to symbolize more than just an honorary. It is a living, active body of the University's outstanding students striving to do all it can to add to its revered Alma Mater's fame and glory.

Bud Miller and his queen, Margie Jones

Junior

Highlighting the college social calendar this year was the second wartime Junior-Senior Prom which was an event of winter quarter. Not to be outdone by former years it was truly a tremendous success.

Conservative decorations, a smooth and mellow band, and a delightfully jovial crowd combined to constitute an unforgettable Prom. The four honoraries, Bucket and Dipper, Chimes, Sphinx, and Mortar Board cooperated to create a romantic and collegiate atmosphere within the large gym. Twosomes responded gayly to the vivacious rhythm of Jerry Wald's orchestra. Much credit is due to Kay Schroeder and Paul Hatfield, co-chairmen, for creating a perfect ending of college days for the departing students.

Senior

PROM

Two kings and queens reigned over the gala prom. Bud Miller, Senior Class President, presented his gracious queen, Margie Jones, during intermission. Junior Class President Paul Hatfield introduced his lovely queen, Martha Rankin. On the dot of midnight the sixteen Makio queen candidates were presented to the merry crowd. Climaxing the dance at 1:00 was the revelation of the Makio Queen and her court. Cheers arose as glamorous Barbara Torow was crowned. A pulchritudious court consisting of Mary Kay Corzilius, Jewell Garson, and Mary Sebring received the approval of the delighted dancers.

In the words of Dean Park, "The 1944 Junior-Senior Prom will go down in Ohio State University history as a 'fine party'."

Paul Hatfield and his queen, Martha Rankin

Just you and I alone at the Junior-Senior Prom

OF A WORLD which lives on ideologies, the university is the heart blood. Thus, the totalitarian state kills its university to live; the democracy kills it to die. Look then, America, to your university—look to her graduate schools, to her laboratories, to her faculty. Above all, look to her underclassmen, for here are the seeds through which she will live tomorrow as she does today. See that she sow not those seeds along the wayside or on stony ground or in thorns, for she would that her return be not a hundred, but a thousand-fold.

JUNIOR

Soldier takes a bow

Paul M. Hatfield, President

Paul Hatfield, president of the Junior Class, is now a Private First Class in Uncle Sam's army and working "all out" to become an M.D. While still a civilian student, Paul enjoyed participating in such school activities as Romophos, Strollers and 1943 Homecoming committee. One of his finest attributes is his ability to organize students. His biggest thrill was when he was given the privilege of wearing the Scarlet and Grey for O.S.U. on the track team.

Leona F. Horwitz, Secretary

Big shiny brown eyes and a quick step characterize Leona Horwitz, Secretary of the Junior Class. Activities fill out her busy day. Lee is general chairman of Links, a member of Pi Lambda Theta, education honorary, participates in Women's Ohio, and holds a chair on W.S.G.A. Board. As to future plans—she hopes to teach Spanish and English in a little red school house in Connecticut. Ice-box raids in the early hours of the morning fill her with delight.

1942 found us Freshmen—green and exuberant who didn't know very much, and loudly displayed our ignorance. Everything was new to us that year. Perhaps that is why everything remains so vividly in our memories.

During our sophomore year the campus seemed to grow smaller. The more we became acquainted with it the more it diminished in size, even though in reality it was expanding. We integrated ourselves firmly with the ways of Ohio State. The great mystery of college began to slowly unravel as we matured. Our football team won laurels as All-American. The Enlisted Reserve was summoned and all of a sudden the campus appeared to be a girls' college. Then the navy and army invaded our proud territory and Ohio State took on the aspects of a semi-regimented school.

This year many in our midst became prominent campus personalities. Jack Dugger spotlighted the football season as captain of the football team. The War Board experienced its second successful year under the chairmanship of Mary Kay Selby. Phyllis Gilberg very capably handled the publication of the dynamic Sundial. Little, but noticeable Eleanor Floyd, editor of the Makio, kept the Makio Office "buzzing" through the year. Adelaide Ginn and Carol Bretschneider held executive positions on W.S.G.A. Board. A royal Homecoming was arranged by Lovell Elliott, chairman of the Homecoming committee. Yes, we Juniors really "put our best foot forward" throughout the year.

With only one more year left we must strive to maintain the spirit of our Alma Mater and instill in the hearts of the new scholars the pride and glory of Ohio State. Nothing can dampen our ambition as tomorrow opens new doors for us.

Marylee Lane, Treasurer

Dimples, Marylee Lane, is quite an industrious maiden. All the financial matters of the Junior Class are under her efficient supervision. Extra-curricular activities such as Women's Ohio, Strollers, and Y.W.C.A. leave her with very few odd moments. The theater is her hobby and some day she hopes to follow its paths as her profession. "I'd rather live to be fifty than exist at eighty" is Treasurer Lane's philosophy of life.

CHIMES

To fulfill a need on campus for a junior women's honorary based on democracy and good fellowship, Chimes was founded in 1918. From eight to sixteen members are chosen from the sophomore class in recognition of leadership, scholarship, service to the university, and personality. Ringing of the Orton Hall chimes during initiation symbolizes the influence of the organization in college life at Ohio State University.

*The bell, symbol of Chimes

*To ring the chimes of Orton Hall
Gathered 'round the Sundial*

In the wee hours in the morning of Traditions Week those girls who have been selected to become members of Chimes are notified of this honor by the ringing of Chimes at their homes. The next afternoon the white-clad neophytes assemble at the Sundial. Each outgoing member chooses a "daughter," whom she blindfolds and leads around the campus. The initiation ceremony is completed in Orton Hall tower, where every new member tolls the chimes as her symbol of membership to this Junior women's honorary for activities.

A sophomore girl is chosen for her outstanding personality, her accomplishments in scholarship and her extra-curricular activities. To show that she has served her University and will continue to do so she is given the privilege of wearing the Chimes pin which is a small gold bell-shaped pin.

Many dinner meetings were held besides the numerous informal get-togethers. Adelaide Ginn, as president, very ably fulfilled her position.

Chimes in coordination with Bucket and Dipper sponsored a wartime Junior-Senior Prom. This furnished the main project of the year but each girl in her own capacity carried out a program in her particular field, whether it was a president of an organization or a member. Just as war production was accelerated so did these capable young women accelerate their work and effort so as to be vivid examples of ambitious and courageous American womanhood.

BUCKET AND DIPPER

To foster friendship, good fellowship, college spirit, and love of the Alma Mater is the creed and purpose of Bucket and Dipper. A Junior men's honorary society, it was established in the same year as Sphinx, 1907. Fifteen juniors chosen because of their activity and interest in the affairs of the student body constitute its membership. The traditional "carrying of the bucket" and the circus initiation are high points of the lore of the organization.

Edward S. Drake, Adviser

Throwing aside previous traditions, Bucket and Dipper greeted the neophytes this year with a stream of cold water from a bucket during winter quarter. Because of the season the swimming pool rather than Mirror Lake was the scene of the prospective members "ducking."

Members are elected to the Junior men's honorary on the basis of their contribution to the University for the purpose of upholding its standards. As an organization it is representative of young men of high character, winning personality and good scholastic standing.

Due to the call of Uncle Sam only four of the original twelve men remained on campus during 1943-1944. But these four men strove to maintain the high ideals that Bucket and Dipper has established on the campus in past years. Each of these men in his own capacity has contributed in some way to keep up the values for themselves and for those in their group who are no longer at school. Jack Dugger very ably captained the football team. A wartime Makio production was efficiently managed by Alton Rinier. Through the expert sportsmanship of Keo Nakama, Ohio State's swimming team captured many water sports titles. A super Homecoming was arranged for all students and alumnae of Ohio State by a committee under the direction of Lovell Elliott.

In collaboration with Chimes, Bucket and Dipper helped execute an outstanding wartime Junior-Senior Prom.

Though many changes have taken place Bucket and Dipper continues in traditional manner with effort and perseverance.

The ROTC Ohio Staters get their last glimpse of campus before going to O.C.S.

John Daniels, President

Before the end of the year John Daniels, prexy of the Sophomore class, became an aviation cadet at Miami Beach, Florida. John is "one swell fellow," says a fellow member of Romophos. With pleasing personality and not shy with words, John was elected president of Romophos, sophomore men's honorary. As for hobbies, sports held the first place with President Daniels, especially swimming. He was a member of ATO, Student Senate and YMCA.

Mary Ann Work, Secretary

Mary Ann Work, better known as "Worky," serves as Treasurer of the Sophomore Class. Efficiency and enthusiasm give energetic Worky the "E" award. A Mirrors affiliate, a member of Links, and a zestful Makio sophomore editor are all activities which fill the majority of Mary Ann's time. In her spare moments she participates in all sports. Swimming, in particular, catches her fancy, and she is one of the graceful "swans" of the Swan Club. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Entering the University during wartime and watching the decided changes come over the campus has not snuffed out the burning ambitions of the sophomore class to carry on and uphold the traditions and character of Ohio State. This year has witnessed their serious and unyielding spirit to "fight on the home front" as many of their fellow students are fighting on the war front.

College atmosphere is far from lacking in their midst. Sophomores have found a place for themselves and won distinction in many phases of college life and activities.

In the sports limelight was Don Grate, an ace pitcher on the baseball team and an All-American in the basketball world. Bob Bowen did his share to bring Ohio State's basketball team to the top of the Big Ten League. Working very efficiently as Sophomore secretaries on the Student Senate were Millie Rankin and Margie Reinert. There is never a quiet moment at the Chi O, Marge Hollis, that Arlington, Va., bundle of dynamite, is always in a hurry. Quite an activity woman, Marge hoards the money and business records for the Sophomore class. As President of Scholaris, a member of V.I.C., Student Senate and Women's Ohio, Marge is one of the busiest persons on O.S.U. campus. As for hobbies, she is most versatile. She likes knitting, tennis, swimming and craft work. Her great ambition—to be an occupational therapist—keeps her occupied, too.

Fraternity Affairs Office with Bill Arnold supervising. Blonde, winsome Betty Bish worked diligently as Publicity Chairman of Student War Board. As for beauty—just look at this accumulation of queens: Mary Kay Corzilius, Mary Sebring, and Elizabeth Breckenridge. Not to be overlooked were those persistent and businesslike Sophomore editors and business manager of the Makio. "Honey" Haeckl, "Candy" Candell, "Worky" Work, M. G. Standish, Mateel Preis, and "southern drawl" Wells contributed their services to the madhouse Makio office.

The climax of the Sophomore social program was the Sophomore Prom held during spring quarter. The Interfraternity and Sorority sing were tops on the program with Delta Upsilon and Alpha Xi Delta winning top honors. Truly the Sophomore Prom was an example of the spirit of its members.

iving the Golden Mirror

Forming the initiation circle

"And so our tiny golden mirrors reflect all that gay crowded college days can hold."

During Traditions Week, thirty-three Freshman girls received through the mail small, cardboard replicas of mirrors signifying their membership into Mirrors. Selection is based upon active participation in all campus affairs and outstanding work in Mid-Mirrors.

Organized in 1934 as a subsidiary of W.S.G.A., Mirrors endeavors to lend organization and advice to all Freshman women. The members are chairmen of the various committees of Mid-Mirrors. Depending upon the interest of a Mid-Mirrors girl, she may choose to enter one of the following committees: conflict, membership and finance, program, publicity, secretarial, or social. The Mirrors girl acts as a big sister to the freshman who is just entering the uncertain path of college life.

This year war projects dominated the program of Mirrors. War stamps were sold at the various buildings on campus. In meetings the girls made scrap-books for children and soldiers who were in hospitals. The Clean-Up Campaign received effective publicity through the many posters which the members made and contributed to the effort. Entering into the spirit of Red Cross work, members promoted blood donations and the rolling of bandages was emphasized. Many of these women joined first-aid classes and became very able nurses' aids.

Acting as co-sponsors with W.S.G.A., Mirrors helped arrange the Gold-Diggers Prom. Despite the alleged cries of a man shortage, every ticket was sold and the men were decorated with clever corsages.

Joining with Romophos, Mirrors also devoted much time and effort to arranging the Sophomore Prom. Regardless of the fact that the weather man wasn't too kind, the armory was filled to overflowing with couples. Don Crawford's orchestra furnished the mellow music and the program was high-lighted with the Inter-fraternity and sorority sing.

Even though war has wrought many changes to Ohio State, Mirrors has persisted in its traditional program of helping new college members find their place in campus activities. These young women are on the road to becoming America's future leaders.

ROMOPHOS

One of the first honors which may be bestowed upon a man at Ohio State is election to Romophos, sophomore men's honorary. The graduates of the class of 1932 were the organizers of this society which perpetuates its membership by selecting from twelve to twenty-five new members each spring. Men are chosen on the basis of participation in campus activities, high scholastic standing and outstanding personality.

During Traditions Week the members of Romophos appear at the homes of freshmen men and present them with a chain signifying that they have been elected as the new members of Romophos. The chains which the neophytes carry the following day symbolize friendship. The traditional initiation features a snake-dance by the new Romophos brothers, each dressed in a fez and a burlap sack.

For the past two years due to wartime conditions initiation of new members to Romophos has taken place during winter quarter. The membership has diminished but high standards have been maintained. The project of the year was the Sophomore Prom, sponsored in collaboration with Mirrors, and it proved to be an exceptional social event.

Scholaris is the freshmen women's recognition society for high scholarship. The requirements for membership are an average of 3.5 for the first quarter or an accumulative of 3.5 for two or three quarters of the freshman year. New members are initiated every quarter and the meetings are usually monthly. The major project for the year was the sale of war stamps in sorority houses and women's residence halls. "To further high scholarship among the freshmen women of Ohio State and thereby lay a firm foundation for future attainments" is the stated purpose of Scholaris.

Royalty

Barbara Torow

Makio Queen

If you were sailing down Lake Erie on a moonlight cruise, you might see a "dream" cruising along in one of the sailboats. The "dream" would be her majesty, Barb Torow, Makio queen. Barb loves the sea and everything that goes with it. If you happened to meet her during some of her spare moments, you might find her whipping together some hats of her own design.

Barb, a fine arts major and a member of Delta Gamma, is hailed by the armed forces as the "girl we'd like to draw pictures with," and of course no one could blame them.

Barb's blonde beauty is equaled by her pleasant personality. She always has a sparkling smile for everybody, and her friendliness has won her innumerable Ohio State friends.

May Queen

An ultra-alluring blonde is May Queen Jan Underwood, who is a swimming fan, all-time doodler, and lover of dogs. She rates ice cream as a topmost delicacy.

Full of ambition, Jan hopes some day to become an architect, and she is now enrolled as a fine arts and architecture major. This Pi Phi queen is a senior and a member of the Arts College Council.

Jan Underwood

Jan and jive

Homecoming Queen

Vitality-girl Dottie Neff, winner of the coveted Homecoming Queen title, is a tall, smooth brownette. The sports-loving Delta Gam queen spends leisure moments in sun-bathing, horseback riding, and rifle shooting. She has a flair for art, and her favorite food is chili. Dottie is a major in retail merchandising and a member of Strollers and Links.

Dorothy Neff

Duck, it's Dot!

Editor's King

The campus "asquire," tall, blond, brawny Bill Sergeant, may be recognized as he saunters across the Oval by his nonchalant carefree walk, his hat set aslant over his eyes and his pipe protruding from one corner of his mouth.

Definitely the "life of the party," Bill is an ardent dance fan, loves golf, radio work and dramatics. A member of Strollers, this Ph. has been in two plays this year, "My Sister Eileen" and "The Male Animal."

Bill Sergeant

"Pipe dreams"

Business Manager's Queen

A pleasing smile, blonde tresses, and a most attractive personality characterize blue-eyed Virginia M. Rohr, the Business Manager's Queen. This little "bundle of glamour" is major in psychology and also plays a mean game of tennis.

Her Alpha Phi sisters point with pride for she combines beauty with activities, being a member of Mirrors, Chimes, WSGA, and WCA executive council.

Virginia M. Rohr

"Neat net fan"

A GREAT change has taken place in the last two years. So many of the men have been called into the armed forces that most of the organizations are largely in the hands of the women. The majority are staffed entirely or almost entirely by women officers. In all their capacities the women are doing excellent jobs. The question many are now asking is, "Will they be willing to turn things back to the men when they return?" But regardless of the position women now hold in activities, they are looking to the day when men will take their place in Ohio State activities again.

School Life

Eleanor M. Floyd, Editor

Dynamic, witty, efficient, petite, and cute—combine all of these adjectives and you have Eleanor M. Floyd, Editor of the Makio. President of Alpha Phi, a member of Women's Ohio, Chimes, and Links, Eleanor is also an accomplished musician.

Guiding a major publication through a momentous year was no easy task, but Eleanor's infectious humor and affable manner kept things going at a rapid pace. Under her able direction, the staff dutifully performed their assigned tasks.

Popular Jim Brunner, gracious Dixie Westbrook and attractive Dorothy Baker were more than indispensable in the production of the 1944 Makio.

Today we are facing grave and serious problems, because today we are living in a wartorn world of strife, disaster, and chaos. Therefore, more than ever before, the 1944 Makio, edited by Eleanor M. Floyd, has attempted to portray a true and realistic reflection of life on our campus as it is today.

The task of publishing such a book as the Makio has not been a simple one. With the wartime restrictions on paper, film, and flash bulbs, it took an agile mind to find ways around various difficult and almost impossible situations with which the yearbook staff was confronted. But because we consider the Makio to be an important morale builder for civilian students remaining on campus, as well as a valuable record of military and civilian activities in wartime, tireless effort and burning ambition kept the staff going night and day.

With his infinite amount of patience and advice, Wayne V. Harsha, Publications Adviser, has been one of the major contributing forces in the ultimate production of the yearbook.

The Makio is a tradition with a wealth of heritage and is proud that it is recording and transmitting the culture and ideals of this democracy—a way of life for which many of our boys are fighting and giving their lives to preserve.

Miriam Golin, Associate Editor

Rushing from the Chemistry Building to the Ohio Union seems to be the favorite pastime of charming, unassuming Miriam Golin, Associate Editor. Chemistry Major Miriam has many outside activities, including W.S.G.A., YWCA, Chimes, Women's Ohio, past president of Scholaris, Mirrors, and most important of all is "her man," Stan.

The staff calls Miriam "Russia's gift to the Makio office" and rightfully so, because she is one of those indispensable persons so needed to get work accomplished.

Alton L. Rinier, Business Manager

A great deal of credit is due Alton L. Rinier, personable Business Manager. By means of super salesmanship and efficient promotion campaigns, 2,500 Makios were sold this year, a remarkable record considering the depleted student body, and wartime restrictions.

Despite all the work involved in canvassing the campus, conducting the queen contest, and securing advertisements, Alton found time to devote his efforts to YMCA, Strollers, Bucket and Dipper, and manage the finances for Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Slavin' as per . . .

The word "Makio" is derived from an Oriental word meaning "magic mirror" and is so-called because it is a reflection of life on the campus. The Makio is one of the oldest and largest of the Big Ten yearbooks.

The number of copies printed from year to year varies, of course, depending upon economic conditions, number of students enrolled, and other unpredictable factors. Last year 2,900 copies were printed. This year 2,500 Makios were distributed in face of a sixty percent decline in enrollment.

Alton L. Rinier, Business Manager, conducted a special circulation campaign among the ASTP men on the campus. Among the promotion plans employed was a special promotion folder mailed to the entire freshman class to make them year-book-conscious. Another plan was the subscription sales contest in which the prize was an expense-paid trip to the Ohio State-Michigan football game.

The major staff—Editor, Associate Editor, Business Manager, and Associate Business Manager—top the pyramid-like organization of the Makio. Beneath them are the sophomore business and editorial staffs, with the foundation being composed of the entire freshman staff. Every part is an integral one, aiding and strengthening, upholding and augmenting each other.

Gloria S. Guggenheim, Associate Business Manager

There is an old saying that "all good things come in little packages" which very adequately describes tiny, vivacious Gloria S. Guggenheim, Associate Business Manager.

Bursting with pep and vitality, "Guggy" was a member of the Sophomore Class Cabinet, proudly wore a gold mirror, contributes her skill and efforts to Women's Ohio, very efficiently handles the finances for Women's Panhellenic, aids the war effort through the SWAVes, and is the Vice-President of Alpha Epsilon Phi.

Anne Puchir, Business Manager.

B. Dale Davis, Editor.

Extremely loquacious, gay and witty, Anne Puchir, Business Manager of the LANTERN is crazy about the NEW YORKER magazine. Anne is a member of the Mortar Board and is the president of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary.

With a pipe stuck in his mouth, and reclining comfortably in his swivel chair, B. Dale Davis, the versatile editor of the LANTERN can easily be recognized. Besides collecting costly jewelry and pipes, he is an accomplished journalist.

Joe Halberstein, Sports Editor.

The Ohio State Daily Lantern is the official newspaper of the Ohio State University. It is published five times a week, Monday through Friday, throughout the Fall, Winter and Spring Quarters by students of the School of Journalism. The Lantern is published under the direction of Dr. James E. Pollard, Director of the School of Journalism, and under the immediate supervision of Wayne V. Harsha, Laboratory Supervisor.

Twice this year the Lantern was awarded the Pacemaker All-American rating by the National Scholastic Press Association and was adjudged one of the eight best college daily papers in the United States.

The Lantern continued as a five-column tabloid newspaper this year, a format that was designed last year. Eight pages are published daily, and on special occasions 16 pages are issued. A special Freshman Week edition was distributed last September to some 3,000 new students on the first day of the Freshman orientation program.

A campus textbook drive was sponsored in part and promoted by the Lantern during the Spring Quarter. The books were collected for and sent to American servicemen in prison camps in Europe in an effort to alleviate the dullness and monotony as well as the lack of activity in the camps.

Under the editorial direction of B. Dale Davis during the Fall and Winter Quarters and Harold C. Robinson in the Spring Quarter, the Lantern managed to continue regular publication but with a greatly depleted staff. Few men remained and the women were left to run the paper almost alone and they did a creditable job of it. Anne Puchir and Joanne Rainey were Business Managers during the year. Barbara A. Moore served as Circulation Manager.

Ohio State

Because the fortunes of the Ohio State Engineer swing with the enrollment of the College of Engineering, last year was begun with one of the best outlooks in the history of the magazine; the enrollment of the college was over 2100. However, Secretary Stimson's and General Hershey's orders changed the situation considerably. In the past year, four separate business managers have existed at five different times. Harry Carey, who took over the post when Dave Masson went into the army was called to duty in late April. Bill Schoonover succeeded Harry, and held this position until October. When the R.O.T.C.'s returned to the campus, Harry Carey returned with them and stepped back into his old job, until December 5, when he was again called to active duty and graduated in absentia. Kenneth Lacy was then appointed to fill Harry's shoes.

In October, Jere Brophy, Editor, and Bill Schoonover, Business Manager, attended the National Engineering College Magazines Associated Convention in Milwaukee. Here it became evident that the Ohio State Engineer still had one of the largest circulations of the Engineering colleges in the United States. Moreover, it was very evident that similar problems faced every staff with the degree of severity being the only variable.

Operating with a smaller staff than has been available for many years, the circulation of the Engineer has been expanded, and under Dean MacQuigg's supervision four pages dealing with local activities of the A.S.T.P. men were inserted.

Agricultural

This year the "Oldest and Largest Agricultural College Magazine" was lacking in men but not in courage. The AGRICULTURAL STUDENT weathered the year very well. The girls in the School of Home Economics proved their ability by publishing the usual monthly copies, in spite of the manpower and material shortage.

The magazine is edited entirely by students in the College of Agriculture, under the supervision of a faculty board and student representatives.

Several outstanding issues were published this year. The Farmer's Week issue carried a complete radio program of Farmer's Week, and 1000 extra copies were sent to rural communities throughout the state.

This year Betty Lindsay held the combined jobs of Editor and Business Manager.

A dinner given for members of the staff and advisors marked the climax of the year, with keys being awarded to those members who had done outstanding work.

The AGRICULTURAL STUDENT, which has not missed a single issue in the fifty years of its existence, has proved once again its ability to carry on in war as well as in peace.

SUNDIAL

The SUNDIAL of 1944 tripped its merry way in and out of probation, but still managed to keep its general standard as one of the top college magazines in the country. For the first time since 1918, the major part of the staff was almost entirely made up of journalistic aspirants in the guise of the "weaker sex." The new order on the Ohio State campus brought about by the ASTP and Navy men helped to soar the SUNDIAL sales to a record breaking peak.

The editor, Phyllis Gilberg, followed the footsteps of "her man" Howard Schwab, and was mainly responsible for the success of this year's publication. She was ably assisted by Virginia Buettel Gridley as Business Manager. When Mrs. Gridley left to take up her housewifely duties, she was replaced by a co-worker, Aubrey Block. Others who helped make the SUNDIAL tops were: Don Ink, Art Editor, and Dorothy Rannebarger, Circulation Manager. Credit is also due to the entire editorial and business staffs.

The outstanding novel feature of the year was the "Pin-up Boy" contest. Among the clever SUNDIAL themes were the Flirty Skirty, Grab a Guy and Funny Bunny issues. The active SUNDIAL year was culminated in true fashion by a banquet at which awards were made for outstanding accomplishments in 1944 and staff positions were bestowed on the worthy. The closing thought for the year is Victory in 1944.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLICATIONS ADVISER
Room No. 3, Ohio Union Building

The University Committee on Student Publications was created by the Council on Student Affairs in 1936 to center supervision of student publications in one body. The intention of the Committee was to promote undergraduate journalism more effectively, to simplify and unify the supervision of student publications, and to bring about stricter control of the business activities of various publications.

Since it is immediately responsible for them, the Committee's scope of authority includes all undergraduate publications on the campus. These are of three classes: the general publications, including The Makio and Sundial; technical or class organs, including the Ohio State Engineer, the Agricultural Student and the Law Journal; and temporary or special publications which may be issued from time to time.

The Ohio State Lantern is expressly exempted from the Committee's supervision so long as it is published by the School of Journalism. The affairs of the technical publications are left almost completely to supervising committees in the respective colleges. The Committee is concerned mainly with the Makio and the Sundial, whose policies it oversees throughout the year and whose executive officers it chooses. The chairman of the Committee on Student Publications is Dr. James E. Pollard, Director of the School of Journalism. He has served in this capacity for a number of years and has given unstintingly of his time and wise counsel for the betterment of the student publications.

Wayne V. Harsha, Publications Adviser

Wayne "V for Victory" Harsha, as he refers to himself, is very definitely the man about campus. Possessed with an abundance of energy and an infectious sense of humor, Wayne guides the Lantern to press daily and acts as Publications Adviser to the Makio and the Sundial. For funtime he reads the "Wishing Well," books on astrology and spends many a harrowing evening reading detective stories. If a poll were taken, Wayne V. would undoubtedly be No. 1 popular man on campus, and incidentally, folks, he still eats crackers in bed.

Edward S. Drake, Ohio Union Manager

"Beanie" Drake, the grand old man of the Ohio Union, is a personal friend of thousands of Ohio Staters. On campus "Beanie" personifies traditions, activities and men's honoraries.

What spare time "Beanie" has is spent in reading French, Spanish, and books on travel. An avid traveler, he has made automobile trips through forty-seven out of the forty-eight states.

Mr. Drake became the manager of the Ohio Union thirty-one years ago, and thirty-one years later he is still the mainspring in the Union activities. To all students he is the indomitable spirit of Ohio State.

OHIO UNION

Board of

OVERSEERS

Since the primary purpose of the Ohio Union is to promote a friendly spirit among the men on the Ohio State campus, there has been set up an Ohio Union Board of Overseers, who supervise the various activities of the Union. The Board is composed of students selected in recognition of the prominence which they have achieved in campus activities. There are also representatives from the faculty, alumni, and Board of Trustees.

The Board of Overseers supervises and coordinates all activities of the Ohio Union, and passes judgment on capital expenditures recommended by the manager or any other member of the Board.

Through the Manager-Secretary, the Board makes monthly reports to the President and Trustees of the University. It defines the activities of the Union according to the constitution and house rules. The manager supervises these activities subject to the approval of the Board and has charge of all matters pertaining to the supervision and maintenance of the building.

Under the direction of the Board the Department of Student Activities provides social functions and tournaments within the Union and many useful services to other groups.

Very few students are familiar with the early history of the Ohio Union. Most of the credit for its establishment goes to Aaron Cohen, '10, who early in his college career saw the possibilities and necessity for a Union Building. By obtaining the backing of students, faculty, and alumni, Cohen was able to present his plans to the legislature, which he persuaded to appropriate the required money. The building was erected and furnished in 1909 at a cost of $95,000.

The Union has been a potent factor in unifying the student body. It has served as a social center for men on the campus throughout its existence. The offices of most campus activities are housed there, as well as a recreation auditorium, game rooms, barber shop, and cafeteria.

"To err is human"

STUDENT

Despite acceleration, war and the general upheaval of the times, the Student Senate continued to conduct campus affairs as usual. The primary function of the Senate is the governing of the student body, but it partakes in and carries on numerous other activities.

Among the old customs, the Senate this year planned and carried out the Homecoming festivities, Dad's Day, Traditions Week and campus elections for class officers and queens.

In accordance with the new manner of the times, the Senate has cooperated with the War Loan drives, the Red Cross drive, the Jeep drive, and maintained its permanent committees on nominations and other campus affairs. Women's Ohio, the Senate women's committee, visited Ohio high schools again this year to encourage women to attend Ohio State.

The personnel of the Senate has undergone quite a drastic change. Now, the positions from the freshman office workers and sophomore secretaries to the secretary-treasurer, president and even the senators themselves, are largely being filled by women. They are attempting to carry on the traditions of the Senate and fulfill the trust placed in them by those who have left to make the right of such a democratic institution as Student Senate live on in the years to come. From the various activities and many accomplishments of the organization and its sub-committees—Women's Ohio and the Student Court, they seem to be doing an excellent job of carrying on from where the others left off, and we are proud to have such an organization as the Student Senate on our campus.

A woman was appointed Secretary of the Student Court for the first time in its history. Seven, solemn, black-robed students mete out justice every Friday at four o'clock. The Chief Justice is elected by the other members of the Court, and must be a Law student. The president of the Student Senate with the approval of the members of the Senate, appoints the justices who must have completed at least six quarters in school.

In all cases which appear in the Court, the defendant is assumed guilty until proven innocent. Because there is no counsel, the defendant may appeal his case at the first subsequent session after the fine has been imposed or within three sessions on presentation of the paid fine receipt. No oath is taken in the Student Court, but the truth of statements is considered and the decision of the Court is final.

Parking violations and questions of great dispute compose the dockets. Because its decisions are generally accepted as final, the Court has had the reputation of being one of the most powerful campus organizations of its kind in the country. So with the echo of the gavel resounding, justice is administered on our campus.

"Boost Ohio" is the general theme of Women's Ohio. The main function of the organization is contacting prospective women students among various Ohio high schools and familiarizing them with some of the fundamental facts about Ohio State.

A sub-committee of the Student Senate, Women's Ohio is composed of all women on the Senate. Other members are elected into the organization with approval of the president of the Student Senate. The vice-president is automatically chairman of the group. The members are selected from the outstanding women students who have gained special prominence in activities and who meet the required scholastic standard. A gala banquet, honoring the new members, is held during winter quarter.

An annual function of the organization is the May supper, which is held during Traditions Week, in conjunction with the May queen festivities. The supper is held in the Hollow and has come to be one of the most prominent events of the week, attended by the general student body of the University. The profits from the enterprise are utilized to finance the activities of Women's Ohio. In all respects, this vital group performs a distinct service on the campus.

The Student Activities office certainly lived up to the name, "Jack of all trades", with freshmen and sophomores busily working in the office at the Ohio Union.

Student Activities offered several very valuable services to the organizations on campus, by typing stencils, mimeographing bulletins, weekly newsheets, and other material. The office also maintained a route list and distributed weekly bulletins for the various activities to fraternity, sorority and residence houses.

Other equally valuable services rendered by the office are a library of modern fiction books, as well as a file of old examination papers which are available to anyone presenting an Ohio Union card.

Freshman Activities was an organized freshman group supervised and controlled by Student Activities, but was disbanded this year due to prevailing conditions.

During the Spring quarter, the sophomore appointments are made from among those freshmen who have industriously worked during the preceding year.

After 14 years of indispensable service, Student Activities has proved itself invaluable.

The Ohio Students' Party Association was founded in 1933 when a group of fraternities and sororities and independent organizations broke away from the all-powerful Scarlet and Gray. From that time on, this renowned social-business political party has been steadily growing in prestige and strength.

Emerging victoriously Fall quarter, O.S.P.A. successfully elected the Homecoming Queen, Dottie Neff, and placed three lovely attendants on the queen's court. For the second time in the history of the group, all the O.S.P.A. candidates for class officers were elected. Besides competing in the Fall and Spring elections, O.S.P.A. had numerous social activities and bi-weekly meetings throughout the year.

The administrative body of the organization had a great deal to do with its success this year. Martha McDonald very ably wielded the gavel during meetings. Assisting her were Preston Crabill, as vice-president; Ellen Jones, secretary, and Laurel Secrist took care of the finances.

The organization based its strength and consequent success on fair play and square dealings with its member organizations.

Student WAR BOARD

During this second year of war, the Student War Board has done much to coordinate the activities on campus into closer contact with the problems of war.

Autumn quarter, SWAVes, a department of the War Board, sold $7,261.60 worth of war stamps, registered 800 blood donors, sponsored five training classes for nurses aid, first aid, nutrition, U.S.O., and settlement house work.

Ohio State is the first college in this district, and one of the first in the country to have a Red Cross unit.

In February, Ohio sent many delegates to Ohio State to discuss the relationship of their campuses to the war, and the various ways their individual problems could be solved.

Representatives from all campus organizations made up two all-campus war councils.

Primarily, the Student War Board was established to be of service to those students who have the pressing desire to participate in war activities. These students have not only been of vital service to their country, but many have found that it is an effective tonic for their morale.

As its name implies, the chief purpose of V.I.C. is the dissemination of vocational information to the women students of the university and to other interested persons.

The governing body consists of the Assistant Dean of Women, six student coordinators, and three officers.

The annual vocational conferences are the climax of the V.I.C. activities. Lasting for three days with six conferences each day, and luncheon and dinner meetings, the conferences are highlighted by the mass meeting featuring a well known speaker. This year the organization was indeed fortunate in obtaining the services of Commander Dorothy C. Stratton of the SPARS, former dean of women at Purdue University. Planning for these conferences is done entirely by the members of V.I.C., from selecting the topics for discussion to obtaining the speakers.

In addition to the big three-day conference, the organization sponsors meetings throughout the year in specialized fields such as Military Service for Women, and summer job opportunities.

V.I.C. offers a chance to work as well as to become acquainted with many prominent and interesting persons.

Women's SELF GOVERNMENT Association

The Women's Self Government Association plays an important part in the social and political life of the university, by successful completion of its widely diversified activities and functions.

As a governing body for all women students in the university, the organization is headed by the W.S.G.A. officers and by a council of representatives from each class. The delegates from each class include two town and two out of town members. Also represented on the council are the Student Court, Student Senate, and the University Assemblies, along with two W.S.G.A. committees—Pomerene Advisory Board and Women's Panhellenic Association.

The varied projects of the group are carried on chiefly through its committees, among which are Mid-mirrors, Mirrors and Links.

Democratic government being the prime purpose of W.S.G.A., every coed is considered a member of the organization and may vote in the February election.

The Gold Diggers Prom, the annual event sponsored by W.S.G.A., was attended by a great many "gold diggers" and their dates.

"Geronimo, 'chutes away" could be seen on posters all over the campus during the Links' Parachute Drive. As a result of this drive, three parachutes were bought and donated to the Army Air Force.

Links, a permanent committee of the Women's Self Government Association, was so named to signify the links between sophomore, junior, and senior women on our campus; their links with the campus activities, and with the outside world. The purpose of the organization is suggested in the name—L-Loyalty, I-Initiative, N-Nobility, K-Knowledge, S-Service.

This year was an extremely active one for the members of Links, and more than ever before, Links' girls were called upon to display the qualities which are suggested by their name. Many of the girls participated in War Service work. The Hospital committee was very active in working at the University Hospital, and the Program Committee has provided many splendid programs and interesting speakers. In the early part of the year, a bridge was held at the Alpha Phi house, the proceeds of which were used for the war effort.

Links is open to all upperclass coeds desiring new interests and fields of service.

Strollers DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Nada Smith, President.

Highlighting this year's work was the production of "The Male Animal," by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, both Ohio State graduates and former Strollers' members. In a personal interview with members of the cast, Thurber granted them the right to use the original script and his cartoons from the first production. George Ulnic of the Speech Department, as director, deserves much praise for the success of the play.

Climaxing a most successful year, was the ninety-fourth production of strollers—"My Sister Eileen," written by Ruth McKinney, another Ohio Stater. Following this production, the organization gave shows and performances for servicemen's camps and hospitals.

Membership in the organization is open to all students. There is work to be done in all fields—acting, backstage, promotion and business. Associate and active memberships are based on a point system. Two large productions and variety shows are given throughout the year.

In tune with the times, Strollers was largely made up of women, and credit is due them for keeping Strollers' standards as high as ever.

BROWNING DRAMATIC SOCIETY

The Browning Dramatic Society, an organization with a wealth of tradition can profess to be the oldest women's group on campus. When, many years ago, the Young Ladies' Literary Society of Ohio State University received a letter from Robert Browning granting permission to use this name in honor of his wife, Elizabeth, the newly christened organization received one of its most cherished possessions.

Each spring, Browning presents a Shakesperean comedy in the rustic ampitheatre in the hollow by Mirror Lake. Preceding the performance, the actors form a torchlight procession around the lake. In recent years, a torch dance has become another distinctive feature of the evening. For the past twenty-six years, Mrs. Elsie Coates Kittle has coached the girls in their dramatic endeavors.

To become a member of this group, a girl must work thirty hours in some phase of activity connected with the productions.

"Twelfth Night" was announced as the choice for this year's production, and the annual Twelfth Night Banquet, celebrated in the spirit of old England, was an event greatly anticipated, even though it was modified to a celebration with the traditional plum pudding ceremony.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

The B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation has a well-rounded program of religious, cultural, and social activities. The Foundation began this year by serving 800 students and 300 servicemen.

Autumn quarter started off with a great flourish. A highly successful Fall dance was held in the Armory in cooperation with the University Recreation Council. The anticipated event was the annual Hillel Prom held during winter quarter. The Hillel Players produced an outstanding drama, "Cry Havoc." The completely female cast under the very able guidance of Mike Schwartz, gave a vivid, realistic portrayal of the valiant nurses on Bataan.

The cultural program included noted guest speakers, musical events, and movies following the Friday night services. On Sunday evenings musicals were presented.

The annual Jewish Student Fund drive topped its goal, in a campaign for immediate relief and long range planning for the war victims of Europe.

Under the inspiring guidance of Rabbi Harry Kaplan, Hillel Foundation is a vital active organization.

The University YMCA is a fellowship of men students whose aim is to serve the university, the student body, and the community in light of an ever developing Christian ethic. One of the oldest organizations on the Ohio State campus, "Y" was established in 1883.

The program consists of a wide variety of projects and activities, some of which are carried on from year to year, and others which are established each year to meet the needs and desires of students.

The basic work of the Association is done through committees working in the areas of freshman orientation, campus, social, and recreational events, study groups on religious problems and social issues, promoting inter-faith and interracial relationships, sponsoring and participating in campus worship services, promoting faculty-student relationships, and participating in intercollegiate conferences. The development of understanding and leadership in all of these areas is the underlying value of the program. An executive cabinet composed of officers and committee chairmen forms the integrating and planning body for the program.

Membership is open to all men, regardless of race or creed. Students who participate in the University YMCA are related to the national Student Christian Movement, and internationally to the World Student Christian Federation.

Emphasis on service and group responsibility for social change is made throughout the entire YWCA program. Participation in this versatile program is open to all students regardless of creed, who are concerned about giving others the opportunity for self-expression and self-realization. The scope of the program links campus with community needs and reaches out into the national and international fields of relationship.

The YWCA seeks to give women students the experience of knowing other students. Some of them have entirely different backgrounds: they may be another race, or even from another country. This opportunity comes through membership in Freshman and Underclass Cabinets or in the committees dealing with race relations, the arts, social service, philosophy, peace education and conferences. These various groups are represented on the executive council of the organization.

The most inspirational activities have been those in cooperation with other campus organizations—the Freshman Mixer, the Icebreaker, the traditional White Christmas Program, University Hour, and the Ohio Union Open House on Sundays.

Beth Leinbach,
Executive Secretary

KAPPA PHI

The motto, "Every Methodist woman in the university today, a leader in the Church of tomorrow," has become more meaningful than ever to the girls of Kappa Phi. The war has come to the organization and it has responded to the call. Many of the girls have joined the accelerated program and have already been graduated and taken their places in work aiding our war effort. Others have dropped out of school to take positions in war work, and still others have joined the rank of brides and have gone with their husbands to various parts of the country.

Social functions have been frequent, including a "Priorities Party," Founders' Day banquet. The big event was a reception for the National Sponsor and founder of Epsilon chapter, Mrs. H. M. LeSourd. The pledge group demonstrated its abilities at a "Variety Show" for the active members. Spring quarter, the annual formal banquet and dance were a huge success.

The Ohio State chapter of Kappa Phi was founded in 1921 with the purpose of uniting the Methodist girls in school in a close spirit of comradeship and to achieve the highest spiritual ideals.

A picnic was held in the knoll behind Campbell Hall along the Olentangy River on the Sunday following Freshman week. With this first event, the Newman Club began its 1943-44 program for Catholic students. Throughout the year, monthly meetings and Communion Breakfasts, weekend dances and parties, and weekly discussion group meetings were well attended by both students and servicemen stationed on the campus. The highlight of the autumn quarter's social program was the annual Blue Book Prom.

To help make the ASTP boys feel at home on the campus, the Newman Club welcomed all Catholics to join in its membership. During the year, large groups of Newmanites contributed their blood at the Red Cross blood donor center.

At the close of spring quarter the annual Senior banquet was held at which honor claims were awarded to the outstanding seniors, freshmen, and to the member who had attained the highest scholastic merit.

The principal object of the club is to give the student of a secular non-Catholic institution of higher learning, that which his formal collegiate training fails to provide, namely the ideals of a perfect education. The purposes are three-fold: social, educational and religious.

InterVarsity CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Founded in 1942, the OSU chapter of the Intersarsity Christian Fellowship has been rapidly increasing in membership. Bible study and singing were a main part of the weekly meetings.

The group did not only limit itself to these meetings, but monthly parties provided added enjoyment for all. The organization is world-wide and interdenominational.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

In December, 1923, several students who were interested in Christian Science, discussed the possibility of establishing a Christian Science Organization at this university. As a result of this discussion, the Concordia Club was organized, and meetings were held regularly.

With the permission of William Oxley Thompson, then president of Ohio State, a committee was appointed to formulate by-laws in order that the group could function according to the provision in the Manual of the Mother Church. The name of the group was later changed to the Christian Science Organization.

Selections from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, Bibles, and Christian Science quarterlies have been placed in the Art Reserve room of the main library, by the organization, for the use of all students.

Earl McCloud, C. B. S. of Texas, was guest speaker at the annual lecture, one of the foremost activities of the group.

DELTA OMICRON

Founded at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Delta Omicron, the national professional music honorary sorority, was established for the purpose of creating and fostering fellowship, developing character, and encouraging the appreciation of good music. Membership requirements are a three point in music and a two point five in academic subjects.

Chi chapter stresses the performance of the students during their college days and gives many interesting pledge and active recitals each quarter. The annual tea for all freshmen women in music was given in the early part of November, and at the annual Founder's Day banquet and initiation, ten girls became active members. Many social functions in the form of musicales and parties, highlighted the season.

A large group of the members play in the girls' dance band, which participates in the U.S.O. and other campus functions. Each week Delta Omicron sponsors a fifteen minute program over WOSU with alumnae, actives and pledges as the contributing members and soloists. Aside from participating in these activities, the girls contributed their talent to trios and solos for many campus functions.

PHI MU ALPHA

Traditional pledge parties were held during autumn quarter resulting in the initiation of several fine musicians into Phi Mu Alpha, music fraternity. Initiation was held during winter quarter, and once again the nearly depleted ranks of the fraternity were swelled.

With the addition of these new actives, many functions were carried on. At the meetings music was presented in recital form by members of the group, and recorded music of all types was enjoyed.

Four members of the active body, John C. Worley, Donald Seelbach, Ralph Tinianow, and Mario Mancinelli, have attained distinction by playing for the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra. In vocal music, the fraternity was represented by Edwin Hill, who was one of the featured soloists in Gabriel Pierne's mystery play, "The Children at Bethlehem," which was presented on campus autumn quarter.

One of the main social functions was a dinner dance, winter quarter, which was attended by all the actives and faculty members. Delta Omicron, music sorority, played host to Phi Mu Alpha with a "coke and sandwich party."

Dale V. Gilliland, Assistant Professor of Music, aided the group with his capable supervision.

The University House Assembly, a committee of the Women's Self Government Association, consisted of the presidents of university houses for women students. They met bi-weekly during the whole year to discuss the housing units and related problems.

The members are not entirely serious minded. Each quarter there is traditionally one social event for the purpose of a just-for-fun gathering. Then the annual Spring Formal climaxes all the other affairs.

Members of the organization also had varied interests in many other activities on campus. On their long coed sweaters could be found several gold Chimes' pins. Several of the gals had strong scholastic ability. They proudly wore the black and gold pins of Scholaris.

The SWAVes office received plenty of volunteer work from a large percentage of the membership. The American Red Cross also profited by the patriotic spirit of this organization. Soldier, sailor, and marine morale was important along with other war activities. Aid was given to the USO program. Miss Mary Gordon, Assistant Dean of Women, acted as advisor to the Assembly.

The main problem of freshman week turned into fun at Westminster Hall. The customary "stunt" night, teas for the girls and their parents, and informal parties helped everybody to make freinds at OSU. The big sister program helped freshmen become better acquainted with dorm and college life.

Brightening the social calendar were the dances for ASTP men stationed on campus. At the annual Christmas dinner held December 7th, gifts were exchanged. Later these same gifts were sent to the Japanese Relocation Center at Hart Mountain and to the Gladden Community House in Columbus.

Cooperation plus has been evidenced among all the Westminster girls. They had a continual war bond and stamp drive all during the year. Another continuous activity was registration for blood donations.

An open house with fellas from the Fletcher General Hospital was planned. In February the annual winter formal was held. Early in the year the girls made plans for a week end in May in honor of their mothers. The final greatly anticipated event was the annual Senior Banquet given in honor of the graduating girls.

KAPPA SIGMA RESIDENCE

Many a Kappa Sigma alumnus came back only to find the old fraternity house inhabited by forty coeds. Many tasks such as dusting, serving, and washing dishes became a familiar part of the girls' college life. In most cases all the workers made the little jobs fun, became well acquainted with one another, and were all set for a gay social whirl.

The main event was an informal tea given with four other substitute houses. Members, their guests and members of the faculty attended. Several formal parties and dances were held during the year. The four-bell affair of fall quarter was a Halloween party. The house was decorated from top to bottom with red and grey for Homecoming. The game room proved to be the main center of activity for members gathered there for many a swift game of ping pong. "Spreads" during finals week helped alleviate the drudgery of cramming.

Top scholastic honors went to Evelyn Parry, Gloria Laver, and Aholivah Medini, who were initiated into Scholaris. A basketball team and a baseball team kept the girls busy between numerous war activities.

Holly Hutchinson, the little hula dancer at the Acacia substitute residence, presented a hula dance in the fall. For weeks afterwards the ASTP boys wanted to "buy a paper doll" with "lovely hula hands."

Just like their brothers in khaki, the girls lived in good old K.P. style. Their consolation was that they could plan their own meals.

Two of the members became popular vocal entertainers at all the social affairs. They were Beatrice Schaffer and Marie Brodt, who sang with the choir in the Messiah last Christmas. Although the girls were a little hesitant about mentioning their basketball team, they did want people to know that they had one. The bowling team stacked up all the sportsworld honors. The SWAVes office received enthusiastic Acacia girls for plenty of hard work in the war effort. The gals also boosted soldier morale by helping as OSU hostesses at the USO parties.

Birthday celebrations were in order all year for one person or another. They included candles, cake, music and all. One birthday party was held in honor of Benjamin Franklin. A war stamp was charged as admission. That night old Ben really smiled from behind the dollar.

SIGMA CHI RESIDENCE

The Sigma Chi house went through a period of transformation, and then awaited the resounding of girlish voices instead of those of rugged fraternity men. It became one of a unit of five houses with meals served at the Kappa Sigma House. When the gals arrived, they found it easy to adjust to the small group in the house and made as many congenial friends as they would have, had they been assigned to one of Ohio State's large dormitories.

The first hello's progressed into unity and companionship in the form of parties. Each month there were birthday dinners for fortunate individuals having birthdays during the school term.

Everybody really entered into the spirit of fall and—Halloween. Witches and their friends had a wonderful time at a party in honor of all the weird "spirits" of the eventful eve.

The highlight of spring events was the May tea given for the girls and honored faculty members.

The girls started early as freshmen to make themselves known on the campus. Their house duties did not interfere with their feeling of responsibility in campus activities.

The Alumnae Tea for the Columbus chapter, and the appropriately named Apple Polishing Tea for faculty members highlighted the social season of the Alumnae Scholarship House. The Soldier Party, a Homecoming Dinner, and a Christmas Gift-exchange Dinner follower.

Fall elections saw Luella Rote as president, Mary Kay Andrews as treasurer, Dorothy Watson as social chairman, Ruth Deacon as Steward, and Helen Carringer as assistant treasurer. Mary Kay Andrews was capped for Mortar Board, chosen as president of Pi Omega Pi. Other offices included Minnie Weinburg, president of Hillel; Beverly York, vice-president of Eta Sigma Phi; Ruth Deacon, treasurer of Omicron Nu; and Norma Walker and Jean Young, president and treasurer of Zeta Phi Eta, respectively. Dorothy Watson and Ruth Deacon topped home economics honors as members of Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu. Virginia Wigginton was selected by Pi Lambda Theta. V.I.C. workers included Esther Gerber, secretary, Lenna Elliott, Margaret Reid, Norma Walker, and Kay Andrews. The activities of the group as a whole were well balanced and very extensive on the campus.

DELTA TAU DELTA RESIDENCE

Forty-three lively freshmen coeds changed the pitch of voices at the Delta Tau Delta "shelta" when they replaced the usual male element. Hot sudsy dishwater and dusty furniture waiting the girls only made the manpower shortage all the more apparent. Household duties claimed at least one hour a day of each girl's time.

However, they all managed to squeeze out a little time for dates, and—oh yes—studies. On the holiday of witches, ghosts and jack 'o lanterns, a spooky Halloween party was given amid weird decorations.

The first rater of the social calendar was the informal tea held on April 30 for the girls, their honored guests and members of the faculty. Several smaller social affairs during the year kept everybody busy and happy.

There were many returns on the time invested in education. There were many three point hour ratios or better. Honors were carried by Joan Bryan, Joan Bolton, Jewell Bartter, Harriet Kerr and Barbara Zuhars.

The girls were active in many of the activities and drives on campus. Those included Student Senate, War Board, SWAVes, USO parties, Bond Drives and Red Cross work.

A hilarious Halloween party opened the social season at the Phi Kappa Psi substitute residence for women. For weeks and weeks afterwards the decorations hung next to Frank Sinatra on the walls of many an overinhabited room.

At Christmas time this unit donated generously to the American Red Cross fund for books for convalescent soldiers. Santa Claus also produced a new house mother who looked so much like just another one of the girls that confused fellas sometimes tried to steal a goodnight kiss from definitely the wrong person. Ten thirty time had to mean alert time at this house.

The crowded conditions did not hamper these girls when it came to studying. The first quarter grades brought Charlotte Perkinson, Shirley Krakoff, and Janet Scannell point hours high enough for membership in Scholaris, the freshman honorary.

During the year the girls were all at sea as to whether they felt like fraternity men or soldiers. The house was a wonderful place to live, but extra little duties hinted at army K.P. However, they finally decided that the good times made up for a little work, so they mixed patriotism and college spirit.

Girls' voices echoed forth from the Beta Theta Pi house, now a part of the women's substitute residence unit. As another evidence of these changing times, each girl was assigned certain duties: dish-washing, serving meals, and telephone and house duties.

Jody Nida, house president, also served as Chairman of the O.P.A. price panel and as a member of W.S.G.A. Nurses aids included Barbara Rupp and Winnie Spore; Joan Schmutzler was initiated into Boot and Saddle. Eleanor Meyer, Nan Bixby, Phyllis Spitz, and Joan McDill became members of Scholaris.

Jeanne Kittinger, as social chairman, was responsible for the many parties. Birthday anniversary dinners were a monthly feature at the house. An informal picnic was held spring quarter. Winter quarter the girls sponsored a dance for the Navy men stationed on campus. In May they gave a tea for members of the faculty.

These freshman girls managed to correlate work, recreation, and activities, proving the ability of college women to assume responsibility during World War II. The Betas could be really proud of the girls in their house in 1943-44.

"Get togethers" from parties, bull sessions, and group sings to study halls helped every girl make the best of her freshman year.

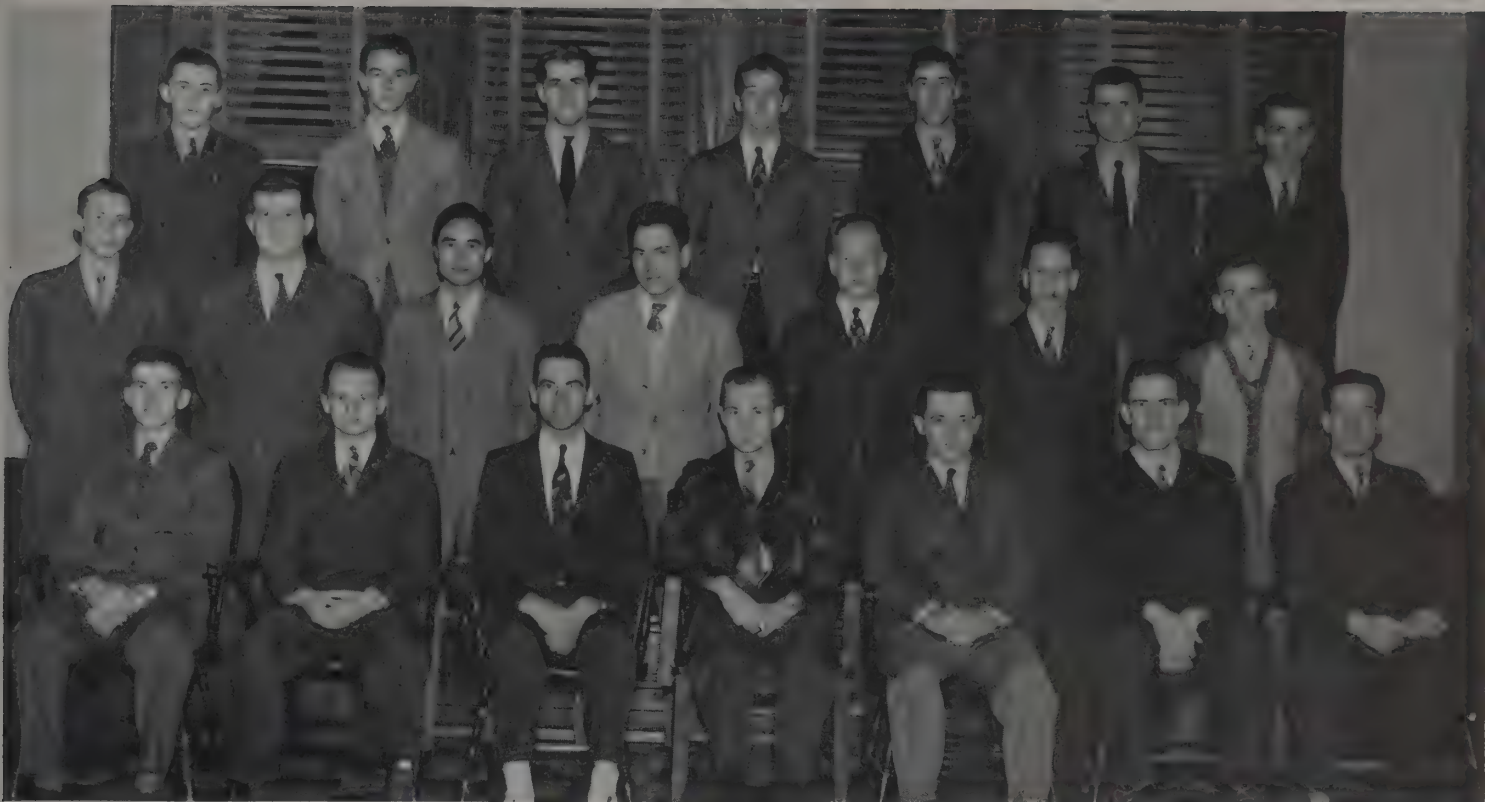

TRIANGLE RESIDENCE

"Quiet hours!" That familiar cry is still ringing through the halls of the Triangle house where twenty freshman girls, their student advisor, and house mother spent three quarters of fun, frolic, and a little studying.

This ambitious group was active in war work, social affairs, and campus organizations.

The Rochdale Co-op, Inc. was organized in 1941 for several purposes: promoting fellowship and understanding among its members, providing experience in living according to democratic principles, and providing economic living facilities.

Every two weeks at the popular Rochdale Recreational Parties held at the house, there could be found a real contribution to a democratic and zestful campus social life. The Thanksgiving Hop at the Armory marked Rochdale's first campus-wide dance. Another feature of the group fellowship was a series of house parties.

Rochdale was well represented on the fighting front with forty-eight of the fifty-six past members in the armed forces. Many of the boys held officers' positions—one in the Marines, five in the Army, and six in the Navy. The remainder of the servicemen were enlisted fighters in the Army and Navy.

The men of Rochdale Co-op had a definite purpose in their college life aside from gaining knowledge in classrooms. The Rochdalites continually strove to maintain on the home front of OSU an example of economic, social, and racial equality.

DURING the past year the Greek letter organizations on the campus have devoted unstintingly their resources and time and energy toward a war effort. Fraternity houses for the most part have been turned over to the Army men; those not occupied by the Army were converted into housing quarters for girls. Sorority houses have been bee hives of activities entertaining armed force personnel. In Greek letter organizations plans are assuming shape for continuation after the War. House repairs will be made, trophy cups will be polished, chapter paraphernalia will be trotted out from secret hiding, and the watchword of today is to prepare for tomorrow.

Once again fraternities and sororities will become working parts of a larger and a more democratic University community.

WOMEN'S PANHELLENIC

The Women's Panhellenic Association began the school year by supervising the Freshman Week rushing period. Mrs. Ray Speer with Mrs. Fritz Lichtenberg as her assistant from City Panhellenic served as counselor to aid confused and bewildered freshmen girls.

On November 5, nine hundred and seventy gathered at the annual scholarship banquet to witness the awarding of group and individual honors in scholarship. Each sorority on campus was represented.

The meetings of representatives, which are held bi-weekly, serve as a council for contacting all member groups with announcements as well as for conducting discussion centers for sorority problems of organization and rushing. The association has placed special emphasis on the war activities undertaken by the twenty member sororities, encouraging the purchase of War Bonds, the donation of plasma to the Blood Bank, and entertainment for service men.

Special committees continue to work on revision of the constitution and rushing rules. Also a committee has been organized for publishing a booklet which is sent to all new students. The purpose of this latter project, the freshmen booklet, is to present a true picture of sorority life at Ohio State University.

Realizing the difficulties confronting freshmen women in acclimating themselves to the organization of their individual and other sororities has been one of the principal reasons behind the existence of such a group as Freshman Panhellenic. Each meeting was held at a different sorority house to familiarize pledges with groups other than their own. At this time problems of rushing, initiation, and various rules for Panhellenic were introduced.

Freshman Panhellenic cooperated with the war effort by making scrap books for the convalescing soldiers. The group also sponsored a dance at the armory during spring quarter.

Freshman Panhellenic also worked with I.P.C. in the Traditional Ditch Night activities.

In the Year's work, Freshman Panhellenic tried to bring freshman women closer together socially.

One of the outstanding events of the Freshman Panhellenic Program for this year was a tea and style show held at the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house in February honoring the outgoing members of the Association. Each sorority was represented in the style show in which the girls modeled their own clothes. Socially and educationally pledges are benefited for their remaining school days.

Office of FRATERNITY AFFAIRS

Although last summer the Office of Fraternity Affairs managed to sponsor the successful All-Greek Dance and turned the profits over to the USO, most of its efforts since then have gone into dealing with the new wartime problems. The office published a Presidents' Manual to keep fraternity officers up to date on new rules. It mailed lists of fraternity members in the service to all the fraternities. It offered itself as a mailing address, a storage place for records and a general clearing house for all inactive chapters.

The position of Secretary of Fraternity Affairs was held first by Kenneth Lucas, then by Robert Zahn, and in spring quarter by Wm. Arnold. In spite of these changes the efficiency of the office was not altered. It was in such good financial shape during the past year that it could afford to allocate $500 of the Interfraternity Council fund to the purchase of War Savings Bonds. Although the future of the office was indefinite, it was assured of successful functioning as long as a need was there. So far, war time problems have merely afforded opportunity and more accomplishment.

Council of FRATERNITY PRESIDENTS

The Council of Fraternity Presidents was formed in 1931 to meet a definite twofold need: better relationships between faculty and fraternities as a group and better relationships among individual fraternities. Since then the Council has grown to have much prestige in campus life and in student affairs.

During the past year many fraternities suffered greatly diminished manpower, but the Council carried on with a drop of about half in membership. Projects sponsored included an All-Greek Dance and cooperative measures to aid the campus Red Cross committee and the Prisoner-of-War Book Drive.

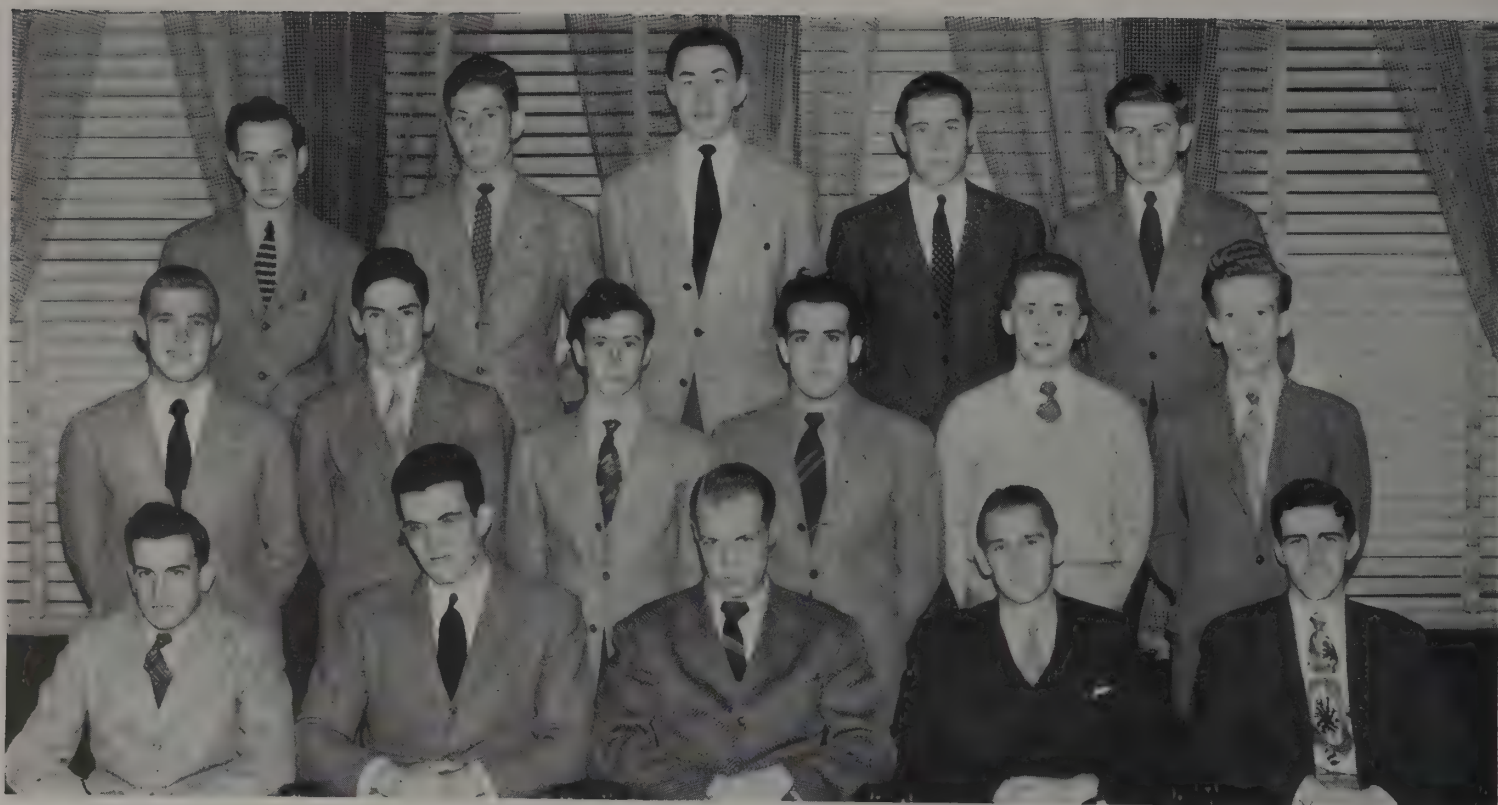

The organization, through the Office of Fraternity Affairs, coordinated the extremely difficult problems arising from year-around rushing. Definite rules and systematic procedures were devised to solve the greatest problem of all fraternities—four quarter rushing.

The new advisor, Assistant Dean of Men Lester G. Brailey, helped re-vitalize the Council of Fraternity Presidents, and due to his efforts much of the old pre-war spirit was recaptured.

The Council, like the member fraternities, became more stabilized and regained some of its former sense of balance. It felt a new confidence in dealing with "blows" of the war.

Interfraternity PLEDGE Council

During the past year, the Inter-fraternity Pledge Council, although hampered by the lack of men, has strived to promote activities to benefit the many pledges and to develop a cooperative and harmonized pledge spirit on campus. The council met at least once a month to plan its activities.

The high point of the year was the Fourth Annual "Ditch Night" held at the Chittenden Hotel during fall quarter. A dance with Chuck Selby's orchestra providing the music followed the dinner. Marilyn Singer, Pi Beta Phi, reigned as queen.

First in the country among co-operative purchasing units last year was Fraternity Managers' Association of Ohio State. It has saved sororities and fraternities thousands of dollars on the cash-in-advance plan. Controlled by its members and trustees, it is housed by the university, which recognizes its service to a large percentage of the student body. Purchasing every variety of goods and services for its members, the organization has the confidence of both suppliers and purchasers. It is a practical example of the value of fraternal co-operation.

The Alpha Chi Omegas put plenty of punch into the war effort. They kept the army, navy and marine morale high by writing numerous and copious letters. The active chapter made a mass blood donation. Pledges, inspired by their older sisters, aided the Fourth War Loan Drive by managing a War Bond sales table at one of our downtown buildings. The ASTP students and the naval air cadets also figured among the top events of the sorority. Because the first dance for ASTP fellas was such a success, it was followed by another gay affair for the same honored guests. The naval air cadets received invitations to a fun party in their honor a little later in the season.

Irene Green answered the call for young American women by joining the armed forces. The WAVES got her first, and that was tough luck for the WACS.

Social events had the girls in a constant whirl from day to day. There was the Dad's Day banquet, a Founder's Day dinner, and several teas. Everybody reported a good time at the annual formal dance which the girls managed to swing in spite of war time conditions. When the big night arrived, all the details of planning were forgotten long enough for each girl to trip the light fantastic with her partner.

The Alpha Chi Omegas distinguished themselves in the activities world, too. Imogene Holcomb pledged Pi Lambda Theta. The gals all sighed with pride when Roberta Eichenlaub became a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho. Two outstanding freshmen, Enid Collins and Peggy Rees, achieved membership to Scholaris. In the officer realm were found Rheda Janson, secretary of Pi Omega Pi; Marilyn Jones, treasurer of YWCA; and Mary Lou Blossom, business manager of the Women's Glee Club.

The welfare of the Ohio State University publications held interest for the Alpha Chi O's. Dorothy Rannebarger directed her business ability toward being circulation manager of the Sundial. Dorothy Stewart followed in her sister's footsteps as a sophomore editor of the Makio. She reported lots of honest effort plus exciting activity.

Evidence proves the fact that this bunch of girls on Fifteenth Avenue represent what the American college girls of today and tomorrow are doing and will be doing for themselves and their country. After the completion of such a successful year, they turn their attention toward an even bigger and better one in 1945.

Third place in the bond and stamp sale contest among sororities started the colors flying for the A. D. Pis. This rating made them feel that the football season had been significantly worthwhile.

Off to a good start, the gals continued the good work by putting effort into the war, social, and sport activities. The fast movement of events which dotted the Alpha Delt calendar this year kept each sister busy and happy.

Combining the social and war themes, the girls gave several dances for servicemen. The fellas are no doubt still thinking about the gracious entertainment these little ladies provided for them. Winter quarter saw the pledges knitting furiously on afghans for the Red Cross. They thoroughly enjoyed working with colored yarn, pricking fingers, and holding gab sessions that went with it all.

On February sixth the Alpha Delta held an introductory tea for the new dean of women, Mrs. Christine Conaway. In true spirit the sisterhood had no difficulty when they decided to convert their annual Sweetheart formal into a benefit dance. The colorful affair was held at the University Club February nineteenth, and all proceeds went to the American Red Cross.

Many A. D. Pi personalities found their ways into the campus activities. Frances Heath led the way first as president of the sorority and second as president of Freshmen Panhellenic. Jean VanScoten's abilities also ran in the line of president, and so she assumed that office in the Home Economics Club. Jean merited election to Phi Upsilon Omicron, the home economics honorary.

June Denton worked hard in Junior Orchesis, and had her efforts adequately rewarded when she danced her way into Senior Orchesis.

The new pledges buzzed around campus finally finding places for themselves in many OSU activities. Among the numerous other outstanding pledges were Jean Marshall and Vivian Lewis, who joined the ranks of Scholaris, freshmen women's honoraries.

1944 followed 1943 with the same vim, vigor and vitality and a little bit more. The 1943 prosperity and success could be topped only by Alpha Delt progress of 1944. So they continued planning for more war, social, and sport activities.

A new shiny cup was added to the Alpha Epsilon Phi collection the very first quarter of 1943. The A. E. Phi captured first place against stiff competition in the inter-sorority contest for stamp sales. Patriotism continued—enthusiastic cooperation of the sorority helped the State Theater win the stamp and bond sales contest.

Activity women stacked up achievements in good A. E. Phi spirit. Phyllis Gilberg efficiently edited the O. S. U. humor magazine for all the eager subscribers. Aubrey Block did a neat job of handling the business manager's position on the same publication. Guggie (Gloria Guggenheim) more than held her own as associate business manager of the 1944 Makio.

Judy Kivans proudly received the shiny gold Mirrors pin. Jean Rosenburg, another member of Mirrors, buzzed around the W.S.G.A. office doing her job as sophomore secretary of that organization. Jo Ostrov also put forth much after class effort, and ably led the Links hospital committee. Gladys Spiegel did her little bit over at the SWAVes office as chairman of blood donations.

Shirley Altman and Jay Hatry filled many a free hour with genuine effort at the hospital. With their duties as Nurses' Aides they found little for the usual coed hen sessions.

Dean "Pookie" Weinstein took care of the Panhellenic finances in her office of treasurer.

Hats went off to Frannie Tamarkin, who was back for post graduate work leading up to a long future of service. Her ambition was to be an army dietitian. Bobbie Reisman was wished lots of luck in her unusual ambition of becoming an engineer's aid. Jeanie Loeffler planned to make a career for herself in her favorite line of work—dramatics.

As for social activities—things moved fast and furiously. The actives beamed with pride at their new twenty-eight pledges. In fact, they showed the newcomers how much they appreciated them by giving an informal dance at the Fort Hayes Hotel. The pledges, in their turn, had a unique party for their admiring big sisters. It included a scavenger hunt for all the honored actives.

To sum up the whole situation—1943 and 1944 spelled fun and success for everybody. Big things are in store for all Alpha Epsilon Phi's starting with autumn quarter 1944.

1944 Iuka Avenue

In view of present conditions, Alpha Epsilon Pi found that it was no small task to keep a social fraternity merely functioning; therefore the men looked upon the record for the past year with even greater pride than they had in previous years. Once again the fraternity proved itself top notch on campus scholastically, athletically, and socially. No small credit for ability to carry on went to the officers. Pfc. Samuel A. Solomon carried on as Master; Morton M. Agins handled the role of Lieutenant Master; Pfc. Stanton E. Abrams used his pen to good avail as Scribe, and Norman J. Goldstone as social chairman kept a careful watch on after class entertainment.

The fraternity's scholastic record was indeed an enviable one. The pledge class ranked among the very highest on campus. Frank Levin and Donald Gottehrer captured individual honors when they were elected into Phi Eta Sigma.

Intramural sports once more felt the impact of Alpha Epsilon Pi might. The fellas were not beaten by any social fraternity.

Everybody at 1944 Iuka was ever cognizant of the war being waged all over the world. A E Pi expanded its fullest and keenest efforts at the Army Ordnance Depot, at the blood donor center, and at bond and stamp sales stations.

Many times during the year the brothers had the pleasure of welcoming back fraters on furloughs from the Army, the Navy or the Marines. With over three hundred men in the service hardly a week passed by during which the halls did not resound to the voice of some returning brother. Sorrow came to Eta when Al Markowitz recently lost his life on active duty in England.

Alpha Phis broke ranks, drove ahead, crashed the top, and received decorations for distinguished service. Decorations included: Mortar Board for Mary Deinhardt Franz; Chimes for Ginny Rohr, Eleanor Floyd and Frannie Matthews; Mirrors for Dorothy Lewis, Mary Kay Kinsella, Kathleen McCann, and Honey Haeckl; Scholaris for Mim Webster and Eleanor Meyer; Delta Phi Delta presidency, Dixie Westbrook; Chi Delta Phi presidency for Mary Lou Bentley; Zeta Phi Eta, speech honorary, for Marylee Lane and Berneice Watkins.

Service was personified by Eleanor Floyd, who directed her charms and ability toward being editor-in-chief of the 1944 Makio. Assisting their captain in the Makio ranks were Helen Pond and Helen Haeckl, sophomore editors. Dotty Lewis, a sophomore business manager, waved the Alpha Phi silver and bordeaux on the business staff. Going over the top, Marylee Lane became treasurer of the junior class, found a position on the Strollers' Board, and starred in campus plays. Ada Bell Feltman in outstanding cavalry style handled the secretary-treasurer office in Boot and Saddle.

Mary Lou Bentley flaunted the brains of the battalion as sixth in scholarship among all sorority women. Kathleen McCann placed second among all campus pledges. Alpha Phi pledges blended sweet, sweet notes as they sang their way to the front lines. Their smiles were broad and friendly when they received third rank in the intersorority pledge sing.

Soldiers, sailors and marines on campus confirmed news flashes that Alpha Phi fires burned brightly on the home front. Songs, dancing and refreshments kept everybody happy at the many open houses for servicemen. Although a few longing glances were cast at those sophisticated formals, the Alpha Phis without batting an eye relinquished their usual fall formal in favor of a large donation to the Alpha Phi War Nursing Fund. The girls battered at the enemy with stamp sales to place second in the big contest at the Homecoming game. When afghan squares were piled sky high, knitting needles were dropped long enough to whip together warm blankets for army hospitals.

The coed army at 134 Fifteenth Avenue fought a terrific battle, flew their colors high, and found victory waiting for them right up on the very top. The golden shining pin stands for all-American girls.

In the fall of 1943 the United Nations set the pace in the world conflict. In a similar manner on the home-front, the organization Alpha Tau Omega, nationally known in ninety-four college towns, came out victorious in the fraternity world. Its Ohio State chapter was declared the largest active chapter of any fraternity in the country.

Although the ATO's sent thirty men into the armed services during the fall quarter alone, to join over a hundred brothers already serving their country, the fraternity was able to rejoice in sixty-six live, energetic and activity conscious members. The ATO mantel almost cracked with pride for it was decorated with the only cup given in interfraternity competition in the fall of '43, recognition for the best fraternity Homecoming Decoration. In the Stadium field of battle there was a monopoly of ATO talent. In the football lineup were eight Taus, including Dean Sensenbaugher and Cy Souders, who were the only State men to play in the East-West game. Also representing OSU and ATO were Lynn St. John, director of athletics; Coaches Ernie Godfrey and Hugh McGranahan, Director McBride of the Marching Band, six members of the band, and two cheerleaders. Sophomore John Daniels was elected to the presidency of the Sophomore class and Doug McCampbell was selected head of student activities.

The chapter's original house, having met Army requirements, was invaded with G. I.'s . . . resulting in a fraternal migration to a War Annex, which serves as a home away from home to a well-rounded group of college bred gentlemen.

Not Poker, Girls.

Beauty At the Bar.

The Alpha Xis started the year with such fiery enthusiasm that it was very appropriate when they were awakened one night by alarming cries, "The house is on fire." Amid much excitement disaster was averted, but the symbol of that night was a beginning toward success and activity. Jean Jackson represented the flaming progress by being elected to Chimes. Mary Alice Johnston and Carolyn Lapp kept the fires burning when they became members of Mirrors.

Many of the girls participated in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," presented by Browning Dramatic Society. On the list of officers for that organization, the Psi girls could point proudly to the names: Marjean Holman, president; Elsie Henrich, treasurer; and Dorothy Gramlich, business manager. Another girl who invaded the dramatic field was Jo Becher, business manager of Strollers. Her portrayal of the leading role in "The Male Animal" was well worth the palpitations of Alpha Xi hearts in the audience. Nancy Sebring of the May Queen court also did a bang up job in the same production.

Carol Sanford and Mary Alice Johnston waved the sorority colors in Scholaris, Frances Straight, already a member of Pi Lambda Theta, continued her success story when she became affiliated with Delta Omicron. Also wearing the pin of Delta Omicron were Dorothy Gramlich, Roberta Skelley, Edith Johnson, and Lois Ann Hanna. Two more flames that could not be outdone were Justine Spring and Pat Harmstead, both of whom were in Elizabeth Blackwell Society. Journalist Betty Walker brought home honors by pledging Theta Sigma Phi.

Fall quarter was brought to a gala close with much festivity along the social line. Music, gaiety, color, and laughter on a certain night indicated that many guys and gals were having gobs of fun at the Christmas formal held in the chapter house.

The sincere efforts of all the girls included assistance to their national organization in presenting a club-mobile unit to the Red Cross.

The above activities were supplemented by the everyday work and play at the modern house on Fifteenth Avenue. On almost any Sunday afternoon many soldiers and girls were fun seekers at the Alpha Xi Delta House. There they found beauty, brains, work, gab, dancing, and lots of good times.

'Nuffs Enough, Johnnie.

Betas of Theta Delta chapter carried the diamond and three stars to all parts of the nation and to foreign fields. Dropping from a membership of seventy-six in the spring of 1943 to sixteen by the following fall, the chapter grew cautiously to the present membership of twenty-four.

In the realm of activities the diamond shone as brightly as it does in Uncle Sam's armed forces. Bob Murphy, Bob Bennett, and Wally Phillips were tapped by Sphinx. Although Jim Brunner at times had to work to capacity and a little bit more, his photographic skill won him a place on the Sundial staff and the position of head photographer on the Makio. Paul Selby served on the board of trustees of F.M.A. and devoted the remainder of his attentions to Student Senate and the Athletic Board. Hunt Carlile left an announcing position with WBNS to become director of Radio Division of Strollers. Along with Hunt Carlile, Joe Preston, who returned from the armed forces, served on the Stroller's Board. The wearers of the diamond ranked first in scholarship among fraternities for fall quarter. Individual honors were also numerous for the Betas. Jack Sharp and Fred Slager gained membership to Alpha Epsilon Delta, Pre-medical honorary, while Nelson French was initiated into Phi Eta Sigma.

Myron Powelson, Bob Jones, and Bob Porter flaunted Beta colors on the track team. Paul Wiggins proved his athletic capabilities on the swimming team.

Beta Theta Pi held the best of the past until the return of the brothers when they will work together to help build a better world of decency and justice.

The Pledges Win; Barb Accepts.

The Chi Omegas blazed a new trail and proved themselves tops when their pledges walked away with first place at the annual pledge sing. The remainder of the chapter, not wishing to be outdone, won third place in the intersorority sing. At the Panhellenic banquet Margaret Wadsworth was honored as third highest in scholarship among all active sorority women.

The first in line for Chi O honors were those wonderful people—Dads. The gals entertained them at a luncheon which was later followed up by a Mother's Day tea. The first winter dance was given for the fellows in navy blue at Baker Hall. Spirit plus prevailed at the many open houses throughout the year.

Extra-curricular activities claimed the time of many girls. Rapidly on the way to becoming a BWOC—Marge Hollis was elected sophomore class treasurer and president of Scholaris. She also devoted time to her position on Student Senate. Mary Ellen McOsker put many an hour in at the Makio office besides assuming the office of secretary of the Women's Glee Club. Prexy Jean Grener edited the Panhellenic rushing booklet.

These busy coeds snagged their share of membership to various campus honoraries. Helen Patton served as vice-president of Phi Chi Theta while Sue Eyman, Jane Mitchell, Margaret Mount, and Phyllis Beckenbach were among those pledged. New initiates in other honoraries included Mary Ellen McOsker in Delta Omicron, Mary Alice King in Alpha Epsilon Rho, Avis Osborn into Pi Omega Pi, and Margaret Wadsworth in Pi Lambda Theta.

Ann Lee Hancock lost no time in bringing home some honors when her charm and beauty won her a position on the Ditch Night queen's court.

Striving to aid the war effort the Chi Omegas participated in group blood donations and undertook a Russian War Relief campaign.

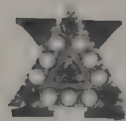

Chi O's claimed honors in girls' sports. Mary Ellen McOsker served as corresponding secretary of WRA Board, while Marion Snyder, "Tag" Tift, and Sue Dietrich were representatives to the Board. Marion demonstrated her aquatic and executive ability as president of the Swan Club and secretary of the Physical Education Club.

The Chi O girls planned to carry the X and the horseshoe along the new trail which the "pioneer" pledges so triumphantly blazed. So far they have been following the good example in fine Chi O style.

One of the only two fraternities on campus boasting continued activity since the date of founding, Delta Chi contributed blood, scrap, and bond drive enthusiasm. Of the seventy-some actives and pledges in the United States services, twenty-two are now commissioned officers.

Wherever there was a breath of activity at OSU, there could be found energetic Delta Chi's. The fraternity was represented in such organizations as Strollers, the Marching Band, Makio, Sundial, Student Senate, Fraternity Affairs Office, and on the debate team.

Wartime didn't dim the traditionally brilliantly social calendar of the boys from "Laughlin Lodge," for the year was studded with myriads of bright and gay events. Long to be remembered fun occurred on the "Sweetheart Weekend" when the girls took over the fraternity house for the duration of the party, which included a dance on Friday evening, an all-day picnic on Saturday at the country home of an alumnus, and a dinner at the chapter house on Sunday.

The State-Purdue game was the occasion for the whole chapter trekking up to Cleveland where a dinner party at the home of one of the brothers helped the boys forget the score. High point of this expedition was a Sunday morning cruise on Lake Erie in the really super sleek 40-foot cabin cruiser of another brother.

Beneath this froth of fun, the fraternity has worked long and hard to further campus war activity. The Chapter's prospects for the coming years are good, for which the boys were mighty thankful. Perhaps Delta Chi's fondest hopes are for Brother John Bricker in his campaign for the "top" job in the country.

Rakin' in the Chips.

Greetings!

Bright-eyed Nancy Littlefield chalked up another for Delta Delta Delta. This little bunch of personality made a place for herself on the Homecoming Queen Court. Peggy Klie divided her attention three different ways. She presided at Tri Delt meetings, served on the W.S.G.A. Board, and wore a long black robe on the Student Court. Mary Ann Work could scarcely find a minute to breathe between her three big jobs. She was sophomore class secretary, sophomore Makio editor, and a member of Commerce College Council. Mary Gene Standish spent long hours working over those big lists of figures at the Makio office. She liked her work though because a sophomore business manager can take a minute off now and then for a quick coke. Betty Bish also displayed a flare for activities when she was elected class representative on the W.S.G.A. Board nad put forth lots of effort on the Student War Board as the publicity chairman.

Ginny Beuttel Gridley, although caught in a whirl of marital duties, found time to spend many an afternoon at the Sundial office as business manager. Ellen Jones never had a dull or idle moment. She was the efficient secretary of Women's Panhellenic, and secretary of O.S.P.A.

Many Tri DeltS wore the shining badge of Mirrors. The proud wearers were Nanciann Williams, Mary Gene Standish, Mary Ann Work, and Betty Bish. Tri Delt Secretary Mary Baggs was honored by receiving an important fellowship from Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Corporation. After a year's training in engineering she will graduate to step into a select position. But scholastic abilities did not constitute her entire aptitude. Mary was vice-president of Browning Dramatic Society, vice-president of Delta Omicron, and a member of the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra.

A proud eye was fastened on Jean Ann McClelland, who left O.S.U. for U.S.A. to become a member of the WAVES. The girls all got together and had a big reception for her.

The Tri Delt scholarship fund was raised for students who will aid in the war effort after graduation. Many of the patriots were devoting time to the Nurses' Aides organization. Another big job that proved to be fun for everybody was entertaining servicemen on campus. In Delta Delta Delta fashion, they did a bang up job of keeping the gang happy.

"Double or nothing" was the determined Delta Gamma motto this year. The D. G.'s scored twice in a row with terrific Dottie Neff reigning as Homecoming Queen of 1943. A pair of queenly cuties adorned the pages of the Ohio State humor magazine as "Girls of the Month". Barbara Torow's long blonde hair and laughing blue eyes won the much coveted crown of the 1944 Makio queen and a position on the May Queen Court.

Speaking of glamour, Dolores Murphy and Kay Hime-lick followed through with real Delta Gamma spirit when they carried the Epsilon anchor into the WAVES. The Chapter as a whole tried to do its part in the war effort by donating blood and by distributing war posters in the Red Cross Drive.

The morale of the servicemen on campus was kept at high tide by the anchors of Delta Gamma at the numerous parties held in honor of those lonesome guys in uniform. The D. G.'s did some personal morale boosting by transforming their fall formal into a barn setting with hay. They had stacks of fun. The girls all had a chance to wear those adorable formals at a dance given with four other sororities.

The mask of Strollers was kept grinning by President Nada Smith and Treasurer D. J. Goldsmith. Two charming Delta Gammas added their sparkling personalities to Mortar Board. They were Marilyn DeLeone and Nada Smith.

Kay Hunnicut, director of War Board during winter quarter, efficiently helped in the beginning functions of this organization.

In the spring of 1943 Jo Hartly played the part of an Ohio State engineer. She was instrumental in the founding of the first women's honorary accounting fraternity, and was then elected president of that organization. Another little D. G., Mary Alice Knobloch, followed in Jo's footsteps when she was elected to the same honorary last fall.

The Delta Gammas did a fine job of combining beauty, brains, and activity abilities. They progressed forward having their anchor stand for very high standards in many different fields on campus. At the helm of the ship of success Martha Hoopman capably charted the course on the rocking sea of 1943-44. The sails were all set for something dynamic in the year to come.

80 13th Ave.

One hundred and forty men comprised the Delta Tau Delta contribution to the manpower of the United States Armed Forces. Another loss ensued when the university needed the "shelter" at 80 Thirteenth Avenue for a women's dormitory. A new shelter was established at 141 East Fifteenth Avenue, and the Delt enthusiasm helped the guys make the best of all the moving difficulties. The boys were determined to make the fiftieth year of Delta Tau Delta at Ohio State a banner one. Their resolution got off to a flying start immediately after the year began with a fine group of freshmen pledges.

A formal dance held with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity in the Silver Ballroom of the Chittenden Hotel afforded ample opportunity for entertaining the Delt girl friends. The many open houses and buffet lunches added sparkle to the football season for alumni and undergrads alike. The annual jaunt to Ann Arbor for the Michigan game took place via radio and was followed by an all day party at the shelter. The social climax of fall quarter was the Christmas party at the house where everyone had an all out good time. Santa Claus brought just reward to Pledges Bergen and Powell, who were awarded for their activities in the Fraternity Affairs office. Other potential BMOC's were also lauded for achievements. Social events were far from ended at the last of the quarter. The annual Founders' Day Banquet and Dance held at the Seneca Hotel followed on the heels of fall quarter fun.

So the Beta Phi chapter of Delta Tau Delta was and is very much alive and in the thick of everything cookin' on campus.

Still intact, still all together, the Delta Upsilon boys continued to operate a fraternity house of their own.

Rushing, under the eagle eye of Richard Metcalf, rang in the autumn quarter. The new bevy of pledges added a big hunk to the 1943 football squad which included Red Williams, varsity quarterback; Wid Miller, varsity guard; and Russ Thomas. To add to the number of captains in the house, already including Keo Nakama, swimming team, and Joe Stora, wrestling team, Don Grate, captain of the '43-'44 basketball squad, was pledged at the beginning of winter quarter. Little but mighty Dave Ewart contributed his strength to the wrestling team.

Honors were far from lacking. Harry Crawford, representative to the pledge council, was selected as master of ceremonies for the annual Ditch Night banquet. Robert Brehmer was elected to Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary fraternity. The fraternity affairs office hummed with the work of William Arnold, sophomore secretary.

Dave Belknap ably and successfully handled many social functions. Snowball fights, hay-rides, informal house dances were but a small part of the activities. The winter formal at which Earl Hood played and which was held at the Beechwold Tavern, climaxed the social season. In February the chapter was a gracious host to delegates from seven other chapters at the Fourth Provincial Conference. A formal banquet and ball at the Neil House honored the visiting delegates. The fellows even had pretty coed dates for the student guests. This party was a smashing climax to all other events.

The Delta Zetas, prexied by eye-catching Joan Pertl, and "mascoted" by Dee Zee, a coal black, cuddly cocker puppy, managed to sandwich more than a few social affairs between varied scholastic and war activities.

Tops among the fun times were a fall formal at the Neil House, a Father's Day banquet, a Big Sister-Little Sister party at the Seneca Hotel, a George Washington dance, and a Latin-American party for the Beta Chi chapter of Wittenburg College. Then too, the servicemen's morale was boosted by teas and open houses.

The exotic pledge from Peru, Carmen Castro-Pozo, formerly from Smith College, was responsible for the Spanish atmosphere at the D. Z. house. Carmen, who was working for her master's degree in education, was sent to Ohio State on a scholarship of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs.

Both actives and pledges invaded the activities world. Keeping up the morale of servicemen were Sheila Spellman, chairman of U.S.O. hostesses, and Jean Bartholomew, Joan Pertl, Betty Axtell, and Vera Wilson, hostesses. Ethel Boros, Adelaide Neil, and Jean Bartholomew were active in SWAVes. BWOC Barbara Van Atta proved her executive ability as secretary of Panhellenic, chairman of the Faculty Student Relationship Program of Panhellenic, and membership in Mirrors and YWCA coordinating council.

As for honoraries, Elenore Wachholz was a member of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary; Beverly Warren and Judy Merrill were initiated into Phi Chi Theta, retail merchandising sorority.

In the field of journalism: Elenore Wachholz worked on Lantern and Sundial; Marion Fosdick, chairman of the Sundial joke staff received enthusiastic assistance from Pledges Mary Walden, Bobby Pratt, and Marceil Nelson; Norma McPherson and Gretchen Gonser worked out their apprenticeship on the Makio.

Politically minded Ethel Boros and Marion Fosdick could be found among the members of O.S.P.A. Melba McCoy represented the pledge class as president of freshman Panhellenic.

Athletically inclined Mary Ann Slocum swung a mean racket on the Tennis Club, while Vera Wilson preferred the arrows of the Archery Club. Gwyneth Jenkins and Babs Van Atta were members of Spur.

Gamma Phi Lambda had not been quite satisfied with their housing facilities when last summer quarter, they looked over and approved the old Alpha Psi house. On Homecoming Day they discovered that they had an almost unlimited capacity as far as guests were concerned. No less than seventeen grads found places to put their heads in the Gamma Phi Lambda hangout.

The girls went all out for fun. The rugged life held an appeal for them, so they dragged out the old clothes for a hike. This event turned out to be one of the best in the way of good times.

A desire to do something for the war effort and still to make the situation gay culminated in a series of dances for the servicemen on campus. Later, thoughts were transferred to preparations for the faculty tea which proved successful in the true Gamma Phi Lambda way. The valentine hearts and cupids of February suggested to the gals some bang up ideas for a Valentine's tea.

As for scholastic record, the pledge chapter placed second among all Panhellenic pledge groups on campus. The exciting part was the fact that they missed top place by the difference .001. The active chapter upheld the enthusiastic spirit and placed fourth among active chapters. Individual honors went to Dottie Tyler, who was selected to attend the Merrill-Palmer school during winter quarter. Dorcas Laughlin and Kay Mouser became members of Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron at the beginning of the year.

Mary Jane Lawrence was faithful to the Home Economics Club as secretary. Barbara Williams, who also has lots of interest in home economics passed some of her information, pep, and enthusiasm on to freshmen advisees. Dottie Tyler was another freshman advisor in the department. The Home Economics Club Council had its share of Gamma Phi Lambda gals, namely Helen McCallum, Kay Mouser, and Carolyn Hawk.

On the roster of distinguished names of the University Grange appeared those of Kay Mouser and Barbara Williams, who was Gate Keeper.

Thus, the girls of Gamma Phi Lambda Sorority proved their many abilities in the campus social world as well as in the professional world, where they achieved a large number of interesting and outstanding positions.

Theta in 1943 and 1944 was a Theta dedicated to accomplishment. In the Fall we returned to a wartime campus, so Thetas quickly took over many positions in university organizations previously held by men.

Theta kites were seen in many activities. President Marge Boals wore the light corduroy jacket of Mortar Board and held the distinction of being the first woman elected president of the Student Senate. To her long list Marge added the office of treasurer of the senior class. Barbara Waid wielded the gavel of W.S.G.A. and wore the pin of Mortar Board. She led the university in war work through her chairmanship of the War Board. Barbara Funk was in charge of U.S.O. activities on the campus. Jane Palmer was secretary of the Student Court.

Five Theta hearts beat faster the night that Chimes rang out in their homes. The five girls who merited election to the honorary were: Adelaide Ginn, Joanne Fleming, Anabel Loren, Marilyn Miller, and Marge Howe Smith. Adelaide was secretary of W.S.G.A. and president of the Arts College Council. Jody was project chairman of the War Board and a worker in V.I.C. Anabel held the position of secretary-treasurer of the Student Senate and was active in V.I.C. Marilyn's interests included Y.W.C.A., the Student Senate, and V.I.C. Marge was vice-president of Strollers Dramatic Society and devoted time to Y.W.C.A. and W.S.G.A. All five were members of Mirrors. Adelaide was elected president of Chimes. Dorothy Mossbarger, Marge Reinert, and Elaine Riggs were recognized by Mirrors.

Ruth Keller was a charming member of the May Queen's court. Toby Macklin brought distinction upon herself and upon the pledges when she was elected to the Homecoming Queen's court. During Homecoming festivities, the Thetas were awarded the grand trophy for the most clever decorations honoring the homecomers, the Baby Bucks, and the fellows in the service. Credit should be given to Caroline Gibson, chairman of decorations.

Finding time from activities for study, Theta placed second in scholarship among the sororities. Since there were so many Naval officers and Air cadets stationed on the campus, the girls entertained them several times at the house in grand style.

It was a wonderful year for Kappa Alpha Theta, but they are looking forward to TOMORROW.

Never a Dull Moment.

Proving that the war effort rated high on the Kappa Delt activity list, Jo Ann Roese triumphantly led her sisters with a record of seven blood donations. The remainder of enthusiastic war effort took the form of a generous donation to the American Red Cross, time and overtime at the SWAVes office, and many spare hours for the USO program. The social features of this war effort were numerous open houses for servicemen.

The usual peacetime activities also received many active members from the ranks of Kappa Delta. Jean Kelly and Dorothy Cullison served on the WSGA Board. Maybelle Huston followed her talent in music and was soon elected to Delta Omicron, women's music honorary. Marjorie Stewart with paint and brushes made her way into Delta Phi Delta, fine art's honorary. Representing the pledges, Betty Gotter put her scholastic ability to good use by becoming a member of Scholaris.

During winter quarter, the patriotic Kay Dees decided that they would buy more bonds instead of having the traditional formal downtown. It took them only a short while to cook up a substitute which was a dance at the chapter house on Feb. 12. The guys and gals danced around in best of sweetheart style amid colorful hearts and cupids for St. Valentine's Day. Refreshments, music by the "Three Notes," and new records completed the order for a grand time for everyone.

Although no elaborate social functions were held, small get-togethers proved entertaining. In winter quarter the actives feted the pledges with luncheon at Marzetti's, followed by a movie; that same evening the actives sponsored a dance for the soldiers in the ASTP.

On Dad's Day a hearty buffet supper was given in honor of those jolly good fellows. Incidentally, mothers also received warm welcomes.

The Kappa Deltas rounded out their daily college lives by including a bit of the cultural aspect. The program got under way with two talks by Dr. Blanche Meyer, leading psychiatrist in the city. She spoke on "Getting Along Together in School" and "Getting Along Together in Marriage."

The big thrill of winter quarter came to the Kay-Dees when their own Pin-up Boy, Private Bob Johnson, won the contest sponsored by the Sundial.

The Kappa key found its jeweled way into the four corners of the campus. The honoraries from Scholaris right on up the line to Mortar Board received Kappa membership. At the very top Joanne Jones and Kay Schroeder wore the little black cap of Mortar Board. Kay received the vice-presidency at the elections of this organization. Ann Dones did big things in a junior way. As a result of her efforts she proudly sported the small gold pin of Chimes. Polly Cunningham, Dorothy Smith and Joyce Gaffney carried the Kappa colors into Mirrors. The long list of activities girls continued: Emmy Lou Siebert, Virginia Reimold, Elizabeth Ann Smith and Nancy Bixby, Scholaris; Marion Hunt, Chi Delta Phi; Mary Jean Folkerth and Phyllis Overbeck, Phi Upsilon Omicron; Mary Schramm and Jean Buchanan, V.I.C.; Roberta Stevenson, Kay Schroeder, Patricia Berry, Betty Sanor and Jean Ebright, Pi Lambda Theta.

Dorothy Reesman divided her interests and attention among Elizabeth Blackwell Society, presidency of the Arts College Council, and position of secretary in Browning Dramatic Society. Kay Schroeder, keeping busy enough to be eligible for Mortar Board, acted as president of Delta Omicron, and handled the job of secretary for the senior class.

The key gleamed brightly in the realm of scholarship. Mary Schramm obtained the cup for the highest pledge grades. Backing her, the sorority came through in second place for scholarship.

A unique and patriotic idea was carried out by Kappa alumnae. They opened a Women's Service Center at the Chittenden Hotel. An SOS to the active chapter was often recognized by hard work on the part of all the girls. Myrna Smith, another proud booster of Uncle Sam, headed the all-campus War Chest drive. Many a sister of hers could be found diligently working away at the office of SWAVes. At the hospital Kappas turned their efforts toward doing their usual good work in the Nurses' Aides Program.

The football season afforded Kappa Kappa Gamma opportunity for all out good times. Songs, food, and laughter carried the football spirit from the stadium to the white house on Fifteenth Avenue. Later in the quarter several house dances were given for A.S.T.P. and Naval Air Corps men. Lovely Joyce Tefft added more than a note of beauty to the activities, social, and scholastic achievements.

1942 Iuka Avenue

The "castle painted blue and white" was abandoned by Phi Delta Theta when the ASTP fellas needed a place to hang their hats. In April, after the house on Iuka had been remodeled by guys in khaki, the knights of old moved back to their original home.

Although Uncle Sam claimed a large number of Phi Delt men, the fraternity carried on in campus activities. Jim Boone captured a varsity "O" for swimming. Lovell Elliott was splashed during the traditional midnight ceremony of Bucket and Dipper, and autumn quarter he donned the black robe of the student court. As co-chairman of Homecoming, Lovell was seen on the corner of 15th and High announcing the eagerly anticipated event. All Phi Delt men stationed on campus received invitations to attend chapter meetings, after which the boys all got together for traditional college bull sessions. The Duo-Triad started the Phi Delt whirl of social events and was followed by a Homecoming dance at the Delta Upsilon house. Many week-end parties and open houses made life worthwhile for everybody.

The Wednesday playing of taps on the oval had more meaning for the Phis when they regretfully received notification of the deaths of Captain Don Scott, Connie Hilbinger and Ben Pyle. The Zeta heads were bowed in deepest respect for these three deceased members of the chapter. The Mothers' Club faithfully kept the service flag up to date.

A more cheerful picture of the war was painted by the occasional homecoming of men on furlough. These guests showed pride in the "carry on" spirit of the Phi Delta Theta chapter at OSU.

If OSU had "Who's Who on Campus," the Phi Eps would be well represented. For instance their modest prexy, Mel Jacobs, who was initiated into Alpha Epsilon Delta. Mel was succeeded spring quarter by Bernard Copeland, senior manager of the wrestling team, Varsity "O," and vice-president of Scarlet Key. Another outstanding man in the world of sports was Bob Wasserman, number one man on the Bucks' '43 team. Bob is now practicing his serves for "Uncle Sam" and is expected to come through to the finish.

In the course of a year of activities, Karl Selig and Ray Wells wore the fez of Romophos. Karl specialized as swimming manager, Phi Eta Sigma, and treasurer of the Spanish Club. He was also one of the five who received a notable award for having the highest point hours at the annual Fraternity Affairs' bean and steak dinner. Ray served as sports' editor of the Makio, a member of Phi Rho Alpha, pharmacy honorary; and co-chairman of publicity for the Sophomore Prom. To add to the rest of the list of notables, mention must be given to Sanford a notable award for having the highest point hour at the track team; Robert Katz, who was a member of the interfraternity pledge council and ticket chairman for the "ditch night" dance; and Fred Gerns, who served as a cheerleader and a baseball manager.

The Phi Eps didn't devote their entire time to activities, however. Many gala social events were held during the year. Homecoming still remained the event of the season. The night before the Bucks' impressive victory was highlighted by a hayride and weiner roast; and to celebrate Ohio's victory, a dinner-dance was held at the Hotel Seneca for members and their guests.

With the ravages of war creating a manpower shortage for the duration, Phi Gamma Delta retained its top position on campus by the continued quality of its quantity of members. By dint of much remodeling the Fijis situated themselves at the crossroads of the campus—Fifteenth and High.

Phi Gam's athletic contribution consisted of football stars Glenn Oliver, Ray Stackhouse and Ronnie Hefflinger, while Bill Gunton aided the basketball to last winter's successes and Preston Crabill captured his letter in golf. Glenn Oliver's work at defensive fullback was particularly outstanding. Ray Stackhouse was always a firm anchor on Ohio's rugged line.

Paul Hatfield, Fiji track star, now in medical school here, was elected junior class president and was also chairman of the Homecoming dance and Junior-Senior Prom. Danny Mayne made Tau Beta Pi and Phi Lambda Upsilon, in addition to serving on the junior class cabinet. Bill Gunton, in view of his outstanding ability and achievements, was chosen for Romophos. Bill Bradbury and Don Seelbach played in the Marching Band, Don Evans was president of the Interfraternity Pledge Council, and many others made their presence known in campus activities.

Parties of all kinds were staged throughout the year. Winter and spring formals topped the list. Some of the social affairs were held with other fraternities, but the old Fiji spirit was always definitely present.

No less than seven Phi Gams have left for the Army Air Corps, three men left for the Navy and others for the Army. Those who remained kept the star of Phi Gamma Delta shining brightly for the return of departed brothers.

Another fraternity struck heavily by the hand of Uncle Sam, Phi Kappa Sigma, succeeded in "carrying on" in the face of a loss of more than forty-five brothers and eviction from their home on Woodruff.

Feeling an obligation to maintain the fraternity's position on campus in anticipation of the homecoming of their brothers now in the service, the Phi Kappa Sigs raised a persistent voice over the predominantly feminine chirp of a wartime Ohio State. Temporary headquarters were set up at 275 E. 15th Ave. for the fifteen remaining boys on campus.

A small but ambitious group, the Phi Kappa Sigs carried out a full and varied program. To keep former Phi Kaps now in the service informed as to fraternity progress and other matters of interest the boys succeeded in publishing a miniature newspaper. A gala Winter formal dinner-dance was held at the Beechwold Tavern. Many intramural sports were participated in and one social gathering a week was instituted.

This year saw Phi Kaps distinguish themselves on the campus in positions of responsibility. Paul Bishop was elected president of the inter-fraternity pledge council and was a member of the YMCA executive committee. James Burchfield served on the Varsity debating team; and Neal Perz represented Phi Kappa Sigma on the Sundial, Tom Root on the Makio, and Robert Barger in the fraternity affairs office.

Ted Koprowski was in the 1944 graduating class. Ted, incidentally, played as shortstop on the Varsity baseball team, which won the 1943 Big Ten championship.

Social events caught the Phi Mu eye through the entire school year. In the fall quarter, the girls concentrated on rushing and pledging. After this gay round of events, many freshmen were wearing the pledge pin of Phi Mu. The next series of parties consisted of affairs held in honor of the soldiers stationed on Iuka Avenue. The football season contributed a certain spirit and vigor to the activities of the Phi Mus. After every game open house was held. The party-minded members shifted their attention to the new war effort by having monthly dances for the soldiers and ensigns on campus. Soldiers stationed at Fort Hayes also found that life could be brightened by the Phi Mu gals.

Although they had a social calendar that was packed full, there was one event which highlighted the entire season. All the actives and pledges donned their loveliest formals for their own dance which was held downtown in February.

Following a close second for top place in the whirlpool of social events was the Founder's Day Banquet.

Phi Mu has been holding tightly to its usual high standards in the world of academic, musical, and sports events. Prexy Floris Clark proved her abilities beyond those of handling her office quite capably. She became a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, which is the newly chartered radio honorary developing from the former W.O.S.U. Players.

Carroll Porter, a most outstanding girl in her professional field, wasted no time in becoming a member of the pharmacy college. Some of the Phi Mus who love their chemistry are Mary Ruth Weinrich, Carroll Porter, Margaret Timmons, and Margery Slife.

Virginia Rosenbaum contributed her musical abilities by blending them with those of the other members of the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra.

Since both Gwen Eberhart and Dolores Strickland were interested in the beauty and grace of modern dancing, they were both initiated into Senior Orchesis. These same two girls were both active members of the Boot and Saddle club.

This past year the Phi Mu girls have been very well satisfied with the results of their efforts in the social, the academic, and the activities worlds, having had a good representation in each.

Things really kept poppin' in the terrific Phi O fashion from the very beginning to the very end of the 1943-44 season.

An important highlight which opened the autumn quarter-1943 was the message brought from Conclave that Margaret Morris of Mu had won the Molly Buchner Hardy Trophy, the Phi Omega Pi national award given to the girl who has done the most for her local chapter during the past year.

In November, Mu chapter had a short visit from Velma Bull, the national treasurer, as she traveled through Columbus on her way to Chicago to attend the N.P.C. Conference. The national president of Phi O Pi, Helen Cunningham, accepted the N.P.C. gavel.

On the social calendar were the rushing parties which included a delightful Koo Koo Kollege party, a Variety Club show (with a special unforgettable "hoola" number), a backwards party, a valentine party, and a good old fashioned taffy pull. The gals returned gleefully to childhood days when they entertained twelve kiddies from the Northside Day nursery. The children were all wide-eyed and excited at the gay party carefully planned for them. Needless to say, the old "children" enjoyed the party equally well. Throughout the year the Phi O's held open houses and dances for the Army, Navy, and Marines.

The girls were proudest of their patriotic activities. Most of the girls were faithful U.S.O. hostesses, many were active in SWAVes, and all able-bodied members donated blood. Mu very generously aided the national organization by buying an ambulance for the armed forces. Hats off to two patriotic misses, Margaret Morris and Lilah Whitlow, who spent many hours in volunteer work at the Red Cross Home Service Center. Britta Jones and Dottie Green left Phi O ranks to join the WAVES and SPARS respectively. They were sent off with wishes for the best of luck from all their sisters.

Campus personalities included Louise McDaniel, who was active on the Ohio State Engineer staff, and Jane Barlow Dell, who served as president of the Women's Glee Club. Margaret Morris and Lilah Whitlow held offices in Sigma Alpha Sigma. The Phi O's were also proud of Helen Menkel, who is active in Pi Omega Pi.

The highlight of the Pi Phi year was big and bright and sparkling. The thrilling moment happened at the City Panhellenic banquet, when Pi Beta Phi walked away with the trophy for first place in scholarship. The actives proved that a little study snatches between activities, dates and classes can be very profitable.

Nationally, Pi Phi backed one hundred per cent the war effort. Physical-Therapy Scholarships were established to assist the country's wounded in military operations by making it possible to have more trained technicians in this field. In local war activities, the girls put forth much effort to do their part. They directed efforts toward Nurses' Aid program, Red Cross work, regular trips to the blood bank, and parties for the service men. The social program was curtailed for the war emergency. However, soft dance music and best friends made a dance with four other sororities most enjoyable for everybody.

Queens—two of them. Jan Underwood was elected May queen to reign over Traditions. Week festivities and Marilyn Singer reigned supreme for a night as queen of the annual pledges "Ditch Night". Martha Adams Wood, chapter president, was president of Panhellenic and a proud member of Mortar Board. Carol Bretschneider was tapped by Chimes and was elected treasurer of WSGA. The Pi Phi arrow was worn by three sophomore secretaries of Student Senate and one of WSGA. Mildred Rankin served as secretary of Strollers and as projects chairman of Student War Board. Norma Davies was president of Orchesis and a member of WRA Board. Pi Phis were in the casts of the "Male Animal" and "My Sister Eileen." Fiev sophomores wore the badge of Mirrors—Clara Daugherty, Marilyn Fitzgerald, Jane Hamlin, Mildred Rankin and Dorothy Tague.

In the various college honoraries the Pi Phis showed their professional ability: Bette Erwin, Phi Chi Theta, Commerce; Anne Cartwright, Sigma Alpha Sigma, Social Administration; Betsy Kauffman, Pi Lambda Theta, Education; Jeanne Blazer, Zeta Phi Eta, Speech; Joanna Metcalf, Sigma Delta Chi, Journalism; Doris Young and Patty Evans, Delta Omicron, Music.

And so with the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, Ohio Beta chapter of Pi Beta Phi completed one more successful year. The Pi Phi girls all carried their symbol, the arrow, into honoraries, war activities, social affairs and all phases of coed life.

Many activities on campus had plenty of PiKA influence in them. Especially favored by these BMOC's have been the Sundial and Makio of Ohio State. The luscious beauties prancing across the Sundial covers were children of the pen of Don W. Ink, art editor of the humor magazine. Across the hall and within shouting distance of the Sundial office was Brother Alton L. Rinier. He reigned in one of the "big wig" offices as business manager of the 1944 Makio. The iron hand wielded by efficient Al was responsible for the wonderful sales of the campus yearbook. Buckets full of water were spilled on him to signify selection into Bucket and Dipper.

Pi Kappa Alpha was represented in the realm of athletics by Bill DeMora, who carried his share of the battle on the variety wrestling team.

Sweet music filled the PiKA house whenever Brothers Winfield Barnes and Stuart Hughes got together, for both of these boys were members of the concert band.

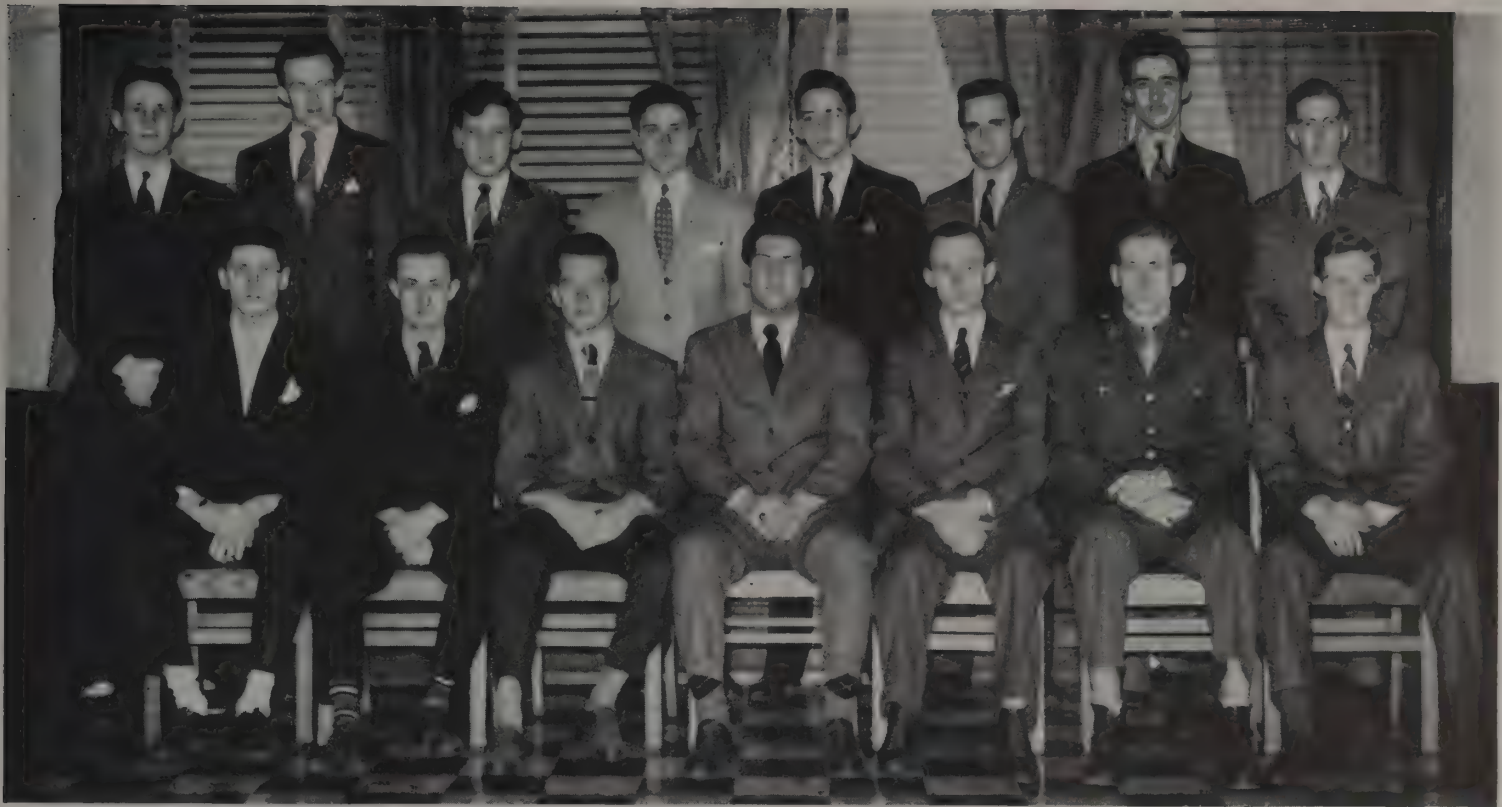

One social event followed on the heels of another all through the year. Top affair of the year for the fraternity was the annual formal held at the Fort Hayes Hotel. Fellas and their girls stepped lightly to soft music and fun filled hearts.

The fraternity had a grand time all year as a result of much ground work and rebuilding in the early fall. Decreased numbers were slowly increased until the membership was large enough to do a little bit better than "carry on." John Stevens, re-elected president, led the chapter to a home front victory.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with its "all-around" fraternity program, maintained its standing in 1944 as one of Ohio State's most versatile fraternities.

SAE in athletics: football, Hackett, a stellar guard; track, Roby, state shot put champion, Bill and Dick Seibert, Hollaender, Gallagher, McGiffin, Reed, Schoonover, Pinis, Sheehan; Varsity "O," Hackett, Reed, McGiffin; head managers in basketball and swimming were Watkins and Harris.

SAE and campus activities: Senior Class President, Miller; Student Senate, Homecoming and Jr.-Sr. Prom Committees, Miller and Harris; Makio, Seibert; Band, Coyle, Richards, Kessling; Scarlet Key, Harris, president, Watkins, secretary. Bud Miller received the Lamme Scholarship in Mechanical Engineering.

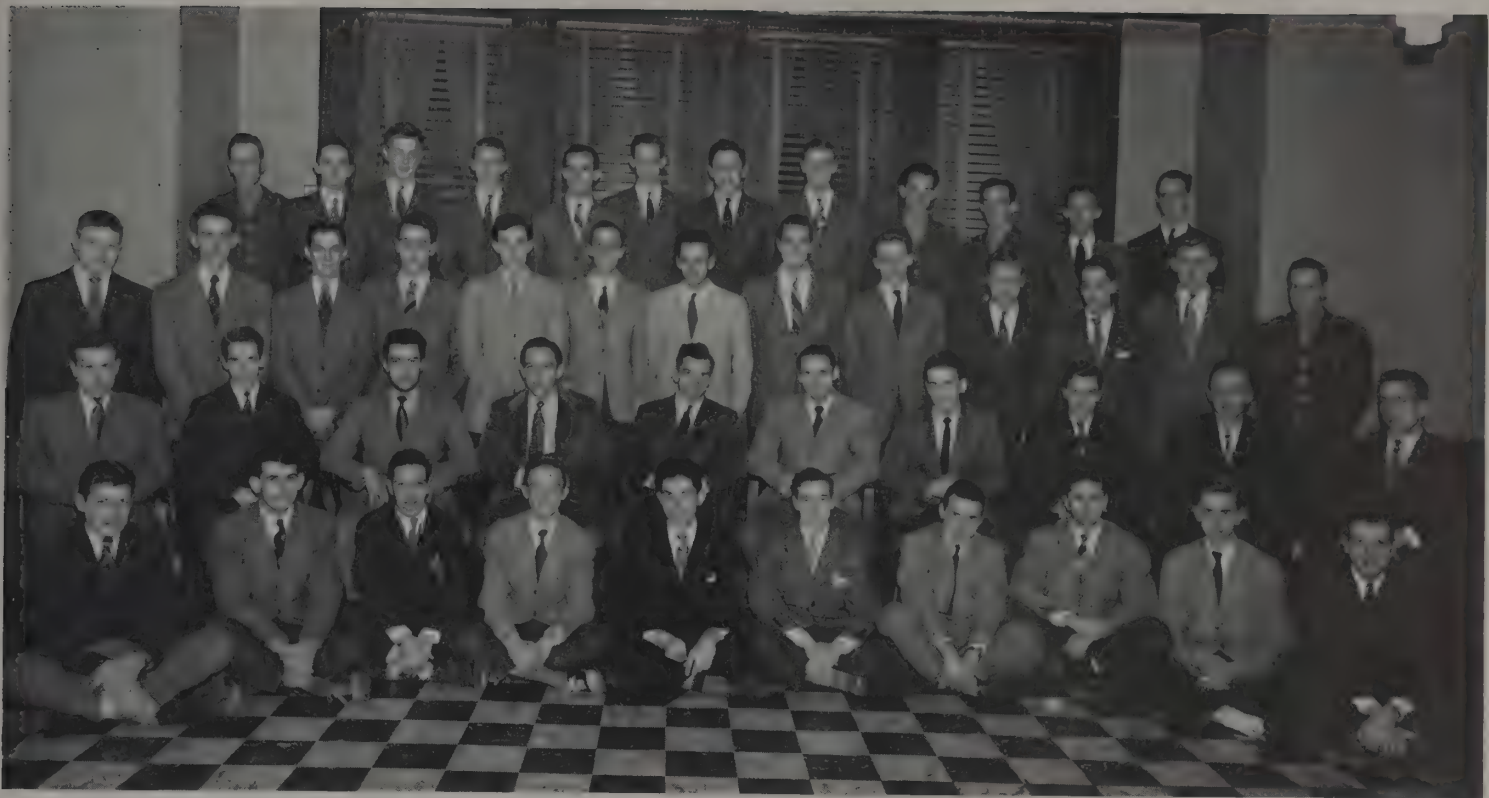

SAE and its social program. Social life included three formals; an unusual "come-as-you-are" party; a "butcher" dinner at which all wore big butchers' aprons and ate chicken with their hands; informal dances and "beer" parties. In addition, there were exchange dinners with five sororities and a few traditional SAE Firelight Serenades.

SAE and WAR! With over 200 men in the services, Ohio Theta has sacrificed more lads than any Ohio State fraternity with five men killed: George Duvall, Bob Spreng, Goebel Heucsh, Ted Correll, and Dick Vance, who were in the air forces. Ohio Theta chapter had three generals: Major General Beightler, head of the Ohio 37th in the Pacific; Lieutenant General Yount, head of Army Air Forces training; Lieutenant General Ford, now retired. The much publicized Phil Cochran or "Flip Corkin" of Terry and the Pirates was an Ohio Theta SAE. Doing its part, 100% of the chapter gave blood. Yes, SAE was proud of its war record, its great sacrifice, and other achievements.

The Homecoming week-end found the house of the Sigma Alpha Mu boys bursting with activity. The big game started the ball rolling, and the guys continued with more excitement as soon as the referee fired the pistol. Equaling but not surpassing homecoming was the Winter Weekend given by the super freshman class. Surprises, fun, and all sorts of entertainment were in store for everybody.

The chapter house at the beginning of the year was relinquished to the ASTP men on campus. A new war annex afforded newcomers a taste of home life at college. This temporary residence also served the alums who returned from various battle areas and theaters of war. In spring quarter another big thrill took the boys by storm. Much to their pleasure they received notice that the castle on the hill was once again ready to be occupied by brothers in Sigma Alpha Mu.

In the field of activities the men at home paralleled the grand job that the boys "over there" were doing. Seymour Luckoff put zip into the varsity debate team. Mel Mayerson kept things moving as feature editor of the Ohio State humor magazine, and Sundial. Mel also handled all the publicity for OSPA. A proud eye was cast toward Marvin Jenefsky, who received honorary appointment to the Hillel Cabinet.

Sigma Beta of Sigma Alpha Mu made every effort to maintain the traditional terrific life and spirit of the fraternity.

After putting forth so much work, the guys could well sigh with relief, for they remained one of the largest and most active fraternities at Ohio State.

The momentum gained in the last sixty years on the campus served the Sigma Chi chapter well during the most crucial period in its history and the fellows could look back in retrospect upon a successful year. The four active Sigs attending school summer quarter formed a nucleus for the continuation of activities in the fall quarter. Whatwithal transfer students and the return of a few men in the fall, the chapter was again built up to working proportions and the Norman Schield was planted on twenty-five men.

When their house was taken over by the University, a new one was found at 87 East Fourteenth to provide the traditional "chapter hearth." A full round of pledge parties, house dances, and beer "brawls" rounded out a social program highlighted by the Miami Triad Formal held at the Deshler-Wallick.

A number of Varsity "O" men could still be found wearing the White Cross of Sigma Chi. Bob Bates won his "O" in wrestling; Dick Petterson, who won his letter in golf was runner-up in the Western Conference Golf Tournament. Dan Shafer kept up the tradition of Sigma Chi champion divers by being on the Varsity diving team. Al Updike rated a Varsity "O" for his work on the basketball squad.

The Balfour Province award, given to the outstanding Sigma Chi in the Ohio Province, was presented to Frank Dempsey of Alpha Gamma. Fortunately no casualties were listed among the many brothers in the service. Complete address lists of these men were published regularly in the "Buckeye Sig," chapter publication. All honor to the names of these Sigs in the armed forces.

A new cup was added to the Sigma Delta Tau collection when Sue Margolis, an outstanding scholar, was awarded the cup for the highest point hour at the annual Panhellenic banquet. That four-point just couldn't be beaten. The election of Gloria Beckman and Leona Horwitz to Pi Lambda Theta brought more laurels to 121 15th Avenue.

During Traditions Week last Spring, Roz Arkin Sugarman proudly wore a Mortar Board. As for activities, orchids went to Leona Horwitz for her outstanding work. Lee was a member of YWCA, War Board, W.S.G.A., Publicity chairman of Links, and Secretary of the Junior Class. Sue Margolis not only attended to her studies, but wielded the gavel of Links and managed the finances of Women's Ohio. Felice Marcus' capability and scholastic aptitudes were proved by her appointment to the YWCA executive council, and election to Mirrors and Scholaris. Any afternoon, Elaine Candell and Mateel Preis, both Sophomore Editors of the MAKIO, were found working in the office at the Union. Monday and Tuesday evenings, Mateel attended to her duties in YWCA.

In the splendid pledge class, Shirley Krakoff took honors as the top activity girl. A member of Midmirrors, War Board, Student Senate and Scholaris, she also had the distinction of having the highest point hour in the pledge class. Pegge Gerber was the athlete of the chapter as a member of the Swan Club and the Physical Education Club.

With all these many activities to their credit, the S.D.T.'s didn't neglect their social life. During autumn quarter, the pledges held a dance with a football motif at the sorority house. The open houses after the football games and on Sundays were very successful. The annual winter formal dance wasn't held this year, but just as much fun and enjoyment was had at the informal dance given by the actives.

The war effort wasn't neglected either. Janice Max, Elise Schield, and Aileen Arnstam were out of the house bright and early every Saturday morning for their Nurses Aide course. The entire chapter bought defense stamps every week and many of the girls proudly wear the blood donors' badge.

From beginning to end, S.D.T. rated among the top in scholarship, activities, social life, and contributions to the war effort.

Rough Stuff.

1968 Indianola Avenue

"Tau Epsilon Phi in '44 goes high" might very aptly characterize the ideal that the men of Indianola Avenue have lived up to so well this year.

Academically, the fraternity finished a strong fourth among all the fraternities on campus. Stan Firstenberg, whose 3.75 rated a Phi Eta Sigma, led his brothers to the top. Meanwhile in the sports field, the hoop men under the able leadership and guidance of Co-Captains Sol Weisgal and Dick Block rated tops.

The social front, too, saw the Tau Eps sitting on top of the world. Events holding high position were a wonderful Homecoming weekend, skating parties, hay rides, cabaret nights and several gala house dances.

Brothers in the armed forces were remembered by those in the house with the dedication of a service flag. The fraternity said goodbyes to many men who left for the armed forces, but were heartened by the presence of some of these men on campus. Ed Siegler entered medical school on this campus, Mickey Weiss and Sonny Gerstel entered dental school, and "Bubs" Grossman awes with the STAR unit stationed on campus.

The Tau Eps had as their goal continued campus leadership and school spirit. Tau Deltans contributing to the various activities included Don Hart of the Fraternity Affairs Office and Mac Block of the Commerce Council were tapped by Romophos. Bill Stevens was on the track team; Stan Firstenberg on the Sundial; Harvey Schwartz and Leroy Lurie on the cheerleading squad; Ted Cohen, Murray Sigalow and Marvin Whitman in the marching band. Looking back over accomplishments, the Tau Eps repeated, "Tau Epsilon Phi goes high."

Zeta Bate Ed Whitman proudly sported a varsity "O" one day, and from that time on this head cheerleader led the fraternity in campus activities. Between Ohio State cheers he found time to be the intramural manager. Following in the good old varsity "O" spirit, the Zeta Beta Tau guys plunked two names on the Sphinx membership list—Mike Moss and Norwin Brovitz. Ray Wells, BMOC, became a member of Bucket and Dipper. Lee Adams, Norman Mosesson, and Elwood Kaplan thought that the big thrill had come when they joined Romophos. This excitement was topped when the Romophos elections came along and Lee Adams received the gavel.

The varsity "O" continued to guide the fellas in the world of sports. Bud Slessinger won his letter in tennis, and was chalked up as the only boy in the history of university athletics to accomplish this feat as a freshman. Prexy Dan Rocker headed the hep bunch in intramurals and swung his way to first place in golf. Another victory for the Z. B. T.'s—they copped the university track championship. The intramural swimming meet was just another one of those things for the boys as they swam their way to top place once again.

These athletes had other interests, too. They blended their voices successfully to take second place in the interfraternity sing. The social whirl stopped for a dynamic week-end when Homecoming rolled around. Another week-end was packed with events at the Virginia Hotel. Although depleted by the huge demands which Uncle Sam made on Zeta Bate manpower, the men experienced a profitable year in a varsity "O" way.

Grass skirts, pineapples, romantic tropical music, and fun for all typified the Zeta Tau Alpha Hawaiian tea during the fall rushing season. Several open houses and a candle lighted formal banquet made rushing exciting for a number of O.S.U. freshmen. Around the tables of the preferential dinner appeared many smiling faces of the would-be pledges.

Social events had only started during the formal rushing period. The Alpha Zeta girls traveled quickly back from the salty air of Hawaii to reality at Ohio State. "Who's all right?" was the next question, and the reply took the form of a banquet in honor of the Dads of the Zeta Tau Alpha's.

Homecoming week-end provided opportunity for the sorority to prove its artistic and creative ability. The poster depicted Paul Brown and General McArthur agreeing "We will win." The patriotic note was followed up by a banquet for the alumnae. After the Illinois game the triumphant excitement carried over to a dance at the chapter house. The next social event was the traditional Founder's Day dinner and service. The latter part of fall quarter chalked up more fun at several other dances and open houses for the servicemen on campus.

Just before initiation the pledges showed their appreciation for everything in general by giving a "Kid" party for the active chapter. The very honored actives all received baby rattles as favors.

Zeta Tau Alpha made a donation to the Central Community House for a Christmas party for the kiddies. The big sisters and their little sister pledges contributed to the fund instead of buying presents for each other. The sorority as a group went to the blood donor center to do its part for the brothers, dads, and sweethearts.

The journalistic minded members started a chapter newspaper which included everything from news to choice bits of gossip and cartoons.

In the sports field the Zeta Tau Alpha's shone in bowling. They were presented with second place in the intra-mural bowling tournament.

The year was continued with a Sweetheart Dance and dinner during the Valentine season. The eyes of all the sisterhood beamed with anticipation for the remainder of the year which was to include dinners, open houses and even picnics.

GOVERNMENT by law, the sacred rights of the individual, these are the principles now being defended by yesterday's athletes, today's heroes of air and sea and land. Reared in a tradition of organized sport, our fighting men are the world's finest, for their bodies are sound, and the American way is deep in their blood and in their bones. The American way is clean sportsmanship—it's team play. The American way is fresh air and lots of room for everyone and giving the other man a break. The American way is Athletics

ATHLETIC ADMINISTRATION

When Lynn St. John took over his duties as director of athletics, the department consisted of a groundkeeper and a football coach. St. John immediately began to build Ohio State's athletic destiny on a firm basis. He gained admission for the University into the Western Conference, and in 1916 the Bucks won their first Big Ten football title. Through St. John's efforts, the new Gymnasium was dedicated, the "horseshoe" Stadium was completed, and two 18-hole golf courses were presented for the use of the faculty and students.

St. John's favorite pastime is golf. An interesting incident can be related in regard to his golf antics. A few years ago, poor health prevented his entering the annual University tourney. To compensate, however, St. John offered a cup to the winner, and the year following came back to win his own cup, much to his embarrassment and surprise. St. John has given unsparingly of his time to improve the standards of competitive athletics.

FOOTBALL COACHES

Paul E. Brown, the man who has given Ohio State a new concept of football, was born in Norwalk, Ohio, in 1908. Later his family moved to Massillon where Paul became an outstanding athlete on the high school team. After he was graduated, Brown entered Ohio State and was a member of the freshman football team, but he soon found that his 140 pounds were not enough for Western Conference play. He then transferred to Miami University where he starred as quarterback and was known to be a deadly passer.

After receiving his diploma, he entered the coaching field, accepting a position at Severn Academy. He spent two highly successful seasons there; and when Massillon High desired a new coach, Brown was the choice. Brown's famous Massillon teams received nationwide recognition.

Brown's methods of installing a well-drilled, fighting team differ from the former "rough and tumble" tactics used by previous coaches. The team becomes a class, the practice field becomes a classroom. A scientific approach is given to football. In addition to regular scrimmage, movies of the opponents' preceding games were presented to the squad. An analysis of the opponents' weaknesses and power is given, and the movies of the Bucks' preceding games are shown to emphasize their own weaknesses.

Brown's concept of a good athlete is one who doesn't try to "outshine" the rest of the team and "hog all the glory." His knowledge of the advantage of teamwork has produced some of the finest Buck teams. He is now playing on the "All-American team," that being the U. S. Navy, and his position is Lieutenant (j.g.). Ohio Staters wish him the very best of luck.

Above is Captain Don Scott, quarterback of the Bucks' 1941 team, who died in an airplane crash in England in performance of his duty

Despite wartime "rationing" of manpower, Paul Brown "pulled out of his hat" one of the finest civilian teams in the country. Many of the Big Ten Conference members were flanked by Navy and Marine personnel who had been in action for various colleges and professional teams previous to their enlistment. Ohio State's team consisted almost entirely of the seventeen-year-olds and those physically disqualified for the armed services. Many of these men had not seen action in college football previous to this season, and improvements were noted as the games progressed. Due credit should go to Ohio State's captain, Jack Dugger. His fighting spirit acted as a torch to spur the Bucks on. Other men of notable merit were Dean Sensenbaur, the East-West game star; Gordon Appleby, line brace extraordinary; Ernie Parks, fleet-footed back from Canton, Ohio; Cy Souders, an excellent punter; Bill Willis, the Buck's most potent tackle; Russ Thomas, that lazy boy from W. Virginia, and many others.

BATTLING BUCKEYES

The battling Bucks serving the University and the nation itself are to be commended highly. Paul Brown started spring practice with almost his entire champion '42 squad. By the end of spring, Brown's teams dwindled to about one-third of their original size.

But let's forget the Bucks of football fame. Let's think of them as the ordinary "Joe Doakes," "Private Hargrove," or what have you. Let's not forget Don Scott, Eddie Blickle, and all the rest who died for something worth fighting for. Let's remember all those battling Bucks in Africa, Italy, Guadalcanal, and other far-flung fronts of the globe. They're fighting for Ohio State. They're fighting for a chance to come back and beat the H— out of Michigan.

Sensy scores in the last 22 seconds to play.

It's Oliver through tackle for a first down.

Seahawk secondaries spill Parks on end run near Ohio's twenty.

OSU 13—SEAHAWKS 2

The Bucks began their season by facing one of the most potent teams in the nation. The Seahawks boasted such veterans of professional football as Todd, Maznicki, Schwartz, and Mertes, who were in the lineup all during the game. It was weight and experience against dogged courage. The burly and rough Seahawks led 28-0, until the Bucks started rolling. They scored late in the third quarter and the extra point converted. Then, late in the last 22 seconds to play, Sensenbaugher went over to make it 28-13. The Bucks lost their first opener since 1894, but it was the way they lost that impressed all critics.

It's a first down as Oliver plunges through center for another first down.

After a discouraging first quarter, the Bucks jumped into the "paydirt" when Ernie Parks, speedy right halfback, skirted his own left end for ten yards and a touchdown on the first play of the second quarter.

OSU 27—MISSOURI 6

Parks broke away during the second quarter for a 25-yard jolt for Ohio's second touchdown of the day. During the third quarter, the Bucks again came forth when Dean Sensenbaugher contributed a 26-yard trek around end. Missouri also scored that period on a pass by Joe Dellastious, left half, to end, John Morton, which was good for 56 yards. The main event of the day was the fourth quarter gallop by Ernie Parks who went through right tackle for a 60-yard sprint. There were at least three men from the Missouri secondaries who should have stopped Ernie, but the fleet-footed speedster was too dogged for them. The only poor showing the Bucks demonstrated was their passing strategy. They failed to complete any of their eleven pass attempts.

The Ohio State's famed Marching Band made its first appearance of the season. At the half, the aggregation formed a large block letter "M" and broke into the "Missouri Fight Song" honoring our opponents.

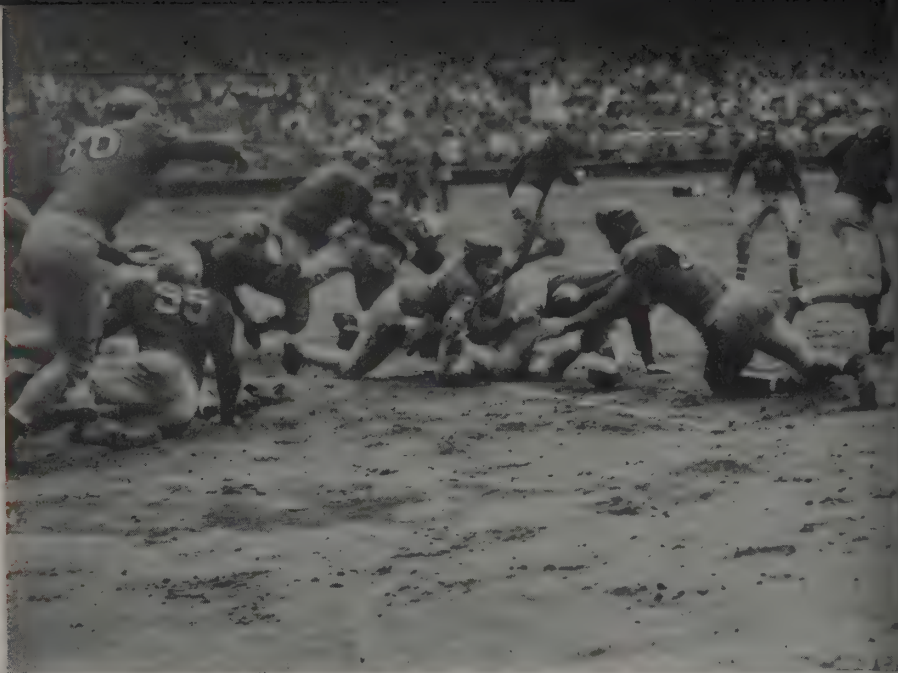

Williams and Sensy lead McQuade interference around end.

OSU 6—GREAT LAKES 13

A determined squad of Buckeyes was outscored and outmanned by a powerful Great Lakes team which later tumbled Notre Dame from the ranks of the undefeated. The toughest assignment consisted of holding the fleet-footed Steve Lach from scoring. It was Ohio State all the way on the offensive during the first half, but the Bucks failed to score. Passes by Lach to Juswick and end runs by Proctor soon totaled the Sailors' two touchdowns. The "run" of the day was a 103-yard runback by Dean Sensenbaugher, but proved hopeless as the Sailors "buckled down."

Dugger stops Dimancheff's touchdown drive.

Willis recovers Purdue's fumble on their own five, setting up Ohio State's touchdown.

Gordon Appleby, line backer extraordinary.

OSU 7—PURDUE 30

Held scoreless the first half while a determined Buckeye team fought to protect a 7 to 0 lead, the Boilermakers roared back in the final half to tally five touchdowns and to swamp completely the dead-tired Bucks.

The Bucks began their offensive when Ernie Parks recovered a Purdue fumble mid-field. The succeeding attempts for yardage failed, and Souders angled a punt out on the Boilermakers' own 13-yard line. Purdue then attempted a line play and lost three yards. On their next play, an offside penalty was imposed, bringing the ball back to the 5-yard stripe. On the following play, Purdue fumbled, and Ohio's Bill Willis recovered. Flanked by fine interference, Sensenbaurer scored on an end run.

Gordon Appleby proved to be the bulwark of the line during the defensive, holding down Butkovich's plunges.

OSU 0 NORTHWESTERN 1

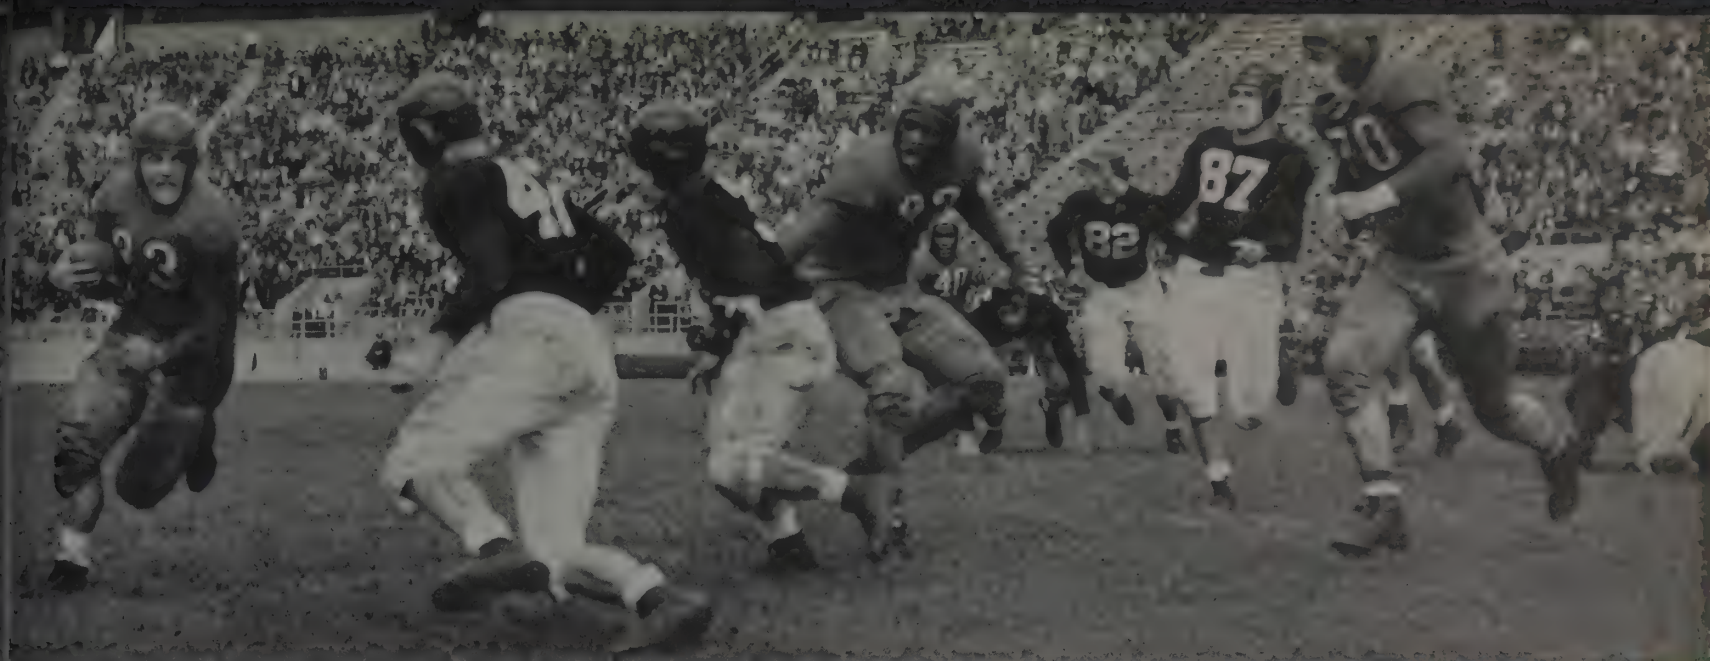

Sparked by Otto Graham's passing and running, a strong Northwestern eleven overpowered the Bucks, holding them scoreless. This was the first time that a Brown-coached Ohio State team failed to score. Graham's passes proved to be the most dangerous offensive action that the Bucks had yet encountered.

The Bucks rallied late in the game and traveled from their own 18 to the Wildcats' own 20 before the timer's gun went off.

It's "up, up, and away" as Paul Davis plays "Superman," but Jerry Carle caught his leg and downed him.

It's a pass, McQuade to Parks for first down.

Sensy skirts around end as Indiana's secondaries close in.

OSU 14 — INDIANA 20

"When greater heartbreakers are made, this game will make them." The score read Ohio State 14, Indiana 13. There were only 39 seconds left to play, when a penalty and a sensational passer by the name of Bob (Hunchy) Hoernschemeyer altered the state of affairs completely.

Indiana dominated the offense during the whole first half of the game. Early in the game, Hunchy climaxed a 72-yard drive with a 17-yard aerial to Cannady who went over for the first tally of the game. Cannady scored again during the second quarter when Hunchy picked up 20 yards on a run and passed to Pihos for 20 more.

During the third quarter, Sensenbaugher, Parks, and Brown began to blast through Indiana's line. McQuade then came in for Sensy and tossed a pass to Parks who scampered to Indiana's 29. After working the ball to the 12-yard line, the Bucks gave it to Sensy who dashed around his own end for a tally. Stungis converted the extra point. The Bucks scored again in the final quarter when the trio of Parks, Sensenbaugher, and Brown ripped the Hoosier line to shreds. Stungis again converted, and the Bucks led 14 to 13.

During the close of the game, the Bucks were forced to punt to safety. Hunchy then began his aerial attack. McQuade intercepted one, but a penalty called the play back. It was at this point that Hunchy heaved his game-winning aerial to end the contest.

Parks gets away for an 11-yard gallop through left tackle.

McQuade fades back to toss the "spherical projection."

Parks dashes around end for 68 yards and Ohio's first tally of the day as the Bucks defeat Pitt.

OSU 46 — PITT 6

The hard-hitting Bucks had "the run of the field" in shellacking Clark Shaughnessy's civilian team. Scoring almost at will during the first half, the Scarlet and Gray whirlwind possessed a 25-point lead. Oliver was the man to watch as he scored three of Ohio's seven touchdowns. The "run" of the day was made by fleet-footed Ernie Parks, who skirted 68 yards for Ohio's first tally. It was Ohio all the way, and many second and third team men saw service throughout the game.

OSU 6—MICHIGAN 45

Playing their final game of the year, the Bucks met up with their traditional rivals at Ann Arbor. This year it was a different story, however. The Wolverines were flanked with such Naval and Marine cadet stars as Daley, Hirsch, Wiese, and Pregulman and bombarded our lines to shreds. The first half found Ohio holding its own, but Wolverine power that half managed to slip across two touchdowns. Michigan then went on in the final half to score five more, cinching the game.

Sensy stops Wiese cold.

The boys really feel swell "After the ball is over."

McQuade held it, and Stungis kicked it.

OSU 29—ILLINOIS 26

This game brought forth a new oddity to be recorded in the annals of football. The "fifth quarter" was the most dramatic event in the history of the Big Ten. It is comparable to the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game of 1938 when the Irish were allowed to have five downs to score due to the referee's error.

Johnny Stungis was our hero for the day. The score was 26-26, there were only ten seconds to play. Bobby McQuade fired a pass that eluded Ernie Parks' fingertips in the end zone, and the gun cracked. Both teams rushed off the field to their dressing rooms. But Head Linesman Paul Goebel remained in the middle of the field waving his hands frantically. An Illinois man was offside. The play was called back after the gun had sounded. Johnny Stungis went in and booted the ball over the placements with only inches to spare. Those Dick Merriwell stories are very exciting and dramatic, but let's see them top this event.

"Come on team, let's fight."

Maltinsky sprouts wings as he intercepts an Illinois pass.

HOMECOMING

The band gives out with a big OHIO. Oliver goes over tackle for a first down.
Let's give 'em the "locomotive."
The fans contribute with a perfect OHIO.

It was Homecoming Day at Ohio State. The band made its entrance into the stadium. The huge concrete structure was filled rapidly. All eyes were focused on the stretch convertibles as they filed past carrying their precious cargo—the Queen, Dorothy Neff, and her court consisting of Nancy Littlefield, Stanley Diamond, Lenora Scott, Toby Mack, and Joyce Tefft. The ASTP group consisting of 2,900 men marched on the field to aid in the flag-raising ceremony. The band broke into our national anthem, and the game began.

It was a band of youthful Buckeyes who refused to say die, and a thrilling victory over an appreciative Homecoming crowd.

The Queen and her court were presented at the half by A. Lovell Elliott and Paul Hatfield, co-chairmen for Homecoming events. The Balfour trophy for War Stamp sales was presented to Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

That good old traditional spirit prevailed during the entire week-end. Decorations adorned the fraternity and sorority houses. Although not as elaborate as in previous years, the decorations proved to be definitely novel. Typical themes were Illinois football, hanging from the goal posts, bombers and football bombs, and college girl silhouettes.

The traditional spirit was climaxed by Homecoming decorations prize which was awarded to Kappa Alpha Theta, representing the sororities, and Alpha Tau Omega, representing the fraternities. The Alpha Phi sorority captured the poster contest prize. The night previous to the game was highlighted by a football rally in the fraternity and sorority sections. Bands flared, cheerleaders howled, queen candidates were presented, and cowboys in blue jeans romped over the entire campus. Sonny Dunham provided sweet music for the merry-makers at the Homecoming dance. At the stroke of midnight Dottie Neff, Delta Gamma, became nobility with her coronation.

BIG TEN BASKET

Huston Prevents Purdue from scoring.

The Buckeyes started the season with only one letter man from last year. That man was Jack Dugger, speedy forward. This didn't stop the Scarlet and Gray, however. With such stars as Captain Don Grate, Risen, Dugger, Wells, Bowen, Huston, Caudill, Gunton, McQuade, Fink, Plank, Updike, Belknap, and others, the Olsenmen won thirteen of their nineteen regularly scheduled games, capturing the Big Ten Conference championship, and went on to play in the NCAA Eastern finals where they were finally defeated by Dartmouth.

Probably the most discouraging game was the first Purdue game in which the Boilermakers overwhelmed the Bucks by a 59-49 victory, thus taking possession of the Big Ten Conference lead. The Bucks came back the next night by defeating Purdue 54-47 to definitely put themselves back in the "running" for the Big Ten title. It was superb set shots by Grate, Bowen, and Dugger and those short rebounders by tall, lanky Arnold Risen which added up to a victory for the Bucks. Paul Huston "shined" on defense, holding Purdue's Hoffman and Friend from scoring.

COACH OLSEN

Coach Olsen achieved one of the most difficult aims of his career, that being to produce a well-balanced team. It becomes an obsession to some coaches to concentrate on one or two men, as was true of Iowa's Ives and Danner, but Olsen brought forth a team in which each man was as dangerous on the offensive as the next. This fact can be verified when you take into account that four of State's men were among the first twelve in Big Ten scoring. Olsen's defensive measures surely took effect, as can be noted by the Iowa games in which the Bucks held the high-scoring pair of Danner and Ives away from the bucket almost completely.

Like nearly all other coaches, Olsen, too, was hit by the manpower draft when his star forward, Jimmy Wells, was called early in the season. This didn't stop Olsen. He immediately transformed his six-foot reserve center, Jack Dugger, into a fast-moving forward.

Olsen also serves as the assistant director of athletics, head of the NCAA Basketball Meet, and for several years a member of the National Basketball Rules Committee.

CHAMPIONS BALL

After defeating Purdue in the final game of the series, the Bucks came upon their "acid test," Iowa. Iowa had lost no conference games previous to encountering State and were all set for that Big Ten crown. The Bucks upset their hopes, however, by taking a two-game series from the Hawkeyes. Grate, Risen and Dugger scored heavily on the offensive while Huston and Bowen played all-around ball sinking in those set shots and played superbly on the defense, holding the high-scoring pair, Ives and Danner, to a minimum of buckets.

The Big Ten Conference championship was cinched with the double defeat of Illinois by the Bucks. The Scarlet and Gray won the first game of the series by a score of 52-41, but during the second game the former "Whiz Kids" tied the score and threatened to ruin State's chances. Dick McQuade then became the hero of the day. With the score 52-52, McQuade sank in a free throw during the last half minute of the game to "sew up" the conference championship.

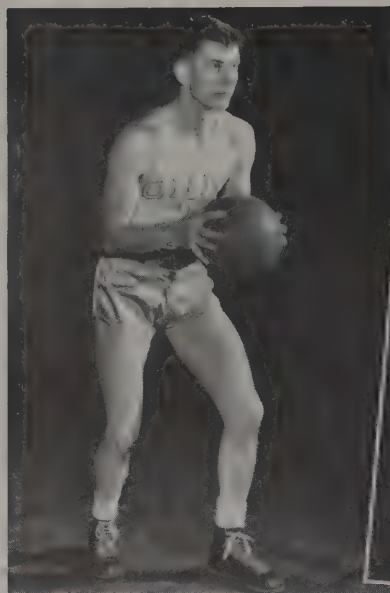

The Bucks were later invited to play in the NCAA and lost to Dartmouth in the Eastern finals after defeating Temple.

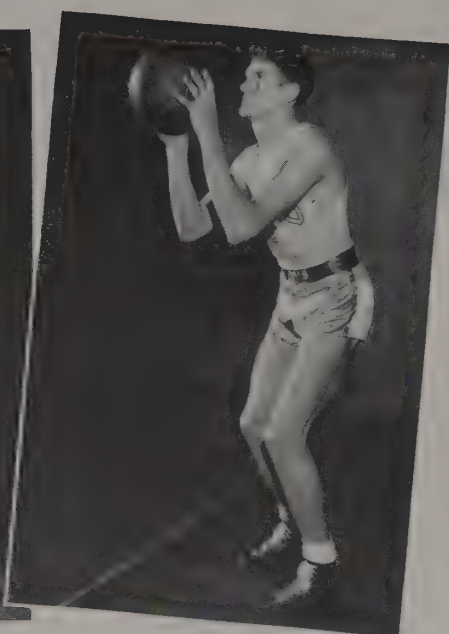

It's a fast break toward Ohio's basket.

Captain Don Grate

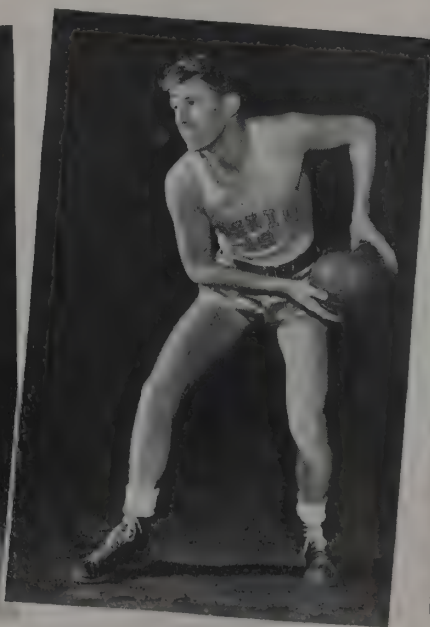

Credit must go where credit is due. The men who really were in there urging those boys to victory are Jack Graf, assistant coach, and Kenneth Watkins, manager. Graf was an all-around athlete for State for three years and was captain of the basketball team in '42. He handled the second team and aided Coach Olsen with his Big Ten champs. Watkins served as senior manager of the basketball team and was the first freshman to do so. His untiring sense of humor kept the team in good spirits all during the season.

SWIMMING

After developing one of the finest swimming teams in the country during 1942, Coach Mike Peppe lost a large majority of his men to graduation and the armed services. Among the many great stars Peppe developed are Frank Dempsey, Charles Batterman, Miller Anderson, Bill Smith, Keo Nakama, Mark Follansbee, Jim Counsilman, and many others. The only one of these men left is Keo Nakama, free styler deluxe. Peppe's team was bolstered in strength by Bob Stone, diver who won the majority of his contests with wide margins.

Although losing all four regularly scheduled meets, the Buck swimmers placed third in the Big Ten. Keo Nakama won the 220 and 440 free style in that meet, and Bob Stone placed third on the low board. The Bucks then entered Stone and Nakama in the NCAA competition. Nakama won the 440 freestyle and the 1500 freestyle as Stone placed second on the high board and low board defeated by Charles Batterman of Columbia, a former member of Ohio State's team in 1942.

1944

Probably one of the most dramatic meets of the year was that held at Ohio State Natatorium against Great Lakes. Swimming for Great Lakes was Bill Smith, ex-Ohio Stater who holds more world records than any other swimmer in the country. The meet opened with the 150-yard freestyle in which Jerry Kerschner, youthful protege of Mike Peppe, broke the record time. Kerschner had no competition in the race which made it more difficult to beat the watch. He is a former resident of Arlington and now is at Great Lakes training station. The next event of interest was the 220-yard freestyle and 200 meter freestyle combined in which Bill Smith, a member of State's '42 team broke his own record. Adding to the color of the meet was the diving antics of State's own Bob Stone who captured the diving laurels for the Bucks, and a record-breaking relay contest performed by the Great Lakes team of Smith, Kerschner, Altman, and Ris. This totaled to four record-breaking contests and proved to be a meet that will not be excelled in years. A swimming exhibition was also presented by the girls' Swan Club.

FENCING

The Fencing Team had a fairly successful season this year, winning two of their three official matches. Coach Ben Burtt was hampered by the lack of experienced men, losing most of his last year veterans to graduation and the armed services. Mort Epstein was the only regular that returned from last year.

The Buck fencers began their season by trouncing Cincinnati. They were then defeated in an unofficial match by the Ohio State ASTP. The Burttmen again defeated Cincinnati to the tune of 22-5. The Bucks were later trounced by the Cleveland Sword and Mask Club, a professional organization, but they put up a close fight and each match was thrilling to the end.

Coach Fritz Mackey

Producing a winning team was the task of Coaches Fritz Mackey and "Tippy" Dye. Dye became baseball coach when Mackey was called to the aid of Coach Paul Brown and his gridders during summer practice. "Tippy" developed one of the finest teams in the Big Ten, capturing the Big Ten title. Coach Mackey had to return to his favorite sport, however, when "Tippy" was called up by the Navy. It was under Mackey's final coaching that the team defeated the Purdue Boilermakers twice to capture the Big Ten championship.

An Ohio University man is caught sliding in home by Ernst, catcher

It takes "guts" for a team to really win when "the heat's on." The Bucks baseballers accomplished that feat. During the end of the season, they were tied with Purdue for the Big Ten lead. The last two games the Bucks played were against Purdue, and everyone expected the "fur to fly." It was a perfect nine that defeated the Boilermakers two games, 4-3 and 4-1.

The bulwark of the Ohio State nine was Don Grate. Don won the majority of his games and led the team in home runs. Grate proved to be not only a dangerous pitcher on the mound but a potential hitter. Don Maxa, right fielder, and Ernst, catcher, led the team in batting for the regulars, and outstanding play could be noted from Whittingham, Murphy, Nakama, Huffman, Cope, and Phillips.

Coach Hicks' Boys Rough It Up a Bit.

The Ohio State wrestling team had a very successful season this year, winning five of their regular scheduled meets and four Big Ten matches out of five for the best season a Buck wrestling squad has had since 1921. Due to graduation and the manpower draft, the Buck wrestlers had only three lettermen from last year. They were Seymour Weil, Captain Joe Stora, and Bob Bates. Stora not only served as captain, but also acted as an assistant coach since he had had past experience.

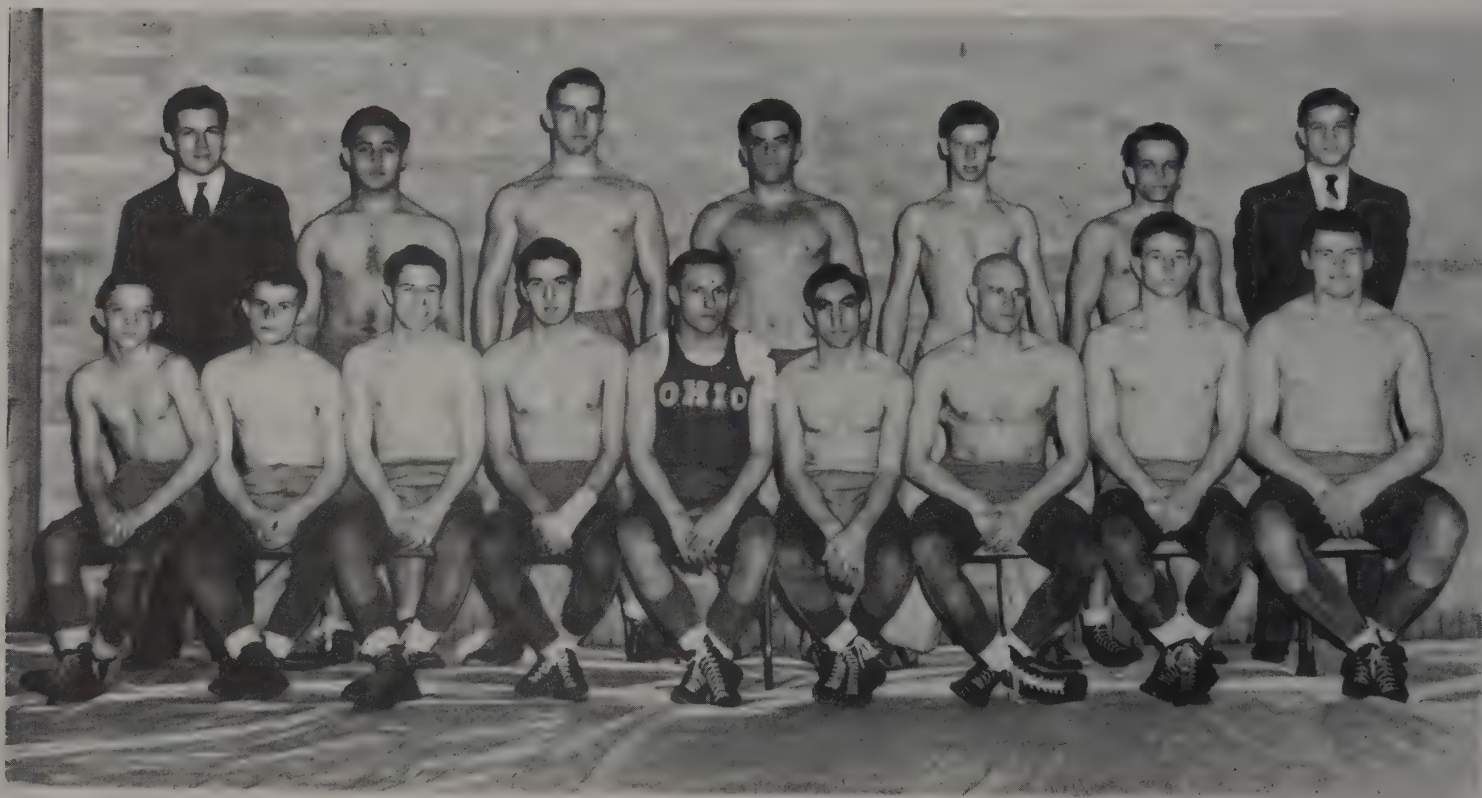

Coach Larry Hicks really did a "bang-up" job of guiding the team this year. He scheduled five Big Ten opponents, and this was a feat in itself as no coach had been able to schedule this many Big Ten matches. Daily work-outs were Coach Hicks' secret of success as the Bucks emerged from their Big Ten matches with a percentage of .800.

WRESTLING

Of the forty individual wrestlers met by Ohio State's all-civilian team, all but twelve were Navy or Marine personnel. Many of these men had previous college wrestling experience.

Although meeting stiff resistance, Ohio State triumphed over Indiana, 20-14. This was the Bucks' second win over that team since the Scarlet and Gray began wrestling as a competitive sport in 1923. In this match Dave Ewart, Ohio State's 17-year-old freshman defeated his opponent by a pin in nearly record time. Ewart then went on to win four more matches defeating the pride of Illinois, De Long, who had previously recorded 32 consecutive wins. The real bulwark of the team was Captain Joe Stora. Joe came through to win the majority of his matches even though bothered by a shoulder separation.

The 1944 team won one half of their matches on pins, which is exceptionally extraordinary since the majority of their opponents' matches were won by points.

"Curly" Lonjak and Bill DeMora

The job of molding a well-balanced tennis squad rested upon the capable shoulders of Coach Herman Wirthwein. His efforts produced a team which captured the Big Ten Conference championship in 1943. Wirthwein coaching tactics consisted of daily practices which served their purpose in pointing out weaknesses and developing speed and power. Practice always begins in the early spring, and although weather conditions usually prohibit early outdoor play, the boys can be found in the gym limbering up and hitting the balls against the wall.

The squad, led by that pair of superb netters, Bob Wasserman and "Chuck" Samson, who played number one and two man, respectively, and when teamed together in doubles proved to be the most vicious pair in the Big Ten Conference. The Bucks began the season by facing Cincinnati, whom they trounced soundly and went on to win every match play during the seasonal play with the exception of Illinois, who defeated them 5-4. The Bucks' three top men, Bob Wasserman, "Chuck" Samson, and Aris Franklin won in the singles, and the number one combination of Wasserman and Samson copped the doubles' play, but the rest of the team lost, thus losing match points. Most of these matches were close, and a point meant the difference between victory and defeat.

However, the Bucks came through as always and captured the Big Ten Conference championship from Illinois, the runners-up.

GREATEST

The Big Ten Conference championship meet held at Northwestern proved to be the closest play ever witnessed. The Bucks won with a score of thirteen points and were closely followed by Illinois with twelve points, Wisconsin with ten, Northwestern with eight, and Michigan and Minnesota with seven each.

Naval Aviation Cadet Roger Downs of Northwestern defeated top-seeded Bob Wasserman for the Big Ten Singles championship, but the Buckeyes captured the doubles crown and the second and third division singles to bank enough points for their win. Downs trailed in the first set seven games to six before rallying and was behind four to three in the second set when he again overpowered Wasserman. Downs' placements kept Bob from playing his grueling net game.

Outstanding men on the team consisted of Captain Kampfer, Preston Crabill, Jim Bradford, Bob Love, John Lorms, and Dick Petterson.

SCARLET KEY

Scarlet Key was founded in 1925 by a group of athletic managers for the purpose of creating and promoting finer relations between this and other universities and colleges. It is an honorary society made up of the senior managers of the various sports. It was rumored that the organization would become inactive for the duration, but through the efforts of the managers and advisors Scarlet Key remained a most noteworthy athletic organization.

Women's Recreation Association is an organization set up for the co-ordination of all women's sports clubs on the campus. Representation on the W.R.A. board consists of two members from each of the clubs. The various projects and problems of this recreational group are discussed and acted upon.

Co-operation in one of the major activities of campus keynoted the organization to success. That was to sponsor the University Canteen. This canteen was first organized for the students' recreation, but with the enrollment of the ASTP and various other armed services, the canteen served as an excellent opportunity to the servicemen to relax and have some fun. Some of the recreational facilities consisted of dancing, badminton, chess, table tennis, and various games of all sorts. The Swan Club entertained with various ballet swimming exhibitions, and the Orchesis Club contributed with several dance numbers. By acting as hostesses each Friday night, the members of the sports clubs contributed to the war service on the campus.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

The purpose of the Physical Education Club is to promote an interest in the field of Physical Education instruction. The club has social activities which promotes a friendly atmosphere between the group and the faculty. The girls are called on quite frequently to serve the community through the city high school sports day which is held every spring quarter.

The membership in the club is limited to physical education majors. The meetings are devoted to social and professional activities. The annual project for the year was a series of teas held every two weeks, planned and conducted by the group. These teas, however, are overshadowed by the freshman party, the formal banquet, the high school sports day, bread twists, the basketball and volleyball play days with the faculty, and many other memorable events.

Since the war began, emphasis on "building the body beautiful" has been placed upon physical education majors. The WAVES, WACS, SPARS, Nurse Corps, and other branches of the services aiding in our eventual victory have called to the colors many members to aid in their physical fitness program.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB BOARD

TENNIS CLUB

TOP ROW: Strohm, Blazer, Chapman, Turner, Pond, Dickler, Fischer, Tall, Miesse. ROW ONE: Malavozos, Dilmore, Menkel, Newley, Bohnsack, Atkinson, McIntosh.

For those who love the fine game of tennis, the Tennis Club has always been a haven from books and cares of school. Each afternoon and evening the girls can be found engaging in this vigorous sport. Many intra-club tournaments highlighted the season for the club.

BOOT AND SADDLE

Moonlight rides, picnics, and horsemanship shows contributed to the program of the Boot and Saddle Club for the year. The inexperienced rider may start in the Spur Club, which meets in conjunction with Boot and Saddle. The girls worked this spring for various riding academies.

WOMEN'S

Jane Esborn, ace fencer, on guard.

Watch that goal!

Girls practice strokes in field house.

The keynote throughout the women's physical education program is to give the students the fun and enjoyment of participating in sports and to offer the opportunity for improvement in skill. The facilities and the program of the department are constantly expanding to meet the needs and to fit the changing interests of the students. The sports program includes intramurals and sports clubs as well as the required physical education courses.

There are at least twenty-five sports offered in this program, so that each of the many girls participating, most of whom are freshmen and sophomores, may find a sport in which she is interested. This great variety of sports makes this one of the largest and best planned women's sports programs in the country. Bowling is the only sport which is not provided for on the campus. Classes and tournaments are therefore held in a bowling alley near the campus.

The sports: golf, archery, and archery golf are the most popular outdoor sports. The golf classes are held on the new University golf course in the autumn and spring quarters, while practice driving and putting is carried on in the field house during the winter quarter and during rainy weather. The field house contains an enormous amount of equipment for use by the faculty and student body.

She wields a wicked stick.

SPORTS

Girls who like strenuous outdoor activities can play hockey, soccer, and lacrosse during the fall and spring quarters. Basketball and volleyball are offered during the winter quarter. Some of the indoor activities offered are social dancing, badminton, fencing, diving and swimming, table tennis, tap and folk dancing, calisthenic courses, and innumerable others. An interesting note of the times is the fact that due to the shortage of male physical education students, many male physical education instructors conduct classes for women.

The intramural program offers an opportunity for sororities and independent organizations to compete in various leagues in a wide variety of sports. Tournaments are held in basketball, volleyball, table tennis, badminton, bowling, tennis, golf, and various other sports. The wide scope of this part of the program gives others as well as the members of clubs and physical education classes an opportunity for recreation.

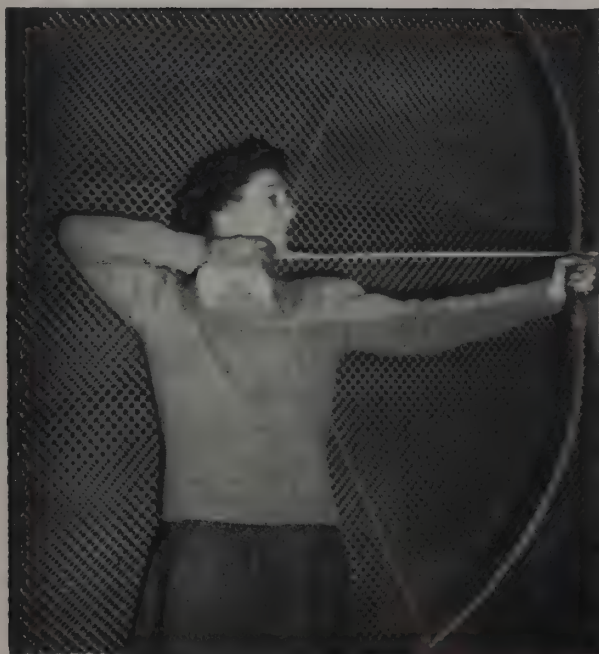

With the replacing of women for many jobs, formerly performed by men in the armed services, the task of molding women for these jobs falls largely on the shoulders of the women physical education instructors.

The Boot and Saddlers ride on.

Canoeing down the Scioto River.

In archery, "practice makes perfect."

- 1 Attention all housewives
—tomorrow at nine,
Certain goods will be auctioned
at Seventh and Pine.
- 2 There are two or three brushes,
a slightly used pail,
Some safety-belt rope,
and rags by the bale.
- 3 They'll be sold by a lady
who's washed glass for years,
Who's learned to clean windows sans effort, sans tears!
- 4 She's found that with WINDEX
(that joy and delight)
She can just lift a finger and make glassware bright!
- 5 The sprayer is patent and works like a flash
And the cost for each pane comes to one penny—cash.
- 6 So don't be a pail-slinging,
rag-rubbing slave.
Discover the time and work
WINDEX can save!

SAVING during youth prevents . . . SLAVING in old age

AMERICAN TRADITION

• Quality, Integrity and Dependability have established themselves as a definite tradition with Pontiac. We have been constantly on the alert for new and improved procedures in yearbook designing and service. Our modern precision equipment is concrete evidence of adherence to this policy. Our experienced craftsmen and servicemen are carefully supervised by experts in the field of distinctive school publications. We are proud to have played a part in the publishing of this book in the capacity of official photo engravers. Our entire personnel congratulate the staff for their splendid work and cooperation.

THE LAST WORD

The task of producing a yearbook in wartime has not been an easy one. The staff, however, believed so sincerely that the Makio is a tradition which must be kept alive even in wartime, that it redoubled its efforts to further the cause.

To my right-hand and pal, Miriam Golin, I extend a sincere "thank-you" for a job well done. Hers is the crown of achievement for having performed so efficiently and cheerfully all of her many duties as Associate Editor. To Alton L. Rinier and Gloria Guggenheim, Business Manager and Associate respectively, I highly commend their accomplishments in working so cooperatively with the Editorial Staff in keeping the numerous details in the Business Office intact.

Among those deserving the very highest praise are Jim Brunner, Chief Photographer, and Dixie Westbrook and Dorothy Baker, Art Editors. Jim, what with PD 1A priority ratings on film and flashbulbs, still gave unselfishly of his time and talent in order to photograph the campus from every angle. To Dixie and Dorothy goes a big vote of thanks for so successful an interpretation of the theme set forth in this book.

To those Sophomores who are the backbone of every staff, I speak my heartfelt congratulations that they had the courage to see this yearbook to its completion. The loyal members of the Sophomore Staff were Elaine Candell, Mateel Preis, Ray Wells, Helen Haeckl, Helen Pond, Mary Ann Work, Mary Ellen McOsker, and Frances White.

There are also in yearbook production a great many people who are so to speak "behind the scenes," but all will testify that they are a very integral part of a yearbook. Those "behind the scenes" people in Makio production were William J. Freund, representative of the Pontiac Engraving and Electrotpe Co., whose intense enthusiasm for his work is so infectious that an editor cannot help but surmount difficulties with Bill as an advisor. And from Weinlein Typesetting Co. was Arthur Tammadge, whose effort and cooperation made the production of this yearbook a much easier task. Also to Joseph Otto and Martin C. Scheibel of Heer Printing Co., William Sims and A. E. Lubersky of the David J. Malloy Plant, cover manufacturers, go endless amounts of praise for so excellently completing their respective jobs. I would also like to thank Joe Halberstein, the Columbus Dispatch, and the Columbus Citizen for their many courtesies in relinquishing sports photos for our use.

And to Wayne V. Harsha, Publications Adviser, go my very best wishes and a sincere "thank-you" for being a patient and very helpful adviser. His efforts have been tireless and his friendly guidance has been an inspiration to all students.

In leaving the Makio, I take with me memories of wonderful friendships and the fun it has been to work with many people for a single purpose. The experience has been challenging and it is my sincere hope that in a small way we have helped to preserve an Ohio State tradition.
